Journalist's family will donate book proceeds to island health center

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Beaver Islanders rallied to the Broder family's request for photos to illustrate a collection of Beaver Island-inspired columns by David Broder, a Pulitzer-prize winning columnist for the Washington Post.

BEAVER ISLAND — The Hoffman family landed on Beaver Island in 1915 by way of a young girl's allergies.

The girl, Marg Hoffman, suffered so badly in Illinois where the family lived that they searched continually farther north until they found a place where she was comfortable.

Now, generations of the family have come to the island, including David S. Broder, a Pulitzer-prize winning Washington Post reporter and columnist. He first started traveling to the island in 1949, with the woman who became his wife, Ann Collar, niece of the girl whose allergies brought the family to the island. They spent their honeymoon there, then most summers after. Many columns published in the Washington Post had their roots in situations Broder saw on the island.

After Broder's death in 2011, his family wanted a way to give back to the island. So they collected his Beaver Island columns into one volume and self-published the book. Now, the family hopes to sell the book and donate all proceeds to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center.

"What's nice about the health center is it serves everyone, regardless of whether you're summer people or year-round people," said Matt Broder, son of David Broder. "It's a true community institution in every sense for Beaver Island."

Community was at the heart of many of David's columns. The book's opening piece, written in 1970, meditates on Beaver Island's school, which at that time was run with a mix of public and private support. Same went for the historical museum, a "new medical center" and dock, wrote David.

"Beaver Island displays, in microcosm, the qualities America must somehow recover if it is to survive as a nation," reads the column. "In the past two weeks, this reporter has heard three intelligent and deeply concerned men. ... All of them were saying the same thing: That America must rediscover its sense of community or fall victim to its internal divisions."

Through the decades and now, the island has occupied a special spot in the Broder family, who lived in Arlington, Va.

"The ritual was, school would end, and Mom would have done all the preparation," said Matt, who now lives in Hamden, Conn. "She and sometimes my dad and the four boys would pile into a beat-up Volkswagen minivan ... The first day, you drive from Arlington to Toledo and stay overnight in the same Holiday Inn. The next day, you drive from Toledo to Charlevoix and you're on the afternoon boat."

Of the 4,000 columns David wrote, 33 center around Beaver Island, said the family in a forward of the book. Those 33 columns, the first of which is dated September 1970 and last February 2010, contain issues familiar to readers in Northern Michigan; water levels, land use issues, economic recession and community.

In a way, said Matt, the book is a community-sourced project. The book contains those 33 columns, but is also decorated with photos of the island past and present.

"When we started, the only thing we had access to were my dad's columns and we had really no idea how it was going to be illustrated," said Matt. "We put the word out to the Beaver Island community that we would love to have photographs from the community. ... The response was just overwhelming. The fact that the book looks as beautiful as it does is completely because of this island community."

According to a news release from the family, the book is a limited-edition volume and is being sold by the health center on a first-come, first-served basis. Fewer than 300 copies remain from the original print run. Interested buyers should contact Donna Kubic by email at donna@biruralhealth.org or by phone at (231) 448-2275.

Computer classes offered at library

Computer classes are being offered this spring at Charlevoix Public Library. All library computer training takes place in the Coeling Computer Lab.

Classes include:

Microsoft Word 2007 Basics — 10:30 a.m.-noon Tuesday and Thursday, March 26 and 28 — basic word processing skills such as formatting

Microsoft Excel 2007 Basics — 6:30 p.m.-7:45 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, April 16 and 18 — basic spreadsheet operation and basic formulas.

Using your eReader — 10:30 a.m.-noon Friday, April 19 — how to check out books from the library's eBook collection

Computer Basics — 10:30 a.m.-noon, Monday and Wednesday, May 13 and 15 — very basics of computers, including using a mouse, creating and saving files.

Roger Gowell will be the instructor for the MicroSoft and eReader classes, and Linda Adams will be instructing the basics class. The instructors ask students to register for computer classes by calling (231) 237-7340.

Chamber Easter egg hunt set for March 30

The Easter Bunny is coming to Charlevoix for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's annual Easter egg hunt at 2 p.m. on Saturday, March 30, in East Park in downtown Charlevoix. The hunt is for children up to 10 years old, and admission is free.

Prior to the egg hunt, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant will host the annual Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m. Children may have a free photo taken with the Easter Bunny, compliments of Picture This, and then the whole family can stay for lunch. (231) Call 547-4311 for reservations.

Following the luncheon the Easter Bunny will hop down to East Park for the Easter egg hunt sponsored by Northwestern Bank. The egg hunt begins at 2 p.m. sharp, so parents are encouraged to have their children ready to go at that time and to bring a basket to hold their child's share of the 6,000 prize-filled eggs.

Children will be divided into four different age categories: 2 years and under, 3-4 years, 5-6 years and 7-10 years.

Call the chamber at (231) 547-2101 for more information.

Boat company nominated for military support award

The Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, a U.S. Department of Defense operational committee, recently announced the Beaver Island Boat Company was one of 50 businesses in the state that Michigan Guard and Reserve members nominated for the 2013 Secretary of Defense Employer Support Freedom Award.

According to a release from the organization, the agency received 2,899 nominations nationwide for The Freedom Award, which is the Department of Defense's highest recognition for employers supporting employees serving in the Guard and Reserve. Up to 15 award recipients will be announced this summer and honored in Washington, D.C. later this year at the 18th annual Freedom Award ceremony. Past award recipients have met with senior leaders of the White House and Department of Defense as part of the award recognition.

Guard and Reserve service members, or family members acting on their behalf, nominated their civilian employers for the Freedom Award during the 12-week nomination season that closed in January.

"Even with recent draw downs in Afghanistan, ongoing national security demands and historic humanitarian relief missions have continued to call service members away from their civilian lives. Supportive employers are critical to helping restore stability and peace of mind for these citizen warriors and their loved ones," the release reads.

"Every year, these nominations demonstrate the strength of our employers' commitment to supporting our Guardsmen and Reservists," said committee chairman James G. Rebholz. "We applaud all the National Guard and Reserve Service members who took the time to tell the (Department of Defense) why their employers are exceptional, and we are grateful to the 2013 nominees for providing our citizen warriors with the assistance and encouragement they rely on while answering the call to duty."

Nearly one-half of the U.S. military is comprised of Guard and Reserve members. Freedom Award recipients are recognized for going to extraordinary lengths for their Guardsmen and Reservists. Nationwide, this year's nominees represent diverse industries including airlines, grocery store chains, national retail brands and IT companies, as well as small businesses, and state and local governments.

A list of nominations from all 50 states, Guam-CNMI, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia are available at www.FreedomAward.mil. Semifinalists for the 2013 Freedom Award will be announced later this spring.

Monday's meeting drew far fewer to object to the project than earlier meetings, which drew more than 100 audience members.

Most of those voicing opposition Monday expressed concerns about the cost and environmental impact of the gas the fireplace will use.

Addressing the cost issue, mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson noted that estimates regarding the cost to operate the fireplace have been cut about in half since the fireplace was first proposed to about $3,100 per year. Carlson explained that the cost estimate reduction came from a slight decrease in gas prices, a reduction in the number of hours that the fireplace would run and a reduction in the heat output the design calls for from 550,000 BTUs to 300,000 BTUs.

Carlson also noted that another donor, Todd Wyett, has offered to pay for the first five years of the fireplace's operation and any additional costs that might be incurred by the city to redesign the project above the original donor's $40,000 offer.

Jeff Porter, who is one of four people seeking to unseat three city council members in an upcoming recall election, asked Carlson if the city has any of these donation offers in a contract. Carlson responded that the money from the original donor is being held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, but that a contract, per se does not exist.

However, Carlson did note during the meeting that city officials are working on developing a policy for the council to consider adopting that would address how the council will handle donation offers in the future.

City resident Jodi Bingham, who was one of three city residents who served on the steering committee that provided input that led consultants Mark Buday and Richard Hitz to recommend the revised plan, said she was out of town last week when the special meeting took place, and did not agree with some of the contents of the committee's report as presented at the special meeting.

There were those who spoke in favor of the project Monday, including downtown business owner Kirby Diperi and Castle Farms general manager Anura O'Connor. Both said they believe the fireplace will fit nicely among the park's other amenities.

The original fireplace plan, which was offered by an anonymous donor and first discussed at a city council meeting in early July, called for an eight foot wide fireplace topped by a chimney that would have given the structure a total height of about 20 feet. The project was approved by the council at a special meeting on Aug. 9. When construction started a few days later, members of the community began to raise objections. In September the council voted to put the project on hold to allow time for options for its design and location to be explored that might be more agreeable to more of the community.

On Thursday, city manager Rob Straebel said Buday and Hitz are already working on the final design and hope to have it complete "in the next few weeks." He added: "Once a final design has been developed, staff will review and bring to council when we feel all operational issues have been ironed out."

The recall election, which was spawned by those opposed to the project, is set to take place on Tuesday, May 7. (See related story on page A1).

needs, their academic needs," said Cindy Whitley, media center and focus room assistant. "I have the pleasure of working at the recess every day for sixth-graders and I've been looking at them the last couple weeks. I look at the way they play, how they get along, the fights they have, their friendships. ... I understand the staff would take very good care of them, but I hate to see them with older kids. I worry about them."

Amy Pott, a seventh- and eighth-grade teacher, spoke as well.

"I really believe (middle schoolers) need a safe, caring environment," said Pott. "But I'm going to talk on the flip side. If you did go into two buildings, I would ask that you really look at keeping them separate: I know how impressionable these guys are, and any little thing they see, they want to be just like."

Administrators have taken this into consideration. High school principal Suzanne Klinger said the second floor of the high school could be cordoned off for the seventh- and eighth-grade classes, and the students would have to travel downstairs only for life science classes and lunch. Lunch would also be separate, with the possibility of combining with the ninth-graders.

Plan B would keep three buildings open, but would not solve the problem of 18 empty classrooms between the middle school and high school buildings. And neither plan would keep class sizes from increasing. Plan A would put, at a high, 34 students in a fourth-grade classroom and 36 students in a tenth-grade classroom, estimated administrators.

Administrators estimate that Plan A would save the district more money, said superintendent Bob Gendron. Between teacher lay-offs, cuts to athletic budgets, and administration, the district would save a little more than $1 million.

Plan B would save the district about $800,000.

Some wondered if saving $200,000 would be worth losing a building. Currently, the administrators aren't sure whether the elementary or middle school would be closed, but are eyeing the middle school. Bo Boss of Charlevoix, former school board member, pointed out that the Charlevoix Middle School just received a new boiler system.

"There's really no way to shut it down without great expense," he said, adding that the building would also need to be kept at 50 degrees and protected against pests. "For $200,000, I'd take a gamble. It has to get better."

But the administration did present options for using the middle school building, which included moving the central office, where some administration has offices, to the middle school and renting out the current central office. North Central Michigan College and Baker College have both expressed interest in renting classrooms, said Gendron. The building could also operate as an early childhood education center or house an alternative education program.

"The administration, we're trying to make the best of a situation with the hand we've been dealt," said Gendron in a follow-up interview. "But our teachers are our greatest resources. There's no doubt that the quality of teachers in Charlevoix is phenomenal."

The school board will consider the two options and are expected to make a decision during another special board meeting at 6 p.m. on Monday, March 25, at the middle school.

THE BREAKDOWN:

Plan A

- Close one building
- Keep 17 full-time and five part-time teachers
- Full time counselor would remain in each of the two buildings
- Three custodians, during the day and two during the night, on staff at each building
- 2.5 secretary positions at the middle school/high school and 1.5 in elementary
- Maintain seven teacher assistants at elementary school and two at middle school/high school
- Keeps the majority of programming for K-12 students
- Would require the high school to move back from trimesters to block scheduling
- Would provide six classes of academic support for at-risk students
- One athletic director would coordinate 7-12 athletic events

Cuts:

- Three full-time teachers at elementary school
- Five full-time teachers at middle school and high school
- Cut five full-time teachers to part-time at middle school and high school
- Consolidate to one athletic director
- Cut athletics transportation
- Require pay-to-play athletics

TOTAL SAVINGS: $1,001,575

Plan B

- Would keep all three buildings open
- Would allow middle school students to keep their own identity
- Staff would not have to move between buildings
- Seventh and eighth grade students would have access to gym without busing
- Would not eliminate 18 empty classrooms
- Would have no athletic or attendance secretary
- Would have limited district custodial maintenance
- Would eliminate middle school Spanish for high school credit
- Would be difficult for middle school students to obtain high school credit

Cuts:

- Three full-time teachers at elementary school
- Two full-time teachers at the middle school
- Two full-time teachers at the high school
- Cut two full-time teachers to part-time at middle school and at high school
- 1.5 full-time support staff
- Cuts to athletic transportation
- Require pay-to-play athletics

TOTAL SAVINGS: $817,000

BALLOTS

The recall efforts stem from discontent with the city council among some city residents stemming from a proposal to build an outdoor community fireplace and chimney in Plaza B of East Park. The fireplace project, which was to be paid for largely by an anonymous donor, was approved by the city council at a special meeting on Aug. 9, 2012. Complaints about the project began surfacing when construction began days later. After hearing many complaints about the project, in September the council voted to put the project on hold so it could explore other options for the project that might make it more agreeable to more members of the community. On Monday the council voted unanimously to move to the final design phase of a re-designed low-profile version of the fireplace.

McSauba season closes out in style

Bo Boss, area manager for the City of Charlevoix's Mount McSauba ski area said the one week delay caused by bad weather on March 10 didn't do anything to dampen the spirits of participants in the facility's season-end celebration Saturday.

Boss said the event drew more than 100 participants and several hundred more spectators.

He said the well-attended Winterfest capped off a year that saw usage at the ski area up from last year, thanks to better cooperation from Mother Nature. Boss noted that the numbers would have been even better had the weather been more cooperative during the week between Christmas and New Years.

All proceeds from the Winterfest festivities went to the fund that is paying off the debt on the groomer that is used on the slopes.

Little League to benefit from Major League fundraiser

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Major League Baseball Players Alumni Association is teaming up with Charlevoix Little League for a weekend of events on the first weekend in May.

Charlevoix Little League organization announced this week that it will welcome 12 Major League Baseball alumni to town on May 3. Arrangements have been made for the players to host a free baseball/softball clinic from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, May 4, followed by a ribbon cutting of the newly constructed baseball field at Charlevoix Township's Shanahan Field, Charlevoix Little League's opening day ceremonies, and the season's first game.

According to event organizer Mark Snyder, "With former Major League player Dennis Rasmussen moving to Charlevoix, an opportunity knocked on the door for the kids in our community to meet and interact with athletes that have played at the highest level."

The free clinic will be for children from ages of 7-14 and is limited to the first 250 children. Pre-registration is available on-line at charlevoixlittleleague.com or mlbpaa.mlb.com.

The day will conclude with an evening reception and silent auction fundraiser with the former Major Leaguers' benefiting Charlevoix Little League at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. The silent auction will include several pieces of Major League Baseball memorabilia, as well as items from local businesses.

Tickets for the evening reception will be $30 and are available from any Little League board member.

Sunday will be the weekend's featured event with the "Golf with the Legends" golf outing. This unique double shotgun start scramble will be hosted at the historic Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix and will allow players an experience of a lifetime, golfing nine of their 18 holes side-by-side with Major League alumni. The cost for the outing will be $150 and includes green fees for 18 holes, cart, mid-afternoon lunch, and one ticket to the Saturday evening reception. Registrations received by April 12 will receive an additional reception ticket.

Snyder said the Charlevoix Little League Board is pleased to have the former players as their guests for the weekend and look forward to the community welcoming them.

BE A
WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by William Fuller and Shannon Fuller, husband and wife, original mortgagor(s), to First Franklin Financial Corporation, Mortgagee, dated October 3, 2000, and recorded on October 12, 2000 in Liber 398 on Page 932, and assigned by mesne assignments to PNC Bank, National Association as assignee as documented by an assignment, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of One Hundred Three Thousand Eight Hundred Fifty-Seven and 96/100 Dollars ($103,857.96).

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on April 5, 2013.

Said premises are situated in Township of Wilson, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: Commencing at the South 1/4 corner of Section 12, Town 32 North, Range 6 West; thence North along the North and South 1/4 line of said section 1971.95 feet to the Point of Beginning of this description; thence South 89 degrees 47 minutes 45 seconds West 238.80 feet; thence North 00 degrees 00 minutes 00 seconds West 516.15 feet; thence North 89 degrees 47 minutes 45 seconds East 299.18 feet to the center line of the Boyne City-East Jordan Road; thence Southerly along said road line on a curve to the right 520.68 feet (the radius of said curve being 3850.00 feet and the chord bears South 07 degrees 26 minutes 02 seconds East 520.29 feet); thence South 89 degrees 47 minutes 45 seconds West 127.70 feet to the Point of Beginning, being part of the North 1/2 of the South 1/2 of Section 12, Town 32 North, Range 6 West.

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period

Charlevoix second-grade teacher Dawn Hovie speaks Monday evening at the Charlevoix board of education's special meeting in support of the district consolidating into two buildings rather than face state receivership. Receivership would put financial decisions in the hands of the state.

Two-building format passes

Charlevoix Schools superintendent meets with Baker College about renting unused building

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted 4-3 to move to a two-building school system for the 2013-2014 school year at a special board meeting Monday night in order to stave off a deficit.

Now the district's job will be to decide which building — the middle school or the elementary school — will be closed.

Falling student enrollment and declining state aid will whittle the school's fund balance down to $40,000 by the end of the year. The administrators of the three current buildings, elementary principal Doug Drenth, middle school principal Travis Garrett and high school principal Suzanne Klinger, each made statements in support of the two-building system before the board made its decision.

"No matter what plan we choose, we have a great staff and great kids," said Garrett. "Please trust and realize that if and when we choose Plan A, the two-building option, we will be able to create a seventh- and eighth-grade wing in the high school that is separate from the rest of the students with the exception of one science class."

Kindergarten through sixth grade will be housed in the same building. The administrators plan to visit other K-12 school districts that are academically successful in order to consider those districts' models, they said.

Consensus among the administration and board members seemed to be that the two-building option would maximize savings to the budget — to the tune of just over $1 million — while minimizing impacts to staffing numbers and programming. But the board members who voted no — vice president Kevin Pearsall, trustee Mike Pearsall and trustee Glen Catt – were

Police investigating EZ Mart robbery, $500 reward offered

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The City of Charlevoix Police Department is continuing its investigation into an unarmed robbery that was reported at the Charlevoix EZ Mart, located at the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31 late Tuesday.

The store's owners and the police department are also offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the people responsible.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said the clerk on duty at the gas station and convenience store reported that shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday, two white men entered the store and demanded the money from the store's cash register.

Doan said the clerk reported that the men did not brandish any weapons, but did wear some type of covering over their faces.

He said the clerk gave the men an undisclosed amount of money from the cash register and the men fled from the store on foot in an unknown direction. The clerk was not injured in the incident.

Doan said the clerk described the two suspects as both in their early 20s, about 5-foot-8, with medium builds and wearing dark-colored, hooded jackets. He said officers are continuing their investigation and following up on several leads. He said one development that cropped up Wednesday was the cash drawer taken in the robbery was found outside in an area not far from the EZ Mart.

Doan asked that anyone who may have seen any suspicious vehicles, or people in the area of the intersection of M-66 and U.S. 31 around the time of the robbery, or who may have any other information about the incident, to call the Charlevoix Police Department at (231) 547-3258 or 9-1-1.

iPad initiative extends learning

In the classroom of Charlevoix High School English teacher Karen Peterson, a laser printer sits, out of toner.

Because of severe budget cuts the district is facing, the printer likely will be out of toner until next year, said Peterson. That could be a problem: Peterson is also the yearbook teacher, and students print out pages of the yearbook they have designed for Peterson's critique. That's been a little tough with a printer out of toner.

But it's not tough when Peterson's students discover an iPad application that allows them to send pages to Peterson for her review — electronically, without having to use a printer at all. Peterson can edit the PDF, then email it back to her students.

Budget talks go on

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

In addition to deciding to consolidate to two buildings during a special board meeting on Monday, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education struck down the February amended budget with a vote of 5-2.

The school board tabled the amended budget during its regular February meeting because two board members were absent. Also, the amended budget as proposed in February would dip into the school's fund balance and leave it with just over $39,000.

At that same meeting, the school board discussed $49,000 in what they called at the time budget "cuts" that were in fact budget freezes. Programming wasn't cut in the $49,000 figure. Rather, the savings came from money administrators estimated they would not need to use before the end of the year.

The savings were comprised of $12,000 from the high school budget, $15,000 from the athletic budget; $15,000 from the middle school budget; and $7,000 from the elementary budget.

Lori Martinchek, director of finance and administrative services for the district, said she could not amend the budget while the board had it tabled. The board voted against the February amended budget so that Martinchek can further amend it to show the $49,000 savings.

"What will happen is I will bring forth a general fund budget amendment with those cuts they wanted and make the adjustment on the budget of the fund balance," said Martinchek.

Martinchek will bring the newly amended budget before the board at its next board meeting, a regular meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, April 15, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Separating recyclables may be a thing of the past for Charlevoix County

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Now that Charlevoix County has voted to break its recycling contract with Emmet County and the five-month-long bidding process has come to an end, changes are coming to how county residents recycle.

Those recycling in the county may soon have the option of not separating materials before bringing them to county drop-off stations.

Plastic, metal, paper, cardboard and glass would all be tossed together into one bin if the county recycling committee agrees to adopt the single stream processing option offered to it by its hauling and processing contractor. Also, the variety of types of recyclables the county can accept will soon expand.

A bid by American Waste to perform all hauling and processing of the county's recyclables over the next decade was accepted by county commissioners March 13 and a contract is now being drawn up between the two entities. Service should start with American Waste by Memorial Day.

Currently, the county's recyclables are processed by Emmet County Recycling, which doesn't offer a single stream option.

Some communities that have switched from dual stream systems, where recyclables are separated, to a one bin or single stream system have reported big gains in the amount of material that residents recycle.

The city of Minneapolis, Minn., reported in February that after switching to a single stream system last fall it saw a 63 percent increase in recycled material over the same time period last year. The city hopes to double the 2012 recycling rate by 2015.

The same gains, nearly 60 percent more material recycled, was seen in Oakland County after it switched from dual to single stream recycling in 2012, according to Michael Csapo, general manager of the Resource Recovery and Recycling Authority of Southwest Oakland County.

The two main reasons his county decided to switch over was because a private firm was willing to make the investment to alter the facility and because the method of curbside collection for single stream is streamlined and less expensive, said Csapo.

Rather than several small bins, materials are collected from residents on the curbside in one, big, wheeled cart.

"Switching to carts, we knew we would see an increase in volume collected at the curb... It makes it more convenient for residents," he said. "I can tell you in terms of volume, we went up about 60 percent."

That is not just attributable to the facility switching to single stream though, he said, but also to the change in the method of collection. A single stream system is more likely to increase motivation at the curb than at a drop-off site because "Usually if a person is motivated enough to drop it off, they are motivated enough to separate the material," he said.

The only downside he has seen to changing processing methods is that when the materials are mixed together, it renders "a small percentage" of the recyclables into unusable material that must be brought to a landfill, he said, usually around two to three percent.

"In our case, we felt that is offset by the increased volume we get," reported the recycling manager.

Members of the Charlevoix County recycling committee expressed concern that mixing materials would lead to contamination of recyclables, which might diminish their value and bring less back to the county in revenue sharing.

"We're successfully doing it (single stream recycling) in Antrim, Benzie and Grand Traverse counties," responded Mark Bevelhymer, general manager of American Waste. "That hasn't been an issue for us," he said of contamination.

"We haven't seen that," agreed Csapo. "What we've seen over the past several months is a reduction in revenue because commodities markets went down last fall."

But, Kris Jolly, Michigan State University's recycling manager, says he believes dual stream typically does yield a cleaner end product. It is up to individual entities to weigh the pros and cons of the possible loss of value versus the possible increase in total material recycled because of increased participation, he said.

Michigan State University uses a dual stream system. "But institutional is a lot different than residential recycling," he said.

Nancy Ferguson, chair of the recycling committee in Charlevoix County and Michele Hewitt, its vice chair, both say they haven't been able to determine yet whether single stream is best for the county, but they are looking into it in order to make an informed decision at their next meeting.

"I guess, obviously, we want the program to operate as efficiently as possible," said Hewitt. "This is all a new concept, it's just about having the time to absorb it all and see if it fits our program."

Another committee member, Mike Heaton, thinks single stream is a good idea.

"I think this is the best thing since sliced bread," he said. "For one thing it's going to be a lot easier on consumers because you don't have to separate material anymore. I think volume will increase because of that."

The bid submitted by American Waste includes a not-to-exceed amount of $175,000 for the first year of service, with an increase of 2.9 percent for each year after that.

That could be a good thing because rather than charging the county based on the amount of recyclable material that is handled, it will charge a set amount each year. That way if the volume of recycling happening in the county goes way up, the price won't go up at the same rate.

Items that Charlevoix County residents will soon be able to recycle at drop-off stations once the county switches contractors include Styrofoam, shrink wrap, stretch wrap, all plastic bags, cereal box liners, plastic buckets, plastic toys, plastic furniture, small scrap metal, wire hangers, gift wrapping paper and construction paper.

The recycling committee will make a decision on whether to stick with dual stream processing or switch to a single stream system at its next meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday April 17, at the Melrose Township Hall.

County will continue progress on Boyne City-Charlevoix trail

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW

Charlevoix County Parks and Recreation Director Ross Maxwell shows those present at a public hearing in Boyne City Wednesday where a planned recreational trail would run along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

BOYNE CITY — Charlevoix County will apply for a grant from the state in order to move forward with plans to construct a 3.3 mile non-motorized trail along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

The county board of commissioners voted to apply for the $300,000 grant from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund in a 5-1 vote Wednesday night in Boyne City during its regular meeting. Commissioner Richard Gillespie voted against applying for the grant.

The 3.3 mile stretch is the second phase of a much longer trail that would run from Boyne City to the Little Traverse Wheelway in Charlevoix.

The entire project is to be built in phases as funds become available and would accommodate bicycles, walkers, joggers and those on skateboards, scooters and wheelchairs. The first phase of the trail is fully funded and will stretch 3.2 miles from Boyne City east to Springwater Beach Road. Engineering on the first phase of the trail has not been completed yet, but construction is expected to begin early next year.

Plans for the second phase of the trail, which commissioners agreed to apply for the grant to help fund, show it stretching from Waller Road in Charlevoix, south to Quarterline Road. That segment would end by Susan Lake, where a nearby nature preserve and lake would serve as a destination for those traveling the trail.

From there, a third phase would run to Camp Sea-Gull, a fourth to Pincherry Road and a segment from Pincherry Road to Springwater Beach Road would complete the trail and connect it with the first phase, which starts in Boyne City.

All of the segments are about three miles each.

Planned funding for the second phase of the trail includes the $300,000 natural resources trust fund grant, a $500,000 Michigan Department of Transportation grant, $50,000 in matching funds from townships along the trail and $300,000 in other local grants including a grant promised by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

During the public comment portion of the meeting Bay Township resident Roger Conaway said he believes Boyne City should have a bigger financial contribution to the trail.

Many Boyne City groups and supporters of the trail have already raised $35,000 through fundraisers, said Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce Director Jim Baumann. He added that while upcoming fundraisers will be held in Charlevoix because the next segment of the trail will begin there. "I think Boyne City people will continue to support the trail financially."

Although the first phase of the trail, which begins in Boyne City, is already fully funded, Boyne City City Manager Michael Cain said he sees "an even greater value" in a completed trail system.

"We support all of the sections along the way," Cain said. "I see this trail as an economic development tool for the county to get people to come to our county."

During construction of the trail, the county road commission will likely need to use some space outside the public right of way for construction equipment. The county is sending letters of acknowledgement to property owners along the trail as sections are constructed to gain permission in the case in which there is a need to stray onto private property.

Letters have already been sent to homeowners along the first phase of the trail, reported parks and recreation director Ross Maxwell and he plans to meet with any of the property owners that have questions about the nature of the construction process. Twenty percent of the letters have already been signed and returned, he said.

Gillespie said he believes the letters should have been signed before the county proceeded with securing funding for the trail. That, he said, is why he opposed applying for the grant for the second phase of the trail; because the county has not yet gained permission from property owners along the trail to construct it.

The trail itself would be located within the public right-of-way and not on any private property, reported Maxwell

Staff civil counsel could cost the county more

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is continuing its discussions over whether it should hire a full-time staff civil counsel rather than continuing to contract the service.

The county's personnel committee discussed the matter at its meeting on Wednesday, March 20.

"The reality is, the hours we pay for this are limited compared to ... We could spend a comparable amount of money or a little more and get twice the amount of hours out of it" by hiring a full-time staff member, said commissioner Chris Christensen

"In Grand Traverse and Emmet (counties) it works really well," added commissioner Ron Reinhardt.

Last June, county commissioners hired Young, Graham, Elsenheimer & Wendling, a law firm based in Bellaire, to serve as the county civil counsel on a contractual basis.

According to county clerk Cheryl Potter Browe, the county spent approximately $26,500 for the first seven months it used the firm. Over the course of a year, that would mean a total of about $45,400 and an average of around six hours a week of work. Emmet County employs a full time staff civil counsel and pays her $82,000 per year. The attorney also has a full-time administrative assistant/Freedom of Information Act coordinator that is paid $22 per hour. All projected expenses to the county in 2013 for the office add up to $175,850.

County Human Resources Coordinator Kevin Shepard said he doesn't anticipate a need in Charlevoix County for an administrative assistant to its civil counsel.

If Charlevoix County chooses to hire a staff civil counsel, commissioners would have to consider expenses beyond just the attorney's salary. Other costs could include finding office space with computers and desks, purchasing office supplies, law library membership and employee health insurance, retirement and other employee benefits. The current contracted attorney attends county board meetings, draws up and reviews contracts and answers any legal questions for county staff and elected officials. Any litigation, such as the case in which the county is being sued by the former assistant prosecuting attorney, is handled by insurance attorneys and are not the duty of the current civil counsel and would not be performed by a staff attorney, said Browe.

One additional task of a staff attorney discussed by the clerk and human resources director would be to handle Freedom of Information Act requests. Currently, the clerk's office handles those requests, which often involve a significant amount of time and paperwork, according to Browe.

Right now, Shepard is researching what the duties of the position would be, how much it might cost to employ a staff civil counsel and what the county's needs are.

"Right now we're checking into what other people are doing and how much it would cost," said Shepard. "At the extreme earliest I would think it would be next budget" before the position would be created. "I don't see it happening this budget cycle."

The county has not discussed specific candidates for the position as of yet, said Shepard.

"Absolutely no person has ever been mentioned" in connection with the position, added Browe.

The county's next budget begins in October this year.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Calendar makes it tough to fight the urge to get planting

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

When we get to the end of March it is increasingly difficult to not think of spring. And when I think of spring, the next thought is planting something. Most of that planting takes the form of what will later be garden vegetables. Up here so near the North Pole, it's a good idea to get annual plants started as early as possible.

The year-round plants in my little greenhouse have just begun to realize that the days are longer and warmer. Most of them have at least the beginning of new leaves. They have been sitting mostly dormant, even in the warm greenhouse, since December. An 80-degree day in the greenhouse is one when the sun shines for more than a few minutes, and many of the tropical plants do their best at about 80 degrees.

My garden seed order has arrived in the mail, and it takes all my strength to keep from planting all of them right now. I have mostly resisted. Next summer's sweet potato plants are just beginning to show leaves on the few small potatoes I saved and resisted eating over the winter. The only other garden candidates started are the pepper plants. Those seeds take longer than almost anything else.

One of the traditions I learned as a child was that early potatoes were to be planted on Good Friday. I suspect it had more to do with the idea of resurrection than it did about the weather. Last year I did plant early potatoes on Good Friday, but Easter is a sort of slippery holiday that can come anywhere from the last week in March to the last week in April. There will be no potatoes planted on Good Friday this year. They don't grow well in the snow and cannot be started in the greenhouse.

The other big planting this spring is a sugar maple to replace the century-old tree we had to have removed late last fall. That tree was the source of our annual crop of single-tree maple syrup (the maple syrup equivalent of single malt scotch). The new tree is unlikely to be the source of maple syrup during my lifetime, but someone else can enjoy it in 2050.

Spring and summer will be glorious, as always.

Genealogy classes begin

The Charlevoix Public Library is offering a series of classes for beginner and novice genealogists. The first two classes should be taken together and followed up by the first Internet class. The second internet class is for more advanced Internet tips. The classes will be taught by professional genealogists, Carol McWain Goodenough and Barbara Manley Hernden.

At Learn How to Begin Your Family Tree, 6:30 p.m. Monday, April 8, students will learn the basic procedures for starting their own family tree, including using four generation charts, family group charts, and a home search will be introduced. Participants are encouraged to bring along any family information that they have already found.

The second session, 6:30 p.m. Monday, April 22, Tools of the Trade will be introduced, including different types of records available. Some of the records explored will be vital records, census, cemetery, church, court, and DNA resources.

The last class in the series titled How to Use the Internet to Find Genealogical Records, will be held 6:30 p.m. Monday, May 6. This class will focus on locating vital records; census records; cemetery records; court records; immigration records; and other major records. Databases such as FamilySearch, Ancestry, US GenWeb, Find-A-Grave and Google will be explored. A second Internet class will be offered for those genealogists who are more experienced genealogical researchers and will explore more advanced techniques. Advanced Tips and Tricks of the Internet for Genealogical Research will be held 6:30 p.m. Monday, May 13.

Goodenough has been an active genealogist for more than 40 years. Hernden has been researching for more than 20 years. They have been teaching classes together for more than five years.

They also lead a monthly genealogy interest group at 6:30 p.m. on the second Thursday of the month at Charlevoix Public Library. This group is open to the public and focuses on different aspects of genealogy each month. Register for the classes ($5 material fee suggested) either at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St., or by visiting www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

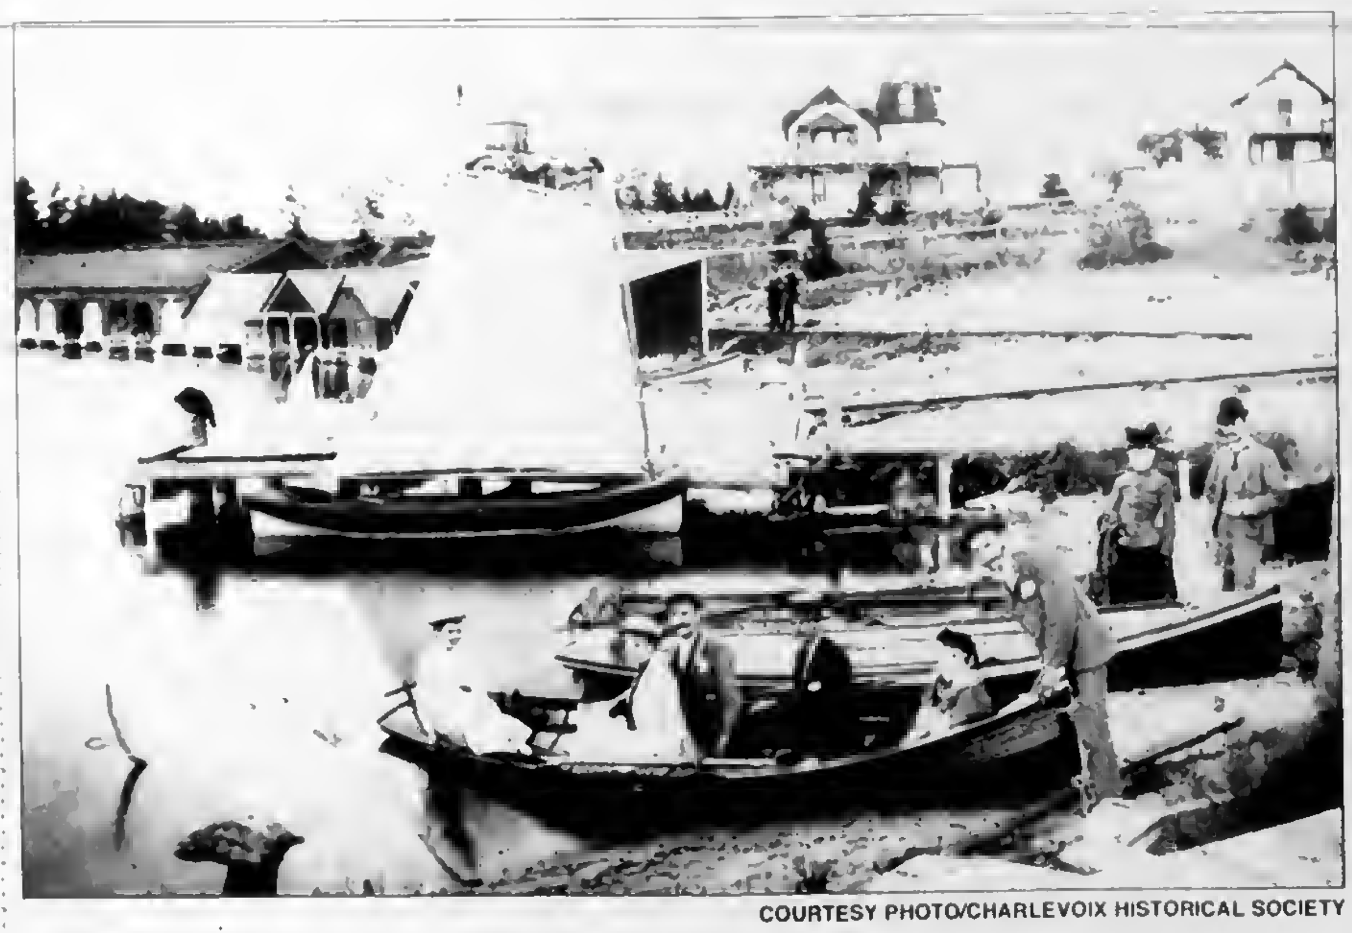
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

One of the first things the Charlevoix Summer Resort Association (later to become the Belvedere Club) did after it established roots here in 1878 was begin to develop the natural cove on the south side of the upper channel that led from Round Lake to Pine Lake (later Lake Charlevoix). Boathouses eventually lined both sides of the cove, the east side seen here below what became known as Breezy Point. Since Newman Street, later named Belvedere Avenue, was for many years a dusty, rutted dirt road that made travel by horse-drawn carts and wagons very uncomfortable, the easiest way to reach downtown was by boat. Here the resorters are shown about to shove off on a Sunday morning on their way to church. They and many others would soon be joined by friends and neighbors across the water in the Chicago Club, and a small flotilla headed to town. But in the beginning, almost all of the docks and wharves on the west side of Round Lake were too high for convenient docking for their low vessels, so the resorts petitioned the city to provide adequate facilities. The city found it wise to oblige these important seasonal residents. A long, low dock area reserved for their exclusive summertime use was established at the foot of Clinton Street, now the site of the harbormaster's building.

DEATH NOTICE

Gary L. Jesiek, 75

Gary L. Jesiek, 75, of Charlevoix died Friday, March 22, 2013 in hospice care at Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville, Tenn. The family is planning a memorial service in Charlevoix in June. A complete obituary with details of the memorial service will follow at that time.

New law affects absentee voting

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs wants to get the word out to city residents, especially those who wish to vote in the upcoming May 7 Charlevoix City Council recall election, that a new law enacted in December will have an effect on the process of obtaining absentee voter ballots for the coming recall election.

Ochs noted that Public Act 523 of 2012 takes effect at the end of March and included several election law changes. Of particular importance is the new requirement for voters to present identification or sign the Affidavit of Voter Not in Possession of Picture Identification form when registering to vote or obtaining an absentee ballot in person. All clerks must begin asking these applicants for identification documents on March 28.

According to state election officials, voters can satisfy the ID requirement by showing a Michigan driver's license or a Michigan personal identification card.

Voters who do not possess either document may show any of the following forms of picture ID as long as it is current:

- Driver's license or personal ID card issued by another state.
- Federal or state government-issued photo ID.
- U.S. passport
- Military identification card with photo.
- Student identification with photo from a high school or an accredited institution of higher education.
- Tribal identification card with photo

Voters without picture ID:

Michigan election law anticipates that not all voters will have picture ID. Voters who do not have acceptable picture ID or forgot to bring acceptable picture ID to the polls can vote like any other voter by signing an affidavit.

Ochs noted that absentee voters wishing to receive their ballots by mail do note have to meet the above identification requirements.

Ochs also noted that some deadlines for the upcoming election are also fast approaching:

- April 8 is the last day for city residents to register to vote if they wish to vote in the May 7 recall election
- 4 p.m., April 26, is the deadline for those wishing to run in the election as a write-in candidate to file Declaration of Intent forms.
- 2 p.m., May 4, is the deadline for electors who wish to receive an absentee voter ballot for election by mail to submit their applications.
- 4 p.m., May 6, is the deadline for electors qualified to obtain an absent voter ballot for the recall election to vote in person in clerk's office.

Questions regarding the upcoming election, identification requirements and deadlines can be directed to Ochs at (231) 547-3250.

No update on design

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said consultants Mark Buday and Richard Hitz continue to work on a final design for the revised community fireplace concept approved by the city council last week, however he does not have a firm date on when the plan will be coming back before the council. He said it will not be on the agenda for the council's next meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 1.

Straebel said he does plan at that meeting to bring a draft of a donation acceptance policy for the council to consider Monday that will apply to the fireplace and all other future donations.

Straebel said he expected the draft policy to be posted on the city's website and its Facebook page sometime Thursday.

Historical society to present program on Operation Petunia at Depot Beach

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present an illustrated program titled Operation Petunia — The Story, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 2, at the Depot, Depot Beach.

Dale Boss, the sparkplug behind the project that began in 1982, will narrate how the project began, the personalities involved, how it grew into one of the most cohesive community events in Charlevoix's history, astonishing statistics along the way, several amusing stories, and what Operation Petunia has meant for the town.

Boss has watered and nourished the flowers between Memorial Day and Labor Day beginning at 4 a.m. for the past 31 years, and has not missed a day when needed.

Light refreshments will be served. There will be no admission charge, but donations in support of the Historical Society are appreciated. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

ID event

City of Charlevoix police officer Barb Orban helps a child make fingerprints on a special child identification kit during a special event at Charlevoix's Glen's Market on Saturday, March 23. Department cheif Gerard Doan said during the event officers provided free kits to parents to collect identifying information for their children for them to keep should an emergency arise in tha future.

Chamber Easter egg hunt set for Saturday

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's annual Easter egg hunt will take place at 2 p.m. on Saturday, March 30, in East Park in downtown Charlevoix. The hunt is for children up to 10 years old, and admission is free.

Prior to the egg hunt, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant will host the annual Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m. Children may have a free photo taken with the Easter Bunny, compliments of Picture This, and then the whole family can stay for lunch. (231) Call 547-4311 for reservations.

Following the luncheon the Easter Bunny will hop down to East Park for the Easter egg hunt sponsored by Northwestern Bank. The egg hunt begins at 2 p.m. sharp, so parents are encouraged to have their children ready to go at that time and to bring a basket to hold their child's share of the 6,000 prize-filled eggs.

Children will be divided into four different age categories: 2 years and under, 3-4 years, 5-6 years and 7-10 years.

Call the chamber at (231) 547-2101 for more information.

Chamber to host recall election candidate forum

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will host a forum for the candidates who will be running in the upcoming Charlevoix City Council recall election from 6-8 p.m. on Wednesday, May 1, at the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

Chamber representative Bethany Pearson said the forum will follow a similar format as was used for the forum for county government candidates prior to the November 2012 election. She said the schedule calls for the first 90 minutes to be a moderated question and answer session for the candidates with the final 30 minutes set aside for audience members to "meet-and-greet" with the candidates on a one-on-one basis.

For those who are unable to attend the forum, a video recording of the event will be made that will be posted to both the chamber's and the Courier's websites.

Pearson said she has already had contact with all seven candidates whose names will appear on the recall election ballot and all are planning to participate.

For its April 26 edition, the Courier is planning to publish profiles of the candidates who are running and the chamber will also be producing a similar voters guide.

The recall election is set for Tuesday, May 7.

The effort to unseat three current city council members grew out of citizens' displeasure over the council's acceptance of an anonymous donor's offer to pay for the bulk of the cost of construction for a gas-fueled outdoor community fireplace in East Park.

Here's how the races — as they will appear on the ballot — will shape up:

In the 1st Ward, incumbent Dennis Kusina will square off against challenger Jeff Porter.

In the 2nd Ward, incumbent Bryan Vollmer will face off against challenger Gabe Campbell.

The 3rd Ward will feature a three-person race among incumbent Jill Picha and challengers Shirley Gibson and Dennis Halverson.

Campbell and Porter are also the sponsors of two of the three the recall petitions that forced the recall election against their respective opponents in the upcoming election. Resident Julee Roth was the sponsor of the petition that was circulated against Picha.

Whoever wins the respective recall election races will immediately assume or retain that seat on the council and will serve the remainder of the term, which expires on Nov. 18.

Library hosts Roger Stoppel artwork display

It all started on a snowy, December day, a dozen years ago, when Roger Stoppel went skiing, fell and broke his ankle. He dug out a sketch pad and some pencils and began to draw, during his recovery. The pencils led to watercolor pencils and then to watercolors. Paintings of landscapes, real and imagined, now line the walls of his home that he shares with his wife, Sarah.

Stoppel's work is also on exhibit in the foyer of the Charlevoix Public Library's community room now through the end of April. This exhibit shows some of his work from the past five years

Stoppel graduated from Michigan State University and is a registered architect whose vocational expertise was in architectural rendering. He has designed and built several houses, with the help of his sons, in Lansing, Okemos, the family cottage on Lake Charlevoix, and finally the home he lives in now in Bay Shore. Stoppel, 85, spends his time back country skiing, cutting wood, gardening, reading, improving the soil on some of their 140 acres and painting.

TWO-BUILDING

worried that the decision came too hastily.

Kevin Pearsall made an initial motion that the district delay moving to a two-building system until the 2014-2015 school year, and that the district move out of the elementary building. Catt agreed.

"It's imperative that we do move to that two-building option in 2014-2015," said Catt. "We need to immediately start forming a transition plan implementation committee far in advance of the 2014-2015 school year. The middle school and elementary staff should be included in the process, as should the parents of sixth and seventh graders."

Catt and Pearsall were also concerned with the costs of closing the middle school versus the costs of closing the elementary school, and how each building could best be put to use. But board secretary and treasurer Valerie Snyder pointed out that a strategic plan recommended the closing of the middle school should the district decide to close a building.

The strategic plan took into consideration the number and size of classrooms. The elementary school's 23 classrooms, each about 1,200 square feet, are better suited for students than the middle school's 14 classrooms that range in size from 800-1,000 square feet, contended Snyder.

"All of our classrooms at the elementary have sinks. That's not true here (in the middle school). We can't expect K-2 students in particular to be running down the hall to go to the bathroom. When those kids need to go, they need to go," she said. "This isn't a fly-by-night decision. It isn't something we've thrown together in a couple of weeks. This is something our administrative team has been working on for the past six months, in particular the two plans that were presented last meeting. But more importantly, we've been working on this as a district for the past three years. We've been talking about the need for this, that this day would some day come."

Pearsall's motion to delay the consolidation failed 4-3, with board trustee Dick Joseph, president John McLean, trustee Nancy Allison and Snyder voting against and with trustee Mike Pearsall, Kevin Pearsall and Catt voting in favor.

In order to take advantage of one of the closed buildings, Gendron met with Baker College on Tuesday to discuss the possibility of college classes being held in the classrooms.

"We'll be looking at the early-college model for high school students, as well as other partnerships," Gendron said.

Currently, high school students can take what's called "direct credit classes," for which they earn college credits through classes taught by their high school teachers. Developing a partnership with Baker College could expand those college class offerings, with Baker renting rooms from the building that will be vacated by either middle school or elementary school students. Gendron said the talks came about because he sits on a board with Baker College representatives.

"It's kind of a natural fit," said Gendron.

The program could potentially call for college instructors to teach those direct credit classes, or a combination of high school and college instructors.

The space may also be used for culinary, cosmetology or other career technical education curriculum.

"It's very, very early in the decision-making process," said Gendron.

The board is scheduled to meet next for its regular board meeting at 6 p.m. Monday, April 15, at the middle school.

nology committee, which is overseeing the district's initiative to put an iPad into the hands of each of its students.

"We met all summer, over and over," said Peterson of her fellow committee members, third-grade teachers Cathy Silberhorn, Sara Cowan and Julie McLean and sixth-grade teachers Sara Muladore and Michelle Bowen. "We're seeing benefits we never thought about."

Namely, said Peterson, the district won't have to buy toner, can cut down on its paper usage, and Peterson can easily answer or edit students' emailed questions and projects.

"This is a huge cost savings to the district in addition to students being able to stay productive when they or the teacher is absent," she said.

The district began purchasing iPads just before the 2012-2013 school year using money from a technology and transportation bond approved by voters in 2008. But the district also soon realized it would have to start cinching its belt — quickly and tightly — to avoid a fund balance in the red. The district effectively froze all spending for the remainder of the year and the school board voted to consolidate the district into two buildings.

Peterson immediately saw a benefit in the iPad in being able to distribute reading materials through an online file-sharing website called DropBox. Peterson can upload a story or article for her students to read and discuss. The students can access the story and print it or read it on their iPads. They can't lose the story — the electronic version lives in Peterson's class's DropBox folder. They also don't need to print the story — they can just open the PDF file on their iPads.

In a visually-oriented lesson such as geometry, students can use another application to take notes on a math problem, said Peterson. They can hit a record option, and record the teacher talking through the problem as the student is taking notes. That way, the student can hear the discussion again at home if he or she needs to revisit the lesson.

> "This is a huge cost savings to the district in addition to students being able to stay productive when they or the teacher is absent."
> — Keren Peterson, Charlevoix High School English teacher

Peterson says she has heard concern that the iPads will simply saturate students with more screen time. But, she said that's already happened.

"How many kids have phones and play video games?" she said. "What we're trying to do is show them how to use this technology in a different way."

As she said this, she was surrounded by clusters of her 10th-grade English students. The students had been instructed to put together a video public service announcement. The announcement must use rhetorical strategies to convince its audience — the students' classmates and Peterson — of its message.

Before, if Peterson wanted her students to make a video, she would have to schedule time in the library — blocking out the use of the library for any other students. She would have to have the groups of students cluster around desktop computers, and she would have to spend a good portion of time instructing students how to use the computer's software to edit movies.

"It would take me a week or longer," she said.

With the iPads, the students can research, document and make the film project all at their desks, and they busily collaborated, putting together their films. Some students sketched out their announcement video. Others took to the hallways to act out their film.

For sophomore Amber Way, the benefit of her iPad is pretty basic.

Too, her teachers use applications that demonstrate what the teachers are trying to impart.

"I've heard of one app that allows you to (simulate) surgery on knees," said Amber. "It helps teachers and helps kids actually be doing it."

But helping the district's financial situation could be a grant that district technology coordinator Scott Mays garnered in January. The Technology Readiness Infrastructure Grant totaled $10,500 that the district could apply toward purchasing the devices.

Also, the district will participate in state-wide negotiating on pricing for device purposes, wrote Mays in an email, potentially receiving a refund of up to $100 per device for orders placed in June and July. It expects to purchase 600 more devices, possibly saving the district $6000.

Some of the devices' unexpected benefits, such as constant connection, have potential drawbacks for teachers like Peterson. Peterson corrects papers as they roll in throughout the evening. Students can address comments she has made on their papers and resubmit them.

But lest you think Peterson is a fresh-out-of-school teacher ready to burn the candle at both ends, rest assured. Peterson has taught at the school for 18 years. She just thinks it's fair to put the same amount of time into her job that her job asks of her students.

"If we want the kids to be learning 24/7," she said. "we also have to put in the extra time."

Rayders set sights on breaking district title drought

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

DREW KOCHANNY/NEWS-REVIEW

A quarter century without a district baseball title is long enough.

But as they prepare for the coming season, Charlevoix Rayder varsity baseball coach Allen Telgenhof and his team have their sight set on remedying that.

"Our major goal for the season is to win a district championship," Telgenhof said. "We host (the district tournament) this year and we haven't won a district since 1988, so it'd be nice to break that drought on our field on the 25th anniversary."

The Rayders, who went 17-17 last year (8-6 in the Lake Michigan Conference) lost four starters to graduation. Among those losses were pitching ace Coby Herriman, a three-time all-district and two-time all-conference selection who holds the school's record for single season and career strikeouts. Herriman is now attending and pitching at Kalamazoo Valley Community College. The Rayders also lost Andrew Potter, a two-time all-conference and all-district player.

But Telgenhof is confident that the remaining group of varsity veterans and some young upstart talent will have a good chance for success.

"We have one of our most talented teams from top to bottom in years. We have all-conference and all-district centerfielder/pitcher senior Tommy Zipp returning for us and he will key our offense.

Zipp led the rayders on offense last year with 28 RBI and a .313 batting average.

The Rayders also have a solid nucleus of returning players including three players who received honorable mention all-conference honors: junior utility man Luke Klinger who led the team with a .518 on base average; junior shortstop/pitcher Shane Sutherland who had 17 RBI's in 2012; and sophomore pitcher/infielder Nate Moon who was 2-0 on the mound and hit .278 with 17 runs scored and 17 RBIs as a freshman.

Other returning starters are sophomore catcher Will Telgenhof and sophomore firstbaseman/outfielder Noah Certa. Heading into the season, senior Tag McCreadie looks to be the starting secondbaseman, Telgenhof said.

Telgenhof said he expects one of this team's strengths will be consistency at every position, both at the plate and in the field.

"We have 13 kids who are very talented and just need experience at the varsity level. We should be very strong defensively and be decent at the plate. Pitching will determine how far we go. It will be very difficult to replace Coby and Andrew who have been our No. 1 and No. 2 guys for a few years now," he said.

Telgenhof noted that his pitching staff will need to step up to replace those graduation losses.

"I anticipate that Zipp, Sutherland and Moon will throw the majority of the innings, but juniors Eckhardt and J.J. Bottomley and sophomore KeNen Borths will figure in the mix. We have excellent depth with eight guys who can pitch at the varsity level but we don't have a clear 1 and 2 heading in," he said.

.The coach said he's the team's two freshmen, Hunter Cox and Austin Putman. He called both "very solid players who we're hoping will earn significant playing time."

"One of the keys will be how they adjust to moving to the outfield because we have so many returning players in the infield. They have big shoes to fill in the outfield to replace Isaac Klooster and Morgan Stewart who were three-year starters out there. They will battle junior Logan Eckhardt and Jared Cole for playing time."

For now, the Rayders, like most spring sport athletes, are just eager for the weather to break so they can get out of the gym and on onto the field.

"The weather has depressed the players and coaching staff and, like most teams, we're itching to get outside."

The Rayders will play a scrimmage at Clio on April 5 and open at Birch Run on April 6, which may be the first time the team gets outside this year.

City welcomes Wilkin as new recreation director

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Wilkin

After eight months of searching far and wide to find the right person to fill the vacancy in the Charlevoix recreation department director's post, city manager Rob Strachel ended up not needing to going very far to find the right person to fill the position.

Charlevoix's own Amanda Wilkin took over the part-time position about two weeks ago.

If Wilkin's name and face are familiar, that's probably because for the past two years she has served as the director of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau. In that position, (which is also part-time) Wilkin's job is to head-up an organization, that, using money derived from a fee charged on hotel room rates, works to draw more overnight visitors to the area through various marketing programs.

While this job might not seem like an obvious training ground for someone to take over heading up a city recreation department, Wilkin's summer work experience while in high school and college certainly was.

During those years, Wilkin, now 28, spent eight summers working in the parks and recreation field in the Clarkston area. Wilkin started out as a lifeguard and worked her way up through the ranks and eventually managed a team of 10 lifeguards.

Although managing recreational leagues will be a new experience for Wilkin she said many longtime members of those groups in Charlevoix have already contacted her and offered their support in getting her up to speed.

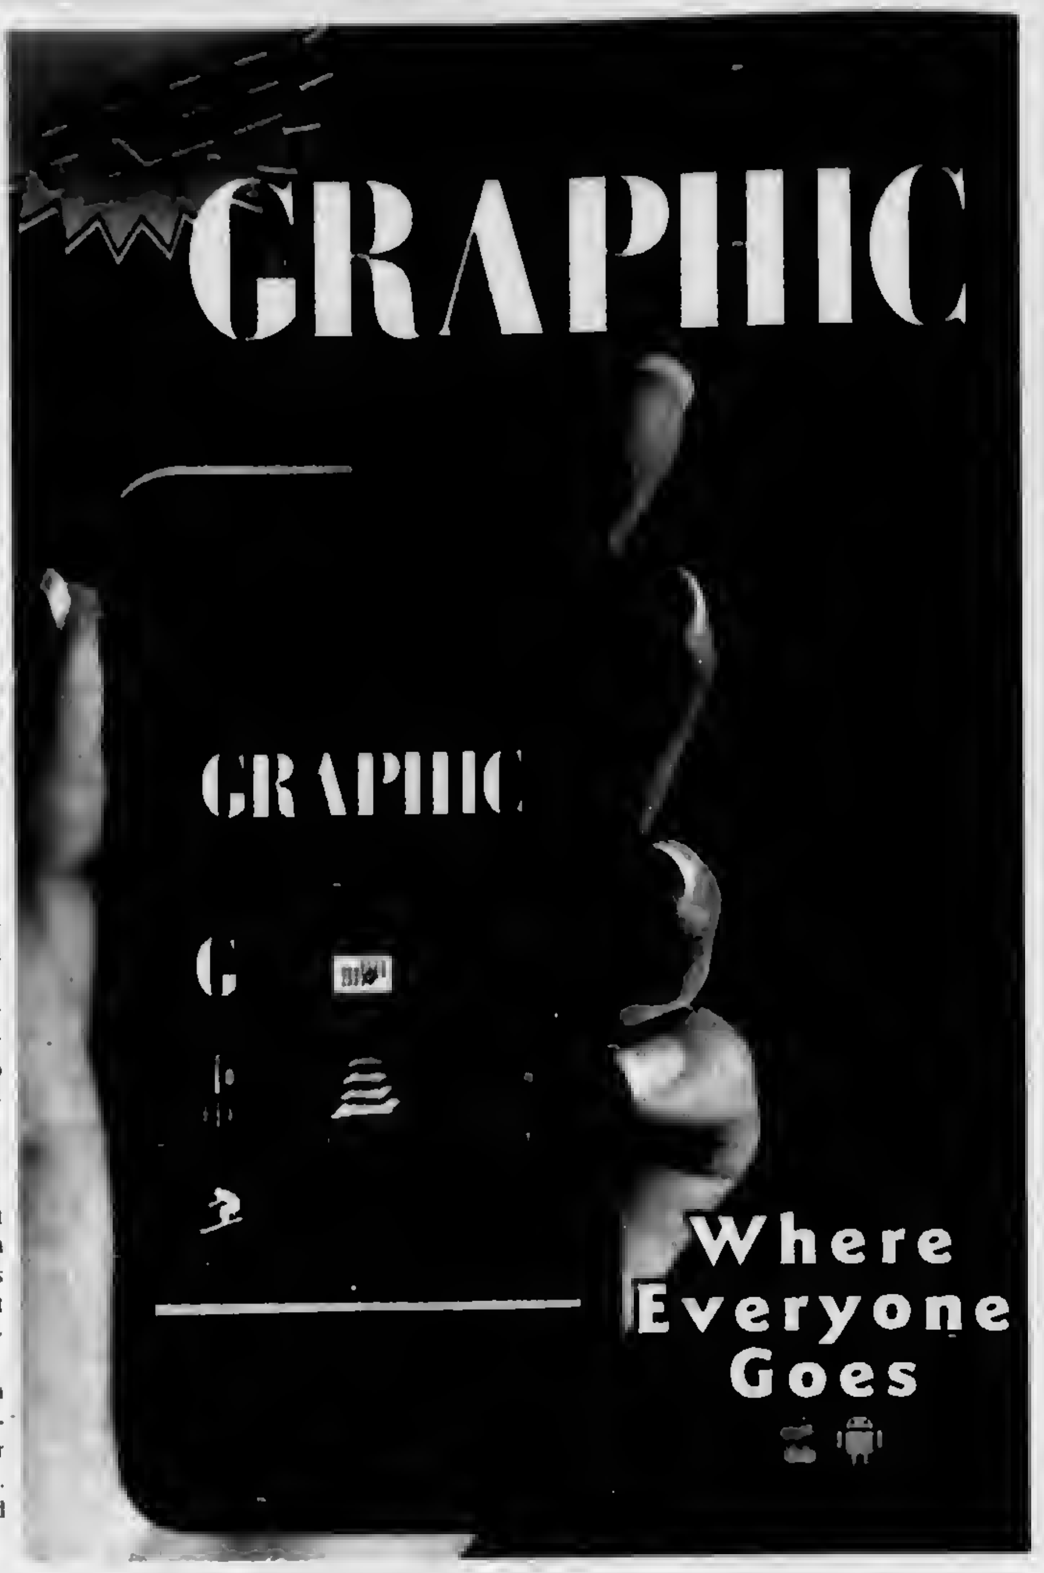
Commenting on Wilkin's hiring, Strachel noted, "We are truly excited to have Amanda join our team and think she is a great fit for our organization. Amanda brings a wealth of experience in recreational program development and has extensive marketing skills in social media assisting the city in promoting the many programs the city has to offer. She truly sees the importance of recreation in building strong, healthy communities and is enthusiastic about expanding recreational programs in the city of Charlevoix."

Wilkin said her goals for her first year in the position is to "stabilize" the existing programs, and perhaps revive some previous programs that may have faded away over the years. Then in following years she wants to look at possibly expanding the department's offerings as community interest may dictate.

She said another priority will be looking for ways to improve the revenue the city draws from its Mount McSauba and Camp McSauba programs.

Wilkin also wants get the department's planning more organized and she wants to make city recreation programs more visible online, especially on social media. She's already set up a Facebook page for the department that she plans to use as a communication tool and she's already set the date for next year's end-of-winter Winterfest at Mount McSauha.

For more information on Charlevoix recreation programs call (231) 547-3253 or visit www.cityofcharlevoix.org and click on the parks and recreation link.



Go Rayders!

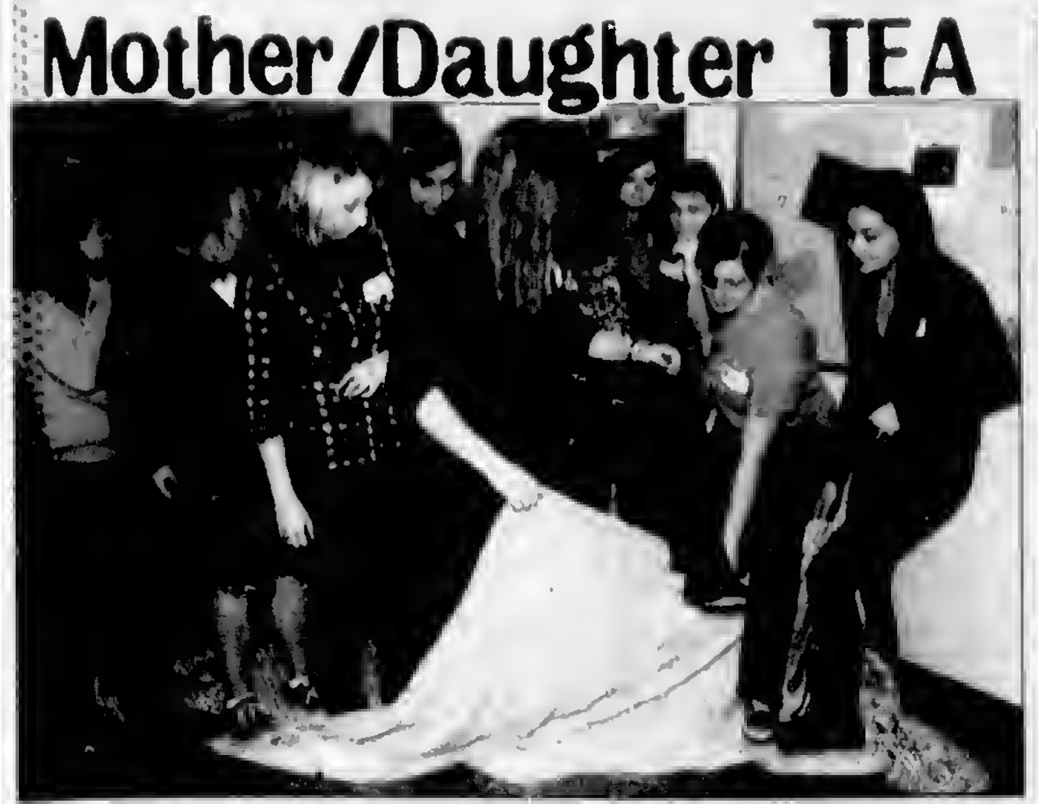
Mother/Daughter TEA



A group of girls from Charlevoix and Ellsworth high schools try to figure out how they are going to turn a bed sheet over while none of the group members step off of the sheet during a problem-solving group exercise at Charlevoix High School Wednesday. The group was participating in Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District's Mother-Daughter TEA (Technology Engineering Aptitude) program, designed to give girls a chance to see what engineers do and to explore the vast number of fields that use engineering. The presenters of the day were from Ferris State University's School of Engineering and Computing Technology.

June expedition could answer: Is it Le Griffon?

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

If all the dominos continue to fall into place, by the end of this year Great Lakes underwater explorer and part-time Charlevoix resident Steve Libert and his team may know if the shipwreck they've found in northern Lake Michigan, is, in fact, the long lost French vessel Le Griffon.

Libert's decades-long quest passed a major milestone earlier this week when his company, Great Lake Exploration Group, was able to make all the necessary arrangements for its next, perhaps definitive expedition to the wreck site in June.

Speaking to the Courier Wednesday, Libert said plans call for his crew to be joined by a team of some of the world's top underwater archeological experts — including some from France. He said the team plans to make additional scans to pinpoint locations where they will conduct three small test excavations. They hope the excavations will uncover artifacts at the site that will support that conclusion that the ship is Le Griffon.

The hope, Libert said, is that the team will uncover enough evidence that will warrant a full excavation of the site later in the year. Ultimately, Libert said, if the wreck is confirmed to be Le Griffon, the team will determine if all or part of the wreck can be raised and preserved.

Libert said the team hopes to find some artifacts, such as a cannon with a King Louis XIV insignia on it, or other items that can be tied to the ship. But, he said, making those connections won't be easy.

"We won't find pottery with 'Le Griffon' written on it like the Titanic," Libert said.

He said the June expedition could take anywhere from five to 12 days, depending on weather and other factors. If the decision is made to do a full excavation, he expects the team would move quickly to do the work in order to protect the site from would-be scavengers and other possible risks.

As in the past, Libert hopes to use Charlevoix — which he and wife, Kathie, plan soon make their year-round home — as the expedition's home port. Libert said he'd love to someday see Charlevoix become a home for a museum for the ship and/or its Treatment plant overhaul to be at least $5.7 million

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Thanks to regulation changes from the Department of Environmental Quality, the city of Charlevoix will have to overhaul its wastewater treatment plant in order to comply with new treatment standards within the next two years — and the estimated costs begin at $5.7 million.

Mark Prein with engineering firm Prein & Newhoff presented two major parts of its evaluation of the treatment plant to the Charlevoix city council at its regular meeting Monday, April 1.

Now, because of the new regulations, the city will have to limit the amount of ammonia it releases beginning Oct. 1, 2014. Even more restrictive limits will be in place by December 2015.

Part of the problem is that the plant uses water from Lake Michigan to treat wastewater. During the winter, the water is too cold for the biological mechanisms that break down ammonia to work.

Also, because the plant was constructed in 1972, some of its equipment must be modernized and upgraded to meet design and safety standards, according to the review presented to council.

Any way the city slices it, upgrades will not be cheap.

"There are $5.7 million in basic improvements needed at the plant," said Prein. "It's a significant investment."

A second option includes basic improvements, and adds upping the biological content in aeration tanks that would help eat away the ammonia, letting the city comply with the DEQ standards. That option would cost the city $8.7 million.

A third option would cost $11 million, and could update the plant for the next few decades, said Prein. Called the "membrane bio-reactor," this option would use microfiltration membranes to replace the current tanks, in which solids settle out of wastewater.

But, said city manager Rob Straebel, the city council and staff will consider each option carefully to make sure it chooses an affordable option.

In order to pay for the upgrades and overhaul, the city will have to raise

Return of ferry delayed

IRONTON — The Ironton Ferry is currently sitting on dry land in Boyne City as the historic craft is refurbished and its wheelhouse and engine are replaced.

The ferry isn't expected to be back in the water until at least mid-May, a month later than it normally begins transporting passengers back and forth between Ironton and Boyne City.

Officials sprung on the opportunity to make the major changes to the vessel this year, since the ferry was to be out of the water anyway for its five-year inspection.

They'd hoped the work would be finished by April, but no such luck.

"These things are enormously complicated," said Richard Gillespie, a member of the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority who spearheaded the project.

Council discusses policy for donations

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council reviewed a policy that would provide it with guidelines regarding what kind of donations it would accept in order to avoid problems such as the controversy that boiled over the proposed fireplace in Charlevoix's East Park.

The policy specifically addressed ongoing costs of a donation, as residents of Charlevoix objected to the yearly cost, including maintenance and a gas usage, of the fireplace. With the policy, donators of gifts to the city could be responsible to pay for any ongoing maintenance or operation costs of a donation.

Some Charlevoix residents were on hand to give their input regarding the policy.

Jodi Bingham, owner of the store Ga Ga For Kids in Charlevoix, request-

Policy highlights

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel helped draft a policy that considers donations to the city.

Some of the highlights include the following:

- When in the city's best interest, the city reserves the right to restore, relocate, remove or relinquish gifts that are no longer suited for their original purpose.
- Ongoing maintenance and operational costs may need to be covered by outside sources, depending upon council's decision.
- There are guidelines established for each donation that council may choose to use when deciding merits of each donation element.
- Acknowledgements and plaques should be tasteful and subtle

Orchestra presents free concert

COURTESY PHOTO

Performers for the Great Lakes Chamber Orcheatra's upcoming Sunday Series performance in Charlevoix will include (from left) Carl Hawkins, Ed Bahr, Ev Wujcik, Beverly Isenbarger and David Pugh. The "Brass-mania" concert begins at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 14, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. Orchestra members will be joined by the Castle Brass Quintet and Carl Hawkina in a program featuring duos, trios and quintets.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra Sunday Series will present a chamber music concert titled "Brass-mania" at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 14, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Orchestra members Vern Campbell, trumpet, Beverly Isenbarger, horn, and Edward R. Bahr, trombone, will be joined by members of the Castle Brass Quintet and Carl Hawkins in a program featuring duos, trios and quintets.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra trio will perform Poulenc's Sonata (1922) and a Suite of Wisconsin Folk Music arranged by Conrad DeJong. Included in the suite are the "Lumberman Dance Tune" and the "Pig Schottische."

The Castle Quintet will play Franckenpohl's Brass Quintet and Robert Nagel's "This Old Man" March. Members of the quintet are Ev Wujcik and David Pugh, trumpets; Beverly Isenbarger, horn; Edward R. Bahr, trombone; and Gary Stutzman, tuba.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra Sunday Series provides the community the opportunity to experience an intimate musical event. Chamber music has a long history of musicians gathering to play and sing for one another and a group of good friends. The Sunday Series of programs is presented free of charge with the support of the Roger and Peggy Dicken Schwer Fund administered by the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

"Please join us in enjoying the brilliance of brass ensemble music," said Nancy Koski, executive director of the orchestra.

Support for the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, Meijer, and more than 300 individual patrons of the arts. Lake protection initiative launched

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Dan Mishler holds up a green burgee with the words "Lake Guardian" on it.

"We hope that this summer, when people ride their boats along the shoreline area, they will see these increasingly on dock posts," he said.

The burgees are one element of a lake guardian program the Lake Charlevoix Association is introducing for the first time this spring.

Waterfront property owners, businesses that may have an impact on the watershed and anyone else interested in protecting and preserving Lake Charlevoix are encouraged to sign up for the program, said Mishler.

He and fellow Lake Charlevoix Association member Joe Kimmell spoke with the Petoskey News-Review about what it means to be a lake guardian on Monday.

He moved north from an area of Indiana where many lakes are full of hard-to-eradicate weeds from pollution and cannot support healthy fish populations, said Kimmell.

"(Lake Charlevoix) still has a beautiful, predominantly natural shoreline, with trees, hills ... And it can easily be protected. The water quality is very clear, deep ... The lake itself is healthy," he said.

"It's pristine really, the water quality is outstanding," Mishler interjected.

"What we hope to raise awareness of is not only how nice it is, but how fragile it is," continued Kimmell. "When problems start occurring, it's harder to correct problems when they've gotten away from you instead of preventing problems from happening to begin with."

The program is fairly simple.

There are pledges available on the Lake Charlevoix Association website that those interested in participating can sign. By signing, the individual or business is promising to practice certain lawn care and land management practices.

Those participants are then encouraged to fly the burgee on their dock, put a bumper sticker on their car or place a sticker in their store window to let others know they are a part of the program.

Basically, a homeowner will agree to limit or eliminate chemical usage, maintain septic areas, protect, maintain or restore greenbelt buffer zones and avoid actions which may create harmful water flow into the lake.

Those businesses whose activities do not impact the watershed directly will be asked to display a window decal showing their support for the principles of the program.

A critical part of the program, according to Mishler, will be recruiting businesses whose activities do directly affect the watershed and water flow to the lake to join the effort.

"Home builders, landscapers, architects, lawn care companies, chemical and fertilizer providers and others can have a major impact on protecting our lake in the manner they choose to provide their services," he said.

These businesses will be recruited to join in the association's efforts by agreeing to a set of principles in the conduct of their business. The principles are designed to be flexible to allow a business to deal with the varying demands of clients and customers, while evidencing a sincere commitment to the philosophy of the lake guardian program, he explained.

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW

Dan Mishler (left) and Joe Kimmell, of the Lake Charlevoix Association, hold up a burgee that may become a familiar sight on docks along the shore of the lake this summer. The burgee will be given to participants of the association's lake guardian program.

All business lake guardians will be listed on the association's website, and the impact businesses will be listed by business category, with links to their websites. An initial list is already available of businesses that have signed on so far.

"Central to the protection of the water quality is avoiding unnecessary runoff of chemicals, fertilizers, yard waste and storm runoff which will enter the lake, affecting the water where we swim, boat and play," Kimmell said.

"This goes right with our mission," added Mishler. "To protect and preserve the natural beauty and quality of Lake Charlevoix."

More information on the guardian program is available at www.lakecharlevoixassociation.org.

Governor signs bill approving money for Sea-Gull purchase

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder last week signed a bill that will provide Hayes Township with up to $3.375 million toward the purchase of the former Camp Sea-Gull property on Lake Charlevoix.

The 20-acre property, which was home to an all-girls summer camp for many years, has 1,400 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline, and was valued by a township-commissioned appraisal at $4.5 million. Funding from Michigan's Natural Resources Trust Fund would cover $3,375,000 of the cost. The remaining $1,125,000 has been raised by the township through $500,000 in township general fund money and $625,000 in donations and pledges.

Hayes Township officials plan to turn the former camp property into a township park.

Township clerk Marlene Golovich said the approval of the funding is a major milestone for the park project, but there are still some significant hurdles to be cleared.

She said the next step in the process involves the township and state officials signing a contract for the grant. Then the state will commission two separate appraisals of the property and officials will then meet to determine, based on the appraisals, what they believe the fair market value of the property is. The amount the state will ultimately pay for the grant will be based upon 75 percent of that value, but in no case will it exceed the original $3.375 million approved in the bill. Once that process is complete, the township will enter negotiations with the owners in hopes of agreeing on a sale price.

Golovich said these steps could take several months, but she is hopeful the township can complete the purchase of the property later this year. If that happens, Golovich said she'd like to see the property opened up for the public to enjoy almost immediately.

In earlier discussions the township board has considered making improvements to the property to include a boat launch, picnic areas and other amenities.

But, Golovich said, the property is such a gem, she would like to see the public able to enjoy it as soon as possible.

The same bill also included money to assist Charlevoix County in purchasing land to expand Whiting Park by 72.4 acres.

The property shares 2,700 feet with the Whiting Park property, and would increase the park to 248 acres.

The total cost of the property is $306,000. The amount the state may match is $214,200, said Ross Maxwell, parks and recreation director, and Charlevoix County agreed to match $91,800.

The bill includes $23.5 million for 22 land acquisition projects and 54 land development projects. The funding comes from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, which provides grant money to local units of government and the Department of Natural Resources for the purchase of land for outdoor recreation and protection of natural resources. The money in the fund comes from the proceeds of the sale of mineral rights on state land.

The bill also includes the $21 million for 49 emergency dredging projects for public access boating sites, as proposed in Snyder's 2013 budget.

First Beaver Island Ferry run delayed a day by ice

Season's first run was expected to be Thursday

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Perhaps appropriated for this year's slow-to-arrive spring in Northern Michigan, one of the most awaited signs of the season, the year's first arrival of the Beaver Island Ferry the Emerald Isle in Charlevoix, was delayed a day by ice on Lake Michigan.

Officials with the Beaver Island Boat Company had originally planned for the ferry's first crossing from the island to take place, Wednesday. However, U.S. Coast Guard crews were delayed in their arrival to break up the ice in St. James Bay.

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Biscayne Bay began conducting ice breaking operations in the bay starting at around 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, and Beaver Island Boat Company officials were expecting the first voyage of the Emerald Isle to take place Thursday.

The boat's departure was again delayed on Thursday because the ice broken up the day before blew back into the bay over night.

At press time Thursday, boat company officials were hopeful that the Emerald Isle could depart from the Island at about 11 a.m and arriv in Charlevoix at around 1 p.m.

We all need a little help with life once in a while

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

We could all use another wife.

That statement is a bit odd now that I see this in print, but how many times have some of us wished this in secret. There is never enough time to do meal planning, care-giving, laundry, errands in general. When I was in my 30s I used to say I was going to change my name from Mom to a new name each week. My guess is that things haven't changed too much for our young moms. At least if they become grandma's it's a bit easier to respond because spending time with grandkids may not be an everyday occurrence.

When I mention this thought with other women they are quick to reply with, "Yes, I could use a wife/secretary/assistant/(I'll let you fill in the blank). This wife would be a companion to share our thoughts, who would listen instead of trying to figure us out, and act as an assistant to pick up the loose ends. My male readers may respond to this statement regarding the value of having another wife with a different inflection in their voice: "Yes, another wife would be nice." Their view on this will differ a bit from ours too. Thoughts on this may include but are not limited to: can she cook, is she pretty, is she young and can she keep her thoughts to herself. (Please note. This is personal research not male bashing.)

I was reminded of the need of extra hands in the household when I spoke with a woman who is finishing up her college degree now that her children are grown. The stress of keeping a family on course and meeting everyone's needs brought on added stress. Many women are furthering their education after their children have reached an age they feel their children are self-sufficient. This population wants to continue where they left off with their schooling prior to raising a family. In some scenarios there is a definite need to re-learn or re-educate because of a husband's job loss or maybe her position at work is being phased out. With the availability of classes on-line and satellite classes offered closer to home attending some type of coursework is available but not without the encumbrance of things running smoothly.

Weekends begin to feel shorter when household tasks take over. Remembering those days of my past I want to remind parents that it is OK to share the task of child rearing, grocery shopping, lawn care and taking out the trash or recycling. When our children are old enough to understand they may be encouraged to help as well: even if it means a bribe occasionally. We all get our work done when there is a reward at the end whether its intrinsic such as "I feel good to be able to relax in my clean room" or "now I can go outside and play" to something extrinsic as money saved or earned for something special.

Most of us have no regrets about becoming a wife, mom or grandma, but there are days where you need to be just you and take time for yourself. My thought on this is to say "no" occasionally and realize that if you are feeling burdened or overwhelmed, you may have been the one that allowed this to happen.

When I listen to a woman who feels unappreciated, I reflect on what's been said and then remind her that no one changes their behavior unless you change yours. Catering to others always results in more expectations from others. Having realistic expectations of others and the belief in delegating results in what you would like to see happen. Being a woman in any age group living any lifestyle she has chosen will find days that are overwhelming. When you feel like this, remember to step back, take a breath and realize you are not alone and there are many hands to help but it's good to know whose hands you can count on besides your own.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

In 1970, it was becoming too evident that the Weathervane Inn building stood in danger of sliding into the Pine River Channel. A Grand Rapids engineer predicted that because of the years of erosion that had weakend the unprotected embankment below the building, it was only a matter of time before catastrophe happened. The owners, plus builder Earl Young who still maintained an office on the lower level, could not convince the Army Corps of Engineers that it was the government's responsibility to install and maintain revetments on both sides of the entire channel. The Corps told them that it was not responsible for revetment in front of commercial property, and if the Weathervane did collapse, the owners would be held responsible for removing the tons of debris. Then came the monster three-day storm of November that year, which washed out almost everything and left the building perilously close to the water. An emergency shipment of crushed rock was barged in in December to try to fill the gaps. Finally the Corps relented. A new revetment from the bridge out to the beginning of the north pier was installed, and the Weathervane was saved.

Recyclers still must separate material

Charlevoix County Maintenance Director Frank Shaler wants to remind county residents that recyclable materials must still be separated before being left at drop-off sites.

The county may move to a single-stream recycling policy once processing services are transferred from Emmet County Recycling to American Waste on or after June 1. But, until that change occurs, separating materials is still very important, Shaler said.

"We've found some large amounts of plastic in the paper recycling bins" since the public learned that the county may switch to a system that would not involve separating materials, he said. County employees must then fish the materials that don't belong out of bins and place them in the correct location.

The county will notify residents whenever a change occurs to its recycling program.

NCMC to raise tuition

Tuition rates will be going up this year at North Central Michigan College.

Board member John Fought presented the recommendations of tuition and room rate hikes from the financial subcommittee to the board. The board voted unanimously to approve the proposal at a meeting on Tuesday.

Starting Summer 2013, the price in-district students pay per contact hour will increase $9.50 to $87.

The tuition per contact hour for students who live outside the district will increase $15.75 to $143.75.

Out-of-state students will see an increase of $20.50 to $185.50 per contact hour.

In-district students pay less tuition, because Emmet County residents pay taxes that support the college. There is also a $1 per student fee that is designated for student success initiatives such as developmental class innovations and additional support services.

"We could have added this dollar into the tuition," North Central Michigan College President Cameron Brunet-Koch said. "But, we wanted to make a statement that the dollar is only to be used for student success initiatives."

Room costs will also increase to $2,375 per semester for a single room and $1,775 for a double.

Brunet-Koch put the tuition increase into context saying North Central Michigan College has had the lowest tuition rate for several years when compared to eight similar colleges, and even with the increase it will probably remain the lowest or near the bottom. Though the state appropriation is expected to increase, the property tax revenues will decrease leaving a projected $20,000 dollar shortfall.

"Two years ago we cut $400,000. Last year we cut $500,000. We will still need to make cuts even with the tuition increase. There was no way to cut our way out." Brunet-Koch said. "Our board is very respectful of students so this was a very difficult decision."

Brunet-Koch and Fought said that despite further cuts in some places, the board hoped to be able to re-instate two of the four full-time faculty positions that were not filled this school year.

They would also like to replace the marketing position that was not filled, but Brunet-Koch wants to wait to see the actual fall enrollment numbers come in before committing to the marketing position.

The board makes the tuition decision in March so that students will know what their expenses will be.

New owners land on The Flight Deck

JL SUMPTER
Northern Michigan Review

The Flight Deck is running strong with new owners and a freshened look.

Owners Jamie Dixon and Bobby Roloff took over the bar/restaurant/bowling alley in September 2012, and look to bring back its tradition with renovations such as an updated interior.

"We offer the community of all ages a chance to enjoy the fun the Flight Deck has to offer," Dixon said.

The owners worked to make it a place tailored to family and friends. But make no mistake, the nightlife has not disappeared.

The Flight Deck has karaoke on Fridays and live entertainment on Saturday nights.

Dixon adds, "We offer a great place to hold birthday parties and bowling leagues."

The co-owner encourages people to take advantage of these opportunities by contacting The Flight Deck at (231) 547-2230

The Flight Deck offers a wide variety of food, ranging from appetizers and salads to wraps and burgers. The entire menu is available for both dine-in and carry-out service.

During the winter months, The Flight Deck offers easy access for snowmobilers with its location along the Jordan Valley snowmobile trail and large parking lot. In summer, it can serve as a destination for motorcyclists, bikers, and others enjoying the north.

The Flight Deck is open 11 a.m.-9 p.m. Sundays, 3 p.m.-9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, 11 a.m.-9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 11 a.m.-2 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

The Flight Deck is located at 6966 U.S. 31 South, Charlevoix. People can also find The Flight Deck on Facebook, and view its website at www.charlevoixflightdeck.com.

The newly-acquired Little Traverse Conservancy Darnton Family Nature Preserve has a mix of old hay fields, northern hardwood forest, pine plantations and conifer swamp wetlands surrounding Porter Creek, a tributary to Lake Charlevoix.

Conservancy acquires new preserve property

The Little Traverse Conservancy announced a new addition to its land catalogue last week, according to a news release from the organization.

The property, a 200-acre parcel called the Darnton Family Nature Preserve, is in Charlevoix County, within the Lake Charlevoix watershed. The piece had its beginnings as vacation property purchased by a couple, Arthur and Pauline Keeler, in 1968. The property changed hands with the Keelers' grandson Jeff Knaggs and wife Ruth Hufnagle purchasing the land in the 1990s.

The property is near Behling and Dyer roads in Wilson Township. It covers a mix of hay fields, northern hardwood forests, pine plantations and conifer swamps surrounding Porter Creek, a tributary to Lake Charlevoix, said the release.

Since 1970, stated the release, the Knaggs-Hufnagle family worked with local agencies to enroll the land into conservation programs. The land was also planted with trees for wind breaks, erosion control and food for wildlife.

"What wove all of these efforts together were the fun times family and friends enjoyed on the property," said Knaggs.

When it came time to consider selling the land, Knaggs contacted the conservancy to explore what options might exist.

"Over the past four years, Jeff really stuck with us to find the right solution so that the land could ultimately remain in the natural state that his family and the farming families before them had treasured," said Ty Ratliff, land protection specialist for the conservancy.

The purchase of the preserve was made possible with funding from the Taylor Foundation, the J.A. Woollam Foundation and support from the greater Darnton family. The preserve is named in honor of the Darnton family, longtime summer residents of the Lake Charlevoix area.

Conservancy staff will be assessing the property for a trail system in collaboration with local stakeholder groups.

Lions to help promote organ donation

On Tuesday, April 9, the Michigan Secretary of State offices are joining with the agency's partners at Gift of Life and the Michigan Eye Bank to encourage residents to get a heart (on their driver's license) by adding their name to the Michigan Organ Donor Registry.

Locally on that day, the Charlevoix Lions Club is joining with the Michigan Secretary of State office, located on M-66 in Charlevoix, to promote National Donate Life Month. Lions Club members will be on hand at the Charlevoix office that day to help bring awareness to the effort.

Event organizers said that one donor can bring the gift of sight, life, and mobility to nearly 50 people. All people are eligible to sign up, regardless of age or medical condition. Everyone is evaluated at the time of death based on the needs at that time.

Anyone who wishes to sign up for the Michigan Organ Donor Registry program may do so year-round, at any Michigan Secretary of State office. Residents may also sign up by accessing any of three websites: MichiganEyeBank.org, GiftOfLifeMichigan.org, or Michigan.gov/sos, then click on the sign-up link.

The registry is confidential and is maintained and accessed by Gift of Life Michigan to assist hospitals in the recovery and transplantation of organs and tissues. There is no cost to the donor or the donor's family.

Northwest Academy band to perform in D.C.

The Northwest Academy Advanced Band was recently invited to play at the National Alliance of Public Charter Schools Conference in Washington D.C. in Juna.

The Northwest Academy Advanced Band was recently invited to perform at the National Alliance of Public Charter Schools Conference in Washington D.C. in June.

"We are very excited to have been chosen to perform at the conference since very few schools are invited to attend this way" said Dave Pugh, director of music at Northwest Academy. This is a special honor for the Northwest Academy Advanced Band because bands local to the conference are typically chosen to perform, Pugh noted.

Northwest Academy has been educating students in Charlevoix for 18 years.

Gary Stutzman, recently retired director of music at Northwest Academy said, "The NWA bands have been embraced by the students as well as the parents throughout the years. The students have worked hard on their craft and the parents, faculty, and staff have been very supportive of the many field trips and performances throughout the country. It is this continued support that has helped to make the NWA Advanced Band one of the finest small bands in the country."

In 1999, the Northwest Academy Advanced Band performed at the same National Charter School conference in Denver, Colo., and also made their first appearance at the Michigan State Band and Orchestra State Festival. This feat was accomplished within the first three years of the band's existence.

Recently the band received a first division rating at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra District Festival and is planning on attending the Michigan School Band and Orchestra State Festival in May.

Conservancy offers geocache, preserve clean-up programs

The Little Traverse Conservancy in Harbor Springs has several work and event days interspersed throughout April.

— From 10 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, April 6, join conservancy staff member Charles Dawley and members of Straits Area Geocaching for a beginner's course on geocaching.

Learn how to participate in this world wide treasure hunting game. Program leaders will explain the basics of geocaching and will help attendees discover new geocaches on the Wisser-Saworski Nature Preserve located just outside of Boyne Falls. Come prepared with appropriate outdoor clothing and sturdy footwear.

— From 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday, April 13, help the conservancy clean up the Rogers Family Homestead Preserve. The focus for the day will be to remove old farm dumps and an existing barbed wire fence so a more appropriate fence may be put into place.

There are many other tasks available for volunteers who do not wish to engage in removing farm equipment or fence work. These include tree trimming, sign replacement and post hole digging.

Come out for the day or for a few hours and enjoy a lunch along the Jordan River. Bring work gloves and a lunch. Snacks and refreshments will be provided. Contact Mike Lynch for more information at mike@landtrust.org or (231) 344-1011.

— Help the conservancy with two trail systems from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, April 20, Earth Day weekend, at the Schulz Preserve and the Taylor-Horton Creek Preserve.

Volunteers will help simplify and connect these two trail systems, and will help improve the parking area and trail signage.

In addition, volunteers will help clean up remote illegal trash piles on the east and west sides of the creek.

Be prepared with work gloves and any trail clearing tools you may have on hand – but make sure they are well-labeled with your name.

Bring a lunch and work the whole day or join the conservancy for just for a couple of hours. Snacks and drinks will be provided. Contact Cacia Lesh for more information at cacia@landtrust.org or (231) 344-1002.

Hospice offers support group

The weeks and months following the death of a loved one are very difficult. Many find comfort in being with others who have had similar experiences in an environment that is confidential, safe and supportive as we learn together how to cope with the pain and emotions of loss.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan's grief support program provides support and education to people who are grieving the loss of a loved one — a spouse, parent, child, sibling, relative, friend or companion. Meetings are led by David Behling, an experienced grief group facilitator, and include discussions of specific topics, and provide optional personal sharing opportunities in a safe and accepted atmosphere.

The next five week session begins Tuesday, April 16. The group meets from 6:30-8 p.m. each Thursday through May 14 in the community room of First Baptist church located at 06781 M-66 in Charlevoix.

It is the goal of Hospice of Northwest Michigan's grief support groups to walk with individuals and families as they journey through the pain of loss, providing emotional and personal support through the many emotions and pain they experience. Topics of the five week sessions include:

— Acknowledging the reality of the death

— Embracing the pain of the loss

— Remembering the person who died.

— Developing a new self-identity

— Searching for meaning

— Receiving ongoing support from others.

All sessions are free and you are invited to come the evening of the group although advanced registration is encouraged.

For more information or to register for the group, call (231) 547-7659.

OBITUARIES

Taylor J. Winn, 21

Taylor J. Winn, born Oct. 9, 1991, age 21-of Charlevoix passed away Sunday, March 31, 2013. He is survived by his parents, Mary Jo Winn, John (Zita) Winn; brother, Kenny Anderson; sister, Zita Anderson; grandparents, Bill and June Winn and Zita Lewis; many aunts, uncles, and cousins; and roommates at Olivia's Gift where he lived part-time.

He attended Lincoln School in Grand Rapids and Taylor School in Petoskey.

A celebration of Taylor's life is being planned for mid-summer. Memorial contributions may be made to Olivia's Gift, 5040 Cascade Road, S.E., Grand Rapids, MI 49546.

Without ever speaking a word, Taylor blessed those who knew him with unconditional love, determination and a love of the simple joys in life. The greatest lesson he taught us is that it is far more important to show how much you love someone than it is to just say it.

We will miss Taylor every day for the rest of our lives.

Frances E. Hooker, 97

Frances E. Hooker passed away in peace on March 31, 2013, having had a full and complete life for 97 years. Born of Mary and Frederick Ebel in 1915 in Manteno, Ill., her early growing-up years were in Manteno and Chicago, and she recollected with joy riding the trolley to the Cubs games during the baseball season. While attending college at Northern Illinois University (bachelor's degree in education, 1937) she met William J. Hooker. They then married and lived in Wisconsin, Indiana and Iowa prior to East Lansing, Mich., where they spent their years raising their three children.

Frances remained an avid Cubs and Tiger fan and fierce MSU basketball and Pistons fan staying up late into the evening for the final score. She was an educator her entire life, an avid reader and stayed active with her church, gardening, tennis, skiing and the outdoors. In later years she was a lover of our feathered friends and offered a varied diet for all varieties off her front deck. Her two great-grandchildren, Hannah and Taylor, have enjoyed many a raspberry with "Grandma Frannie" while watching the birds together.

She was an advocate for the environment and equal opportunities for all.

She and Bill traveled extensively and she loved new sites, foods and cultures. Charlevoix became her home in 2007 after many visits enjoying the area.

Frances was loved by friends and family for many years. She is survived by Joanne Curtis of Charlevoix, James (Lori) Hooker of Lansing, grandchildren being Scott (Robin) Curtis, Elisabeth and Patrick Hooker and Qorey Golob. She was predeceased in death by her husband, Bill, and daughter, Mary Frances Golob. A service will take place in the future. Memorials may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan or to a church or charity of your choice.

Clifford Richard Lagerman, 83

Clifford Richard Lagerman, 83, of Traverse City, died Wednesday, April 3, 2013. Born March 14, 1930, in Chicago, Ill., to Edward and Margaret (Left) Lagerman, he moved to Beaver Island in 1932. He graduated from Charlevoix High School where he was the captain of the 1948 Rayder Basketball team. Cliff served in the U.S. Air Force.

Sept. 10, 1954, he married Sally Ann Kunz in Charlevoix. They made their home in Traverse City where they owned and operated Dodgson and Cut-n-Curl Beauty Salons over fifty years. Sally preceded him in death November 2004.

In Traverse City, Cliff was a member of the Elks and Lions Clubs, and of St. Francis Church.

For the past eight years, Cliff lived in Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Cliff loved life – fishing, playing cards, golf, cooking; Monday and Thursday nights "out with the boys". A mainstay at deer camp, even though he didn't hunt. Cliff's true treasure was being with family and friends while sharing laughter and feeling the love.

Survived by his children, Blane (Jane Balmer) Lagerman of Cross Village, Shane (Susan) Lagerman of Green Bay, Wis., Peggy (Mark) Snyder of Delray Beach, Fla.; grandchildren, Samantha (Brett) Conklin, Michael Lagerman; Lanie, Linsie, and Maggie Snyder; great-grandson, John Conklin.

Cliff was preceded in death by his daughter, Pamela in 1982; his sisters, Ann, Betty Jean, Norma, Midge and Briggs; and brother, Frank.

A Rite of Christian Burial will be at noon, Saturday, April 6, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, The Rev. Matthew Wigton officiating. Visitation will be from 4-7 p.m., Friday, April 5, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where the Rosary will be recited at 7 p.m. Burial will be in Memorial Gardens in Traverse City.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Beaver Island Historical Society.

Please sign Cliff's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

DEATH NOTICES

John Delbert Belfy, 91

A funeral for John Delbert Belfy, 91, of Charlevoix, will be 10 a.m., Monday, April 15, 2013, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Matthew A. Wigton of St. Mary Catholic Church will officiate and burial will follow at St. Mary Cemetery in Charlevoix, where military honors will be presented by the Charlevoix Area Veterans. Delbert died Monday, Jan. 28, 2013, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Charles 'Chuck' Fairbanks, 79

Charles "Chuck" Fairbanks, 79, of Scottsdale, Ariz. and originally from Charlevoix died on Tuesday, April 2 in hospice care in Scottsdale.

The family is planning a funeral service in the coming days in Scottsdale. A memorial service in Michigan will be scheduled in the coming months. The family requests that in lieu of flowers, a donations be made to: Hospice of the Valley Sherman House, 5801 E. Mayo Blvd.,Phoenix AZ 85054.

When winter weather finally gives way to spring weather, the next season — road construction season — won't be far behind.

The City of Charlevoix and several other area governmental entities have numerous road projects planned for this year that may affect travel in the area in the coming months.

Charlevoix

The city of Charlevoix may have three road construction projects coming up this year.

Work that began on Clinton Street last fall will be completed. The work will be from Grant Street to Park Avenue and includes complete rehabilitation, all new water mains and services, new sanitary sewer main and services, new storm drains, new curb and gutter along with a new asphalt driving surface.

No road closures are expected during this project, except for the residences directly adjacent to the work area.

Work will begin as soon as weather permits and should be finished by Memorial Day.

New projects this year include work on Lewis Street from U.S. 31 to East Dixon Street and another project on West Garfield Street from U.S. 31 to State Street. Both projects are currently being engineered and will go out to bid soon. Depending on bid pricing and available funds, the city may complete only one of the projects, according to public works superintendent Pat Elliott.

Pending council approval, one or both projects would commence in late summer and be completed by early November. Both are similar in scope of work and are complete rehabilitation projon why there will be a delay in the boat returning to the water.

DELAY

The work that needed to be done was extensive, he said.

"I chose to take on the project because it was very apparent it needed to be done," he continued. "Although tethered to land by the cables, the vessel was in a state that required some serious repair for safety and reliability."

The engine that was replaced was inefficient and poorly installed, according to Gillespie.

"It was basically jammed into the hull space not like the original engine which actually projected up into the operator station for many years," he said. "When re-powered in 1978, an engine was placed below decks entirely and placed to the side running the propeller shafts through a belt system making it complicated."

The new engine will be self-contained in a cabinet on the deck in line with the wheelhouse feeding power through hydraulic pumps to the drive motors attached to propeller shafts on each end.

This system will be more efficient, according to Gillespie, and more environmentally friendly.

"The engine will be compliant with emissions requirements and the transmission of power will be smooth and, for the most part, much less complicated in a mechanical sense alleviating potential problems," he said.

The new wheelhouse will be to the south side of the craft, allowing easier access for vehicles pulling on and off the ferry, said Gillpesie.

And, because of the new layout and larger windows, "There will be a better overall view for the passengers and the operator," he said.

The more than 80-year-old ferry will also get new wiring and plumbing this spring.

The total cost of the project is estimated at $200,000.

More information will be forthcoming on when the ferry will begin operating again.

ed that a safeguard be put in place in the draft policy that if a donation is over $5,000, the donation would receive a public hearing before being accepted.

"When you're getting into a structure that's maybe over $10,000, $15,000, that's when it goes to public hearing," said Bingham. "But that can be in your breakdown of what your donation actually is. Which is why, before you adopt it, I'd like to see you take (the policy) one step further."

City council members liked the policy, and pointed out that the policy's flexibility allowed for city council to question projects that might not hit that $5,000 threshold.

"What I like about it was that it was flexible," said council member Jill Picha.

City manager Rob Straebel said he purposefully built the flexibility into the policy.

"I like your thinking on that, Jodi, but I'm not certain that a monetary value of a donation really drives its impact," he said. "There could be a donation that is less than $5,000 that doesn't really reach that threshold that the community might not very well like."

City attorney Jim Young said the city has strong protection for its public parks.

"In the for-what-it's-worth department, having been familiar with this city for a long time, your charter provides protection for public parks," said Young. "If it could help public acceptance of this I'm sure we can come up with some sort of criteria. Money by itself — and it could be a criteria ... but money should not be the primary factor."

If the criteria is met, a donation placed in a public park could go before a public hearing.

"That could have saved a lot of controversy," said Young. "As I look this (policy) over, I agree with everybody else. I think it's a very good first step. I think Rob did a very good job with it. ... As we look to amend it, I might want to come up with some sort of criteria, some sort of a trigger, and say, 'If (a donation) is going to go into a public park and if it meets this trigger, we're going to have a public hearing.' It could save all sorts of problems."

The policy will go back to the drawing board, and council will decide upon adopting the revised policy at its next meeting, 7 p.m. Monday, April 15, at the Charlevoix City Hall.

Those interested in viewing the draft donation acceptance policy can find it on the city of Charlevoix's Facebook page and the city of Charlevoix's website. The draft policy begins on page 109. Any written comments on the policy can be directed to Straebel at mgr@cityofcharlevoix.com or submitted to the city manager's office at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, 49720.

artifacts.

If the wreck turns out to be Le Griffon, the find would be historically significant because the ship belonged to one of the Great Lakes' earliest European explorers.

Built by the legendary French explorer, Rene-Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle, the Griffon was the first European vessel to sail the upper Great Lakes. It was intended to carry out lucrative fur-trading commerce which would support La Salle's expedition in search of the mouth of the Mississippi.

According to Libert's website, on Sept. 18, 1679, on its return maiden voyage, the Griffon, loaded with 6,000 pounds of furs, sailed out from present day Washington Harbor on Washington Island in northern Lake Michigan and was never seen again. La Salle scouted the Great Lakes for years in search of the ship's whereabouts and was heartsick at her loss. After the ship's demise, it was more than a century later before another decked ship attempted to sail on the Great Lakes. Le Griffon is one of the most sought-after shipwrecks in North America and around the world, according to a press release from Libert's group.

"A lot of people don't understand the significance of this shipwreck," Libert said. "But this had a direct bearing on the way we are as a nation today."

During an expedition in 2001, Great Lakes Exploration Group found what could be the shipwreck site of the long-lost French vessel. Shortly after the discovery — which amounted to what appears to be a ship's mast sticking out of the lake bottom — Libert became embroiled in a drawn out legal dispute with the State of Michigan and the Republic of France. But in 2010, Libert inked a deal with the state and France allowing research at the site to continue.

Additional research, including radio-carbon dating of a sample from the suspected ship's mast, sonar, magnetic and other readings have not been conclusive, but they have been consistent with other research about the ship's characteristics. Also, further information has been uncovered through French archives that will help identify the site when test excavations are done.

Recently Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder and several Michigan legislators from Northern Michigan publicly announced their support for Great Lakes Exploration's efforts to identify the shipwreck. In a special tribute, Snyder praised Great Lakes Exploration Group's dedication to preserving the cultural heritage of the Great Lakes and promoting awareness of Michigan's underwater and maritime history. The tribute was signed by Snyder and state legislators Sen. Howard Walker, Sen. Tom Casperson, Rep. Greg MacMaster, and Rep. Ed McBroom.

Congressman Dan Benishek added his support on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives. "If Le Griffon is found, not only will a centuries-long mystery be solved, but, more importantly, the Great Lakes Exploration Group will add to the historical treasure trove of our nation's earliest days of settlement."

COST

sewer rates. How much the city will raise rates will depend on which option it chooses.

"We haven't decided on which alternative we're going for, and obviously there are different costs for each alternative," he said. "Certainly in an ideal world, we would be looking at the membrane technology, but for small community like Charlevoix, that could mean a substantial financial hit to residents."

Straebel said the city will keep in mind its senior citizens who might be on fixed incomes and lower income families in the city.

"There will be a balance of rate increasing and improvements," he said.

In order for the city to comply with the new DEQ guidelines, the city must decide soon which option it will choose.

"We're hoping to break ground sometime in mid-2014, so in the grand scheme of things, we'll definitely have to keep this project moving forward," said Straebel.

At the meeting, council approved a recommendation to go forward with the project planning. The total cost of the project plan is $111,100. Part of that — $63,900 — will be paid for through a grant from the state. The city will pay for the remaining $47,200.

As the city moves forward in deciding which option it chooses, it will hold public hearings, address public comments and work with state officials, said Straebel.

Charlevoix city council meets next at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 15, at Charlevoix's city hall.

PROJECTS

ects. They include new water mains and services, new sanitary sewer mains and services, new storm drains, curb and gutter and asphalt drive surface.

Neither of the projects should impact general traffic other than the homes or businesses adjacent to the construction work.

Charlevoix County

A county millage has helped fund the significant work on Slashing and Chandler Hill roads in the eastern portion of Charlevoix County, reworking a combined three mile stretch.

As for the rest of the road construction plans for Charlevoix County, Patrick Harmon, manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, expects to have a more exact schedule in late April or early May.

"The townships usually spend $1 million a year, the last couple of years it has been a little more than that," said Harmon, refering to the 15 townships within the county. "(The road commission) give a lot of estimates in the fall, so they'll consider projects and those estimates, look at the funds from their road millages and let us know what can be done.

"There will be more to be done (than Slashing and Chandler)," Harmon added.

East Jordan

Division Street in East Jordan will be completely reconstructed this spring from Buzzell Street northeast to where it ends at Sunset Street downtown. The reconstruction does not include any changes in the sidewalks or utilities.

Work will begin by May 1 and is expected to be finished by May 23. The road will not be closed completely at all during construction, but it will be reduced to one lane during the day when crews are working.

"We wanted to get the word out that the job was going on so people could change their driving routes" to avoid traffic backups from the single lane road, said public works director Larry Chew. "It's a short project. In and out of there in a month and it should be greatly improved."

Boyne City

A complete reconstruction of Douglas Street from Lincoln to Pleasant Avenue is planned in Boyne City this summer.

Also, milling and overlay is planned on Pleasant Street from Division south to the city limits and on Division Street from Pleasant Street west to Front.

"It will look and feel like new," said city manager Michael Cain.

The Douglas Street project will include full roadway reconstruction, the installation of a larger and more streamlined storm sewer pipe, water main replacement and service leads, a 5-foot sidewalk and the closure of Douglas Street from Cedar Street to Pleasant Avenue, in order for that area to be returned to green space.

Upgrading the storm water sewer system will take care of some of the water flow issues the city has dealt with in the past in that area of town, reported Andy Kovolski, public works superintendent.

During periods of heavy rainfall, the current, small sewer pipes, which flow into larger pipes, sometimes back up and create flooding in residential areas. It has caused damage to property and homes, said Kovolski.

Douglas Street will be open to local traffic during the majority of construction, but residents are encouraged to use it only when necessary.

For both the Douglas Street and the Pleasant and Division street projects, the city has not yet set dates for when work will begin or be complete.

Petoskey

Three road projects are planned in Petoskey this spring and summer. The projects will include some lane shifting and night work on U.S. 31.

The first project will focus on Ingalls Avenue between Madison and West Jefferson streets, and on Madison between Ingalls Avenue and West Mitchell Street (U.S. 31). This work is expected to begin early in the spring and conclude by late June. Work on underground utility crossings along West Mitchell will be included as a part of this project.

A second project the city is planning will involve work on Connable Avenue between Jackson and Monroe streets along with a section of Monroe extending 270 feet from Connable. This work is expected to be completed between early June and Labor Day.

Along with street reconstruction, the projects will include utility and sidewalk work and parking improvements. Access to and from the south leg of Connable Avenue will be closed off at U.S. 31

Petoskey public works director Mike Robbins said closures of the affected streets will be needed at times as the work progresses, and added that city officials will try to maintain access to businesses in those areas as much as possible.

Finally, in August, a Michigan Department of Transportation project is planned on U.S. 31 at Manvel Road, near the M-119 intersection, that involves widening for a right-turn lane.

"This was selected by the Petoskey Area Transportation Committee as a high-priority project so we are pleased to be able to improve that intersection this year," said department of transportation official Bob Felt.

Work is expected to be completed before Labor Day weekend.

Ex-OU, Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks dies

KEN MILLER
Associated Press

(Editor's note: Chuck Fairbanks grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. His mother Grace, who is 102, still is a seasonal resident in Ironton.)

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks, who coached Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens at Oklahoma and spent six seasons as coach of the New England Patriots, died Tuesday in Arizona after battling brain cancer. He was 79.

Oklahoma said in a news release that Fairbanks died in the Phoenix suburb of Scottsdale.

"He was a special coach, he was a special friend," said Owens, one of five Heisman winners for Oklahoma after rushing for 1,523 yards and 23 touchdowns in 1969. "As a player, he made me better on the field. He was a tough coach, but he was a fair coach."

Fairbanks was 52-15-1 in six years with the Sooners, including an Orange Bowl victory his first season and consecutive Sugar Bowls wins in 1971-72 before taking over the Patriots. He won 46 games for New England, a franchise record at the time.

The Patriots made the playoffs in their fourth season under Fairbanks in 1976 and two years later were on their way to their first outright AFC East title when owner Billy Sullivan angrily suspended him for the final regular-season game because he had agreed to go to Colorado. Fairbanks returned for the playoffs, but New England lost to Houston. He was 0-2 in the playoffs with New England.

Colorado hired Fairbanks away from the Patriots, but he was just 7-26 in three seasons, including an 82-42 loss at home to the Sooners and his replacement, Barry Switzer.

Fairbanks left the Buffs to become coach and general manager of the New Jersey Generals of the USFL. He was fired after one season.

The Sooners went 10-1 and beat Tennessee in the Orange Bowl in Fairbanks' first year in 1967. He won 11 games each of last two seasons with OU, beating Auburn and Penn State in the Sugar Bowl.

Fairbanks agreed with the suggestion of Switzer, his offensive coordinator, to install the wishbone at OU after Texas used it to win a national championship in 1969. After becoming head coach, Switzer used the wishbone to win three national titles, matching the number Bud Wilkinson won from 1947 to 1963, a tenure that included a record 47-game winning streak.

"His squads won three Big Eight championships and helped lay the foundation for the program's ongoing success with the installation of the wishbone-T offense," current Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops said in a statement. "I was fortunate to have many opportunities to get to know Chuck over the years."

Fairbanks played for Michigan State's 1952 national title team and was an assistant at Arizona State and Houston before joining the OU staff in 1966. Owens said he stayed in touch with Fairbanks because his former coach would often visit his daughter in Norman.

"Not just during football, but after football, we just loved him," Owens said. "He was like a second father to me."

Fairbanks worked in real estate and golf-course development after his coaching career. He occasionally worked as a consultant for NFL teams in training camp, including with the Dallas Cowboys when Bill Parcells was coach.

AP Sports Writer Schuyler Dixon in Dallas contributed to this story.

Rayders look to team veterans for leadership

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

First-year Charlevoix Rayder girls soccer coach Pete Scholten is looking for some good things from a core group of returning veteran players when the team kicks off its 2013 season later this month.

"I think the one of the biggest strength is we have several returning starters from last year," Scholten said. "We also have seven returning seniors who will provide great leadership. This is a very soccer dedicated group who holds high expectations for themselves."

Among those Scholten will be looking to for leadership include team captains defensive back Carolena Elowsky, defensive stopper Sydney Carlson and defensive back Shelby Robinson. He noted that sophomore Leah Davis will be the team's defensive sweeper.

"Leah has a very strong kick and will be a key to both our defense and offensive attack," Scholton said.

Senior Anna Way will lead the team's midfield along with younger sister Elizabeth Way and fellow senior Maura Brandi. The offensive attack will be led by senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer and juniors Kaitlin Hinkley and Katie Kitely.

The coach is also looking for some big things from freshmen Kylee Scholten and Kelsey Engstrom who will contribute at both midfield and forward.

"Both girls bring speed and a lot of club soccer experience to our team," he said.

As is the case most years, Scholten is expecting play in the Lake Michigan Conference to be tough again this year.

"Our conference will be challenging. Our biggest rivals and challenges will come from Elk Rapids, Harbor Springs and Traverse City Liberty," he said.

"Our goal is to prepare the girls to play at their highest capable level," Scholten added. "We will work to prepare both mentally and physically to outplay our opponent."

What he's seen so far from the team is encouraging.

"We had a great first three weeks of practice. The girls went to Olivet College March 23 and played really well. We scrimmaged three teams. We tied Tecumseh 1-1, beat Vicksburg 1-0 and beat a tough Williamston JV 3-0. This was the girls' first experience outdoors (this year). They played great together. Their flow improved each game.

The Rayders open their season on Tuesday, April 9, at Grayling then they travel to Kalkaska on Thursday, April 11. Their home opener is on Monday, April 15, against Traverse City Liberty. Kick off for all three games is set for 5 p.m.

Plenty of talent returning for Rayder tennis team

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Plenty of talent remains for the Charlevoix Rayders girls tennis team to compete for the Lake Michigan Conference crown in 2013.

Even with the loss of five seniors from last season's team, including No. 1 singles player Kelsey Way, the Rayders remain an experienced and veteran team for coach Audra Randall.

This season, five seniors and five juniors hold the team together.

Junior Madi Carey returns to singles for the Rayders, where she held the No. 2 spot throughout last season. Carey will battle with senior Kelsea Stevens for the No. 1 spot this year, after Stevens held the No. 3 spot for the Rayders a year ago. Junior Lexie Barnes, No. 4 singles, also returns.

The Rayders doubles teams remains the strong point of the team with the return of No. 1 doubles pair, Emily Roloff and Cassidy Peebles, a junior and senior respectively.

The No. 2 doubles team of senior Taylor Markgraf and junior Mallory Murray also returns to the lineup.

Senior Carley Scholey returns to her No. 3 doubles spot, where she'll be paired with either senior Karley Pearsall or Cassie McCraney.

Newcomers to the Rayders lineup this season include Rachel Hunter, Hannah Ennis, Ellie Ackerman, Carys Martin, Madyson Wojan and Sarah Rockafellow.

The first match of the year for Charlevoix serves on Tuesday, April 9, in a Lake Michigan Conference meeting in Grayling, while the first home match for the Rayders is set for Thursday, April 11, against the Petoskey junior varsity team

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

We the People

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT; ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY SERVICE PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW. Notice under MCL 600.3278: Pursuant to MCL 600.3278, if the property is sold at a foreclosure sale under MCL 600.3201 et. seq., the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period. ATTENTION POTENTIAL PURCHASERS AT FORECLOSURE SALE: In the case of resolution prior to or simultaneously with the aforementioned foreclosure sale, Charlevoix State Bank may rescind this sale at any time prior to the end of the redemption period. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited to the return of your bid amount tendered at the sale, plus interest. Default having occurred in the conditions of a Mortgage made by Blake D. Stinner and Rena M. Stinner, husband and wife, ("Mortgagor") to Charlevoix State Bank, dated August 1, 2003, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix in the State of Michigan on August 6, 2003, in Liber 561, Page(s) 058, et. seg., on which Mortgage there is claimed to be due as of the date of this Notice the sum of $116,233.60, which amount may or may not be the entire indebtedness owed by Debtors to Charlevoix State Bank together with interest at 6.50 percent per annum. NOW THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative and that pursuant to that power of sale and MCL 600.3201 et. seq., on April 19, 2013 at 11:00 a.m., in the front lobby of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court and/or for conducting such foreclosure sales for the County of Charlevoix, there will be offered at public sale, the premises, or some part thereof, described in said Mortgage as follows, to-wit: LAND SITUATED IN THE TOWNSHIP OF PEAINE, COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX, STATE OF MICHIGAN, IS DESCRIBED AS FOLLOWS: COMMENCING AT THE NORTHWEST CORNER OF GOVERNMENT LOT 2, SECTION 22, TOWNSHIP 37 NORTH, RANGE 10 WEST; THENCE EAST ON THE NORTH LINE OF LOT 2, 784.4 FEET; THENCE SOUTH 3 DEGREES 56' WEST, 545.75 FEET; THENCE SOUTH 18 DEGREES 23' EAST, 439.25 FEET; THENCE SOUTH 6 DEGREES 16' WEST, 507.45 FEET; THENCE SOUTH 15 DEGREES 16' WEST, 150 FEET; THENCE SOUTH 49 DEGREES 14' WEST, 200 FEET TO THE POINT OF BEGINNING FOR THIS DESCRIPTION; THENCE SOUTH 65 DEGREES 00" EAST, 422.1 FEET TO THE SHORE OF LAKE MICHIGAN; THENCE ALONG THE SAID SHORE, SOUTH 54 DEGREES 27' WEST, 200 FEET; THENCE LEAVING THE SHORE NORTH 45 DEGREES 36' WEST TO THE CENTERLINE OF THE COUNTY ROAD; THENCE IN A NORTHEASTERLY DIRECTION ALONG THE CENTER OF SAID ROAD TO A POINT WHICH IS NORTH 65 DEGREES 00' WEST FROM THE POINT OF BEGINNING; THENCE SOUTH 65 DEGREES 00' EAST TO THE PLACE OF BEGINNING; ALL BEING A PART OF GOVERNMENT LOT 2, SECTION 22, TOWNSHIP 37 NORTH, RANGE 10 WEST, AND INCLUDING ALL LAND TO THE WATER'S EDGE. The redemption period shall be six (6) months unless the property is established to be abandoned pursuant to MCL 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be the later of thirty (30) days from the date of sale or fifteen (15) days from the date the notice required by MCL 600.3241a(b) was posted and mailed, or unless under MCL 600.3240(17), prior to the foreclosure sale the borrower follows the procedure set forth in that section to establish the presumption that the property is used for Agricultural purposes, in which case the redemption period shall be one (1) year from the date of the sale.

Creative recycling has robotic results

Charlevoix Elementary School

Throughout the year Mary Beth McGraw, art teacher at Charlevoix Elementary School, introduces students to the various elements of design and to a variety of media as part of the curriculum in her kindergarten-grade five art classes. But she also teaches the children to go beyond experimenting with pencil and paint and to use their imaginations.

"The best definition of imagination I've heard," McGraw said, "is 'looking at something old in a new way.'" A recent project combining design and imagination has done just that and has culminated in a classroom populated with unique metal robots.

"They can't help but make you smile ... they're awesome," said principal Doug Drenth.

Visitors to the building are greeted by robots standing guard in the front display case and may find many more in the art room.

"The kids are very excited about and proud of their projects," McGraw said. "They love to show them off."

Fourth-grader Rachel Pott said, "I really enjoyed building the robots. It is so cool to walk in the lobby and see the robots. I am so glad this was one of our art projects. I love art."

The inception of the idea came a few years ago when McGraw was given a number of coffee cans by a local supporter of the arts, Suzanne Acharya of Esperance, who felt that the cans just might come in handy for a project one day. To add to the stockpile, McGraw started requesting and collecting "stuff" such as soup cans, old faucets, bike wheels, odds and ends of discarded hardware and scrap metal, often picked up curbside.

"Before I knew it my classroom was looking like a recycling center," McGraw said.

She heaped and arranged the materials on a long table down the center of the classroom, then started soliciting ideas from the kids.

"At first I suggested making totem poles out of the junk. But they (the students) were determined that making robots was the best idea."

Soon the idea evolved, each kindergarten and first grade making a classroom robot, and grades two-five dividing up into groups within their classroom.

The making of the robots was an exercise in teamwork and cooperation.

Fireplace final cut?

Council expected to discuss final design Monday

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

A draft of the final design documents for a contentious community fireplace project in East Park is expected to be ready for the Charlevoix City Council to consider at its next regular semi-monthly meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 15, at Charlevoix City Hall.

On Wednesday, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said he had recently spoken with Richard Hitz, one of two design consultants who have volunteered their time to assist the city with the project, who said the design is expected to be ready in time for the meeting.

Straebel said the council could choose to take action on the draft design at Monday's meeting, or postpone a decision if it feels that more time for input or modifications is warranted.

The project has been contentious among community members since shortly after the council approved its original, much larger design on Aug. 9.

When members of the community continued voicing their objections to the fireplace, which called for the gas-fueled fire chamber to be topped by a 20-foot tall stone chimney, the city council in September voted to put the project on hold to allow time for options to be explored for possibly relo-

New city trees to rise from the ashes

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

It's been a tough few years for trees on city property in Charlevoix.

Not only has the invasive emerald ash borer infested and gone on their way to kill likely every ash tree in town, but for several years there's been no money in the city budget to replace trees that have been damaged or killed by disease, old age, or winds.

City public works superintendent Pat Elliott said at least some of that story is going to change this year.

Unfortunately, Elliott said, there is nothing that can be done to save the ash trees that are infested with the emerald ash borer.

That means the buzz of saws will be heard again in town as the dead or dying trees are removed.

Last fall, the most noticeable of this sort of work took place along May Street where a number of ash trees had to come down.

This year, Elliot said the bulk of the culling will take place in and around the city's downtown parking lots, but some will also be taken down in a few locations in street-side rights-of-way.

Elliot said he expects the tree re-

Sip wine, keep Charlevoix beautiful

A series of wine tasting events are planned this spring at Esperance specialty food and wine shop in Charlevoix. The tastings will benefit Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and help the group purchase petunias to plant around the city.

A day of planting the flowers is planned for Thursday, May 23

Each Saturday now through May 25, the shop will have a series of wines available for patrons to taste as well an hors d'oeuvre plate from noon until 4 p.m. The event costs $10, $5 of which will be donated to the nonprofit and operation petunia.

Suzanne and Pram Acharya, owners of Esperance, have lived in Charlevoix for 13 years and wanted to do something to help the community, said Suzanne.

"This last winter has been really hard (for area businesses)," she said. "The petunias just add something special to this community that no one else has."

New commission on aging director hired

Shirley Gillespie brings social service experience to position

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Shirley Gillespie, 62, has been hired as director of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging after former director, Jack Messer retired at the end of March.

The county board of commissioners interviewed and unanimously voted to hire Gillespie on the spot during its regular meeting Wednesday.

Of the nine who applied for the position, five were interviewed by a three-person committee and only one, Gillespie, was asked to be interviewed before the full board.

The interviewing committee consisted of human resources coordinator Kevin Shepard, chair of the board of commissioners personnel committee Chris Christensen and chair of the commission on aging board Richard Smith.

"We had five great interviews. The candidates had various degrees of experience and qualifications," said Shepard. "All of them were very different and all of them presented themselves well, but Shirley gravitated to the top and so we wanted to bring her in here to interview with you guys."

The new director has no relation to commissioner Richard Gillespie.

Her qualifications include a bachelor's degree in social work and 19 years of experience with the Michigan Department of Human Services.

During her time with the Charlevoix-Emmet Department of Human Services, Gillespie has been a manager for the past eight years and before that worked as a community resource coordinator, adult protective services worker, adult independent guardian, children's protective services and foster care worker and eligibility specialist.

"Before working for the human services department, she was a social worker in a nursing home in Gladwin County. Gillespie also has a long list of volunteer and civic leadership experience.

"I've worked with many people in the community that receive the services (that the Commission on Aging pro-

Vacation rental licenses now required in Hayes Twp.

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Short-term vacation rentals are common across Northern Michigan.

Officials in Hayes Township received an increased number of complaints during the last few years about vacationers arriving at rental properties, having a good time, making a good deal of noise for about a week and then leaving, according to township clerk Marlene Golovich.

Existing zoning rules did not allow for any form of short-term, or less than 30 day, rental in Hayes Township, but the practice seemed commonly accepted and practiced for many years.

After last summer and the uptick in complaints, officials debated what they could do to prevent the ruckus and still allow property owners to rent to vacationers. They came up with an ordinance the board of trustees passed last month in a 3-2 vote.

Township Supervisor Ethel Knepp, Golovich and Treasurer Robin Kraft voted to approve the new rules. Trustees Rich Burnett and Doug Kuehler voted against them.

The ordinance, which will take effect April 20, requires those who plan to lease out a home for less than 30 days to first acquire a license from the township.

Originally, a few residents frustrated with the revelers approached township officials. "We were asked to enforce the current zoning ordinance" and shut down the rentals, Golovich said.

But then other residents came forward and asked the board to allow the rentals to continue. The reasons they gave to allow the rentals was they carried on for a long time, many without complaint, and because in some cases the rental income helps families pay their taxes and maintain old family cottages.

"We either allow short term rentals or we don't," Knepp said. "However, the zoning ordinance doesn't allow short-term rentals. So, it was either we adopted some regulations via the ordinance, or we wouldn't allow short-term rentals to occur. I think this was the best solution for the entire township."

She believes the new ordinance will keep complaints about noise to a minimum.

"I don't like regulations more than anyone else, but if everyone was a good neighbor we wouldn't need them," she said.

The township is now in the process of preparing an application and adopting a fee for the rental license. License applications will be handled by zoning administrator Jonathan Scheel.

All known and reported short-term rentals will be required to be licensed and occupants must comply with a set of rules this summer.

Standards set by the township include requiring a maximum occupancy of two adults per bedroom in the rental unit, the rental meet all residential building, health department and safety codes, there be off-street parking for renters' vehicles and the appearance of the rental does not conflict with the residential character of the neighborhood and is kept in good repair. Also, no signs are allowed to be posted advertising the rental, the owner must keep on file with the township information concerning a contact person with authority over the rental and must provide this contact information to all neighbors within 300 feet, all land-based recreational activities must be limited to the rental premises, all campfires must be in designated fire pit areas, must be attended at all times and properly extinguished and, lastly, the ordinance prohibits tenants from disturbing neighbors with excessive noise.

If not compliant, the license can be revoked for a period of time that increases with each subsequent violation.

Also, a violation of the ordinance is considered a municipal civil infraction and those who violate the regulations will be fined $500. Each day the ordinance is violated is considered a separate violation.

For more information about a license for short-term rental, or to learn more about the ordinance, contact Scheel at (231) 342-9025.

The Charlevoix Police Department is continuing its investigation into a March 26 unarmed robbery, but chief Gerard Doan had no new information to release on the case Wednesday.

Police said the clerk on duty at the EZ Mart gas station and convenience store located at the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31 reported that shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday, March 26, two white men entered the store and demanded the money from the store's cash register.

Doan said the clerk reported that the men did not brandish any weapons, but did wear some type of covering over their faces.

Doan said the clerk described the two suspects as both in their early 20s, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, with medium builds and wearing dark-colored, hooded jackets.

During their investigation on the day following the incident, police found the empty cash drawer taken in the robbery in an area not far from the business.

Police continue to ask anyone who may have information about the incident to call the Charlevoix Police Department at (231) 547-3258 or 9-1-1.

The police department and Blarney Castle Oil, the company that owns the EZ Mart, have teamed up to offer a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men responsible for the robbery.

Connecticut should be model for gun safety legislation

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

It is not often that our whole country gets to think about the state of Connecticut in a positive way, or in any way at all. As states go, it mostly seems to lack panache or even a solid identity. Lately, it has been in the news for the terrible reason of its being the site of a elementary school massacre, with 26 people, mostly small children, dead.

Last week the state legislature of Connecticut passed a serious set of gun control laws meant to begin dealing with the gun-related violence that cost so many innocent lives. The Connecticut law certainly does not solve all potential problems.

How can it be that the elected legislators of Connecticut managed to achieve even such a limited outcome? There was reportedly serious lobbying by gun advocates. The National Rifle Association and other more extreme gun lobbying groups were unable to defeat much of the proposed legislation. Possibly the pro-gun lobbyists felt that Connecticut was too sensitive an area for them to spend much public attention on it. The law passed includes some sensible restrictions and new rules about background checks for all gun sales, not just those by major dealers. It failed to include any sort of requirement for registration of guns, but does require the registration of large capacity magazines.

The Colorado legislature is headed in much the same direction as that of Connecticut. Maybe it requires a local massacre to blunt the desperate partisanship surrounding gun control. I would hate to think that we will need a massacre in each state to stimulate legislative action.

Some mechanism of gun registration would be a sensible public safety measure, if only to help keep track of stolen guns. States register and keep track of cars, trucks, boats and a few other things without infringing on any citizens right to buy, sell or own any of those registered items. The argument that if guns are registered, the state will eventually confiscate them, is the purest sort of paranoia. Only a tiny fringe of gun owners consider that their weapons are ultimately to defend them against a tyrannical government. Almost everyone now supports gun ownership as being for self defense, home protection or sporting use.

More than any other single thing, I believe that age-appropriate education in gun safety and gun handling should be a part of every school curriculum. Guns are so abundant, we all need to know about them. Our children need to know more than can be derived from watching fictional television programs.

To say that only a good guy with a gun can defend against a bad guy with a gun is a little troubling. I am more worried about an angry guy with a gun or a disappointed guy with a gun, since anger and disappointment are far more common than badness. Anger and/or disappointment may even be more common than goodness.

That individual state legislatures should pass their own laws about public safety seems right to me, since the federal congress is almost incapable of any meaningful action. There are 10 states that border either Colorado or Connecticut; maybe some legislative good sense will leak over the borders. We can only hope.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

Archibald Buttars came to Charlevoix with the family of pioneer settler John Dixon in 1856 at age 19, and worked for Dixon for a year before he headed to the Grand Traverse region to seek his fortune. In 1869, pioneer businessmen Amos Fox and Hiram Rose asked him to return to manage their new merchandise store on Bridge Street. An extremely capable man, Buttars succeeded in everything he did and built this brick building in 1882. He was elected to the state legislature and rose to serve as lieutenant-governor, even filling in for the governor for a while before he retired from politics and returned home to help run the local bank. Many merchants and businesses have occupied his building over the years. Clothier George Miller, whose store is seen here, was a survivor of the passenger steamer Champlain disaster of 1877. Many residents still remember George Glados' Sugar Bowl cafe, here for more than 50 years in the first half of the 20th century. Later came Leutheuser's restaurant, the Bay Chalet and 214 Bridge Street restaurants, and Buttars' building now houses Diane and Bill DuPont's Round Lake Bookstore.

New gun laws won't stop criminals

Editor:

Laws do not stop a criminal from committing a crime. They will punish one if and when caught. I spent 35 plus years working in the criminal justice system, military and civilian, corrections and law enforcement. In all those years I never once met a criminal that did not commit a crime because it was against the law. Just look at the Michigan Supreme Court Justice that was convicted of a crime. She surely knew it was against the law. How about the ex-mayor of Detroit? He surely knew what he was doing was illegal. They, as all common criminals didn't believe they would be caught.

Passing laws to make something illegal or prevent something from happening makes lawmakers look good to their voters and it makes the law abiding citizen feel safer. Laws are kind of like locks on the doors, they keep the honest person honest and just slow down the criminal.

We can pass all the restrictive guns laws we want. The only ones they will impact are the law abiding citizens. Criminals will get guns one way or the other. Just look to Chicago. There is no conceal carry law. There are no gun stores. Yet in 2012 there were 516 homicides, most from guns. In Illinois you need a permit just to buy ammunition.

If a person wants to cause mass casualties they will find a way to get a gun or use a bomb or maybe just ram a truck into a crowd.

If we want to solve this problem we need to do two things 1. enforce the laws we already have and 2. address the mental health issue. The mental health system is broke. As a county sheriff with a 200 bed jail, filled, with a large population needing mental health services. We did the best we could with the resources we had but that came nowhere close to addressing the problem.

Property purchase signals long-term plans for components manufacturer

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Sensing its potential to allow for future expansions, a company recently purchased the site just south of Charlevoix where it began manufacturing catalytic converter components about a year ago.

Advanced Clean Air Technologies (ACAT) announced that it closed March 25 on the purchase of the property at 5339 M-66 North, which housed businesses including Hoskins Manufacturing and E-Log in years past.

"We got it because we wanted it to be our long term headquarters," said Joe A. Moch, a partner in ACAT along with his father, Joe W. Moch.

The purchase includes a building covering 70,000-plus square feet that's situated on a 27-acre site. Hoskins Manufacturing ceased operations there more than a decade ago. In recent years, the site was owned by Charlevoix-based DBS Development.

Initially, ACAT leased a portion of the M-66 building as it ramped up production. Moch, who declined to disclose the purchase price for the site, said manufacturing operations now take up about a quarter of the building space, with other areas used for storage.

In the future, Moch said production perhaps could expand into more of the building if business growth dictates — and land is available to enlarge the structure if needed.

The operation currently employs about 13 people, with Moch expecting ACAT to bring about half a dozen more on board within the next couple of months. Within the next three years or so, the ACAT partner sees potential for the workforce to include 50-60 people.

ACAT produces substrates for use in catalytic converters. The substrates help absorb some of the substances in engine exhaust for emission control purposes. The company touts a distinctive herringbone design for its substrates that offers light weight and efficiency.

Some of ACAT's early production has been geared toward the automotive aftermarket. Moch said the company also has supplied components for catalytic converters used in power generation, and is working to establish some relationships with original-equipment manufacturers in the automotive field. The company also aims to offer products for applications such as small engines.

Charlevoix resident earns scientific certification

Snabes

Christopher Snabes, a food technical specialist at the American Proficiency Institute and a Charlevoix resident, was recently among the first in the nation to earn the Certified Food Scientist credential from the Institute of Food Technologists. This certification recognizes Snabes' knowledge and applied skills in food science, according to a press release from the organization.

"We are quite proud of Christopher's accomplishment," Daniel C. Edson, institute president said. "His expertise in food microbiology and his commitment to excellence in food laboratories has served API customers well."

"Improving the safety and quality of the food supply has been a focus of my career," Snabes said. "I hope this new … certification will help to elevate the importance of food science throughout the world."

Snabes is a member of the American Society for Microbiology, has been an adjunct professor at North Central Michigan College and is the author of several publications related to food quality assurance. His accomplishments also include increasing the accuracy and efficiency of the weekly laboratory sample load of a major fast food chain by 100 percent and implementing environmental bacterial testing of food production surfaces from the world headquarters of a food establishment based in Michigan.

Christopher has also been a Boy Scout assistant scoutmaster and Cub Scout leader for many years. He lives in Charlevoix with his wife, Maura and their three children.

The American Proficiency Institute serves over 700 food laboratories worldwide. It is the largest provider of proficiency testing services for food laboratories in the United States.

Chamber to host job, resource fair

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will be hosting a Job and Resource Fair from 2-7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23, at Charlevoix High School.

More than 20 employers and community resource representatives will be present to hire candidates of all ages experience levels and industries for full-time, part-time and seasonal work. Community resource representatives will be there to bring you information about education, healthcare, childcare, and other programs that may impact you.

The job fair is free to attend. Potential employees are asked to come prepared with copies of their resumes and be professionally dressed.

Employers and non-profit organizations who are interested in having a booth at the job fair may contact Bethany Pearson at the Charlevoix Chamber by e-mailing pearson@charlevoix.org. Charlevoix Chamber members may have a booth for free, non-members will pay a registration fee of $50.

'Things With Wings' exhibit opens April 20

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will host its first exhibit of 2013, "Things With Wings," from April 20-June 16 at the Circle of Arts building, 109 Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

The exhibit will kick off with an opening reception from 6-8 p.m. on Saturday, April 20.

As the name implies, this all-media exhibit will focus on flying things.

"Birds and butterflies, angels and fairies, dragonflies and moths; the things with wings fly through the skies and bring color and joy with them. Things with Wings will welcome spring to Charlevoix!" is how event organizers describe the exhibit.

The featured artist for the exhibit will be Charlevoix carver Jim Lahde.

Northwest Academy student of the month

Northwest Academy's student of the month for March is senior Elizabeth Hodgson. Elizabeth is the co-captain of the academy's soccer team, captain of the quiz bowl team and plays tenor sax for the school's band. She's also been on the honor roll for five years, and "is very involved with building school spirit, such as advocating for a school trip to Camp Daggett," said teacher Desiree Kaiser.

In the community, Elizabeth serves as president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation Youth Advisory Committee, and attends both Charlevoix and East Jordan chamber of commerce meetings. She has been named a "junior ambassador" for the East Jordan chamber. After graduation, Elizabeth plans on attending Northern Michigan University to study business and corporate finance, and later go into banking. She credits her parents for her success, as they have always pushed her to achieve and supported her in all of her endeavors.

OBITUARIES

Lydia Piera Orlarey, 80

Lydia Piera Orlarey, 80, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, March 27, 2013, at her home.

She will be greatly missed by her two sons, Max and Michael Orlarey.

Born May 9, 1932, in Italy, the daughter of Rocco and Caterina (Zani) Gnuva, she was married for more than 50 years, to Maurice Orlarey, who preceded her in death.

Lydia was an artist, and loving mother. During World War II, she was a 7-year-old child, living in France, and was very grateful for help of the American soldiers, who liberated France.

Her life was enriched by art, music, reading and volunteer work.

She was an avid reader to learn, more and more. She believed in the simplicity of living. Her attitude was positive and she believed in treating everyone respectfully and kindly.

She like the following quotations:

"As a day well spent makes it sweet to sleep, so a life well used makes it sweet to die"

— Leonardo da Vinci

Comme après un jour très occupée, le sommeil nous est agréable, ainsi une vie bien utilisée nous rend la mort douce.

— Leonardo da Vinci

"Memories are treasure time cannot take away...

So may you be surrounded by happy ones today...

May all the love and tenderness of special years well spent

Come back today to fill your heart

With beauty and content..."

— Helen Steiner Rice

Les souvenirs sont un temps trésor ne peut pas emporter ...

de sorte que vous pouvez être entouré par les plus heureux aujourd'hui ...

peut tout l'amour et la tendresse d'années spéciales bien dépensé revenir aujourd'hui à remplir votre cœur de la beauté et du contenu...

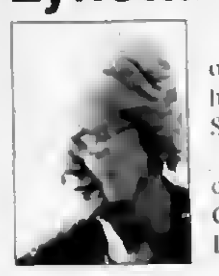
— Helen Steiner Rice

Lydia passed away at home, with family by her side.

Lynetta M Treadwell, 90



Lynetta M. Treadwell, 90, originally from Charlevoix, went home to be with her Lord and Savior on March 10, 2013.

She had been a long time resident at a care facility in Denver, Colo. Before that, Mark and Lynetta were 20 year residents of Cheboygan, and attended St. Paul's United Methodist Church.

Lynetta is proceeded in death by her husband of 63 years, Mark and their two sons, Daniel and Steven.

Surviving family are one daughter, Lynda and one daughter-in-law, Peggy. Also, remaining are five granddaughters Nancy, Jodi, Cindy, Leslie and Jennifer. Lynetta also leaves 12 great-grand children.

A graveside service is planned at Greenwood Cemetery in Petoskey at 10 a.m. on Sept. 21.

LTC executive to speak at next Progressive Women meeting

Tom Bailey, the executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Progressive Women of Charlevoix County.

The meeting will take place Tuesday, April 23, at the Boyne City Public Library in Boyne City. Members may arrive at noon and the speaker will begin at 12:30 p.m. Members are invited to brown bag their lunch. The program is open to anyone interested in progressive issues, male or female. R.S.V.P. by April 22 by emailing progwomenchxcty@yahoo.com or calling (231) 582-9005.

Bailey will be speaking about land conservation in Charlevoix and Emmet counties and current issues in land conservation in Michigan. He will give a brief review of the mission of the Little Traverse Conservancy and conservancy successes and new projects. Bailey will address several recently passed controversial Michigan laws and the legislation's impact on conservation and land management in Michigan. He will end his presentation with discussion of how we can work to preserve the environment and of opportunities and organizations for political action.

Bailey has been executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy since late 1984. Prior to that, he worked six years for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in the hazardous waste program and administered state and federal grants for water pollution control projects. He previously served as a park ranger at Michigan's Isle Royale National Park and Grand Portage National Monument in northern Minnesota. Bailey has recently served as a member of Governor Rick Snyder's Blue Ribbon Panel on Michigan State Parks and Outdoor Recreation. He currently serves on the Michigan State Parks Advisory Committee and an advisory committee to the Department of Natural Resources on State Land Management Strategy.

The Progressive Women of Charlevoix County meets from noon to 2 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of the month. Locations alternate between Charlevoix and Boyne City. There are no membership fees and meeting announcements are by email only. For more information or to be added to the mailing list, email progwomenchxcty@yahoo.com.

DIRECTOR

vides)," said Gillespie. "I am aware of a lot of the poverty issues that seniors are facing."

She is also aware that in the current economy, many county departments must do more with less, she said. "I look forward to that challenge."

At the meeting Wednesday, some discussion arose about the process used to hire the director.

"Were the names of the candidates given to the press so that the public could have input (on the selection)," asked commissioner George Lasater.

The newspaper filed a Freedom of Information Act request asking for that information, said Shepard.

"We just turned that over to the press today," Shepard said.

After a verbal request Thursday, April 4, by the Petoskey News-Review for the information, Shepard revealed that the information would only be released through a FOIA request. The request was filed that day and the information was provided by the clerk's office five business days later on the day of the meeting at which the director was hired.

The five candidates that were interviewed include Gillespie, Tracy Rupinski, David Slifka, Leslie Lake and Richard Melke.

"While it is a public position, you do need a degree of privacy so it doesn't cost them their current positions," said commissioner Chris Christensen of revealing the names of candidates.

"I think it would be worthwhile to formalize a hiring process," said commissioner Larry Sullivan. "I understand Chris' concern about not naming people to the public, but when people apply for a job as a public entity, the public has a right to know who is applying."

Legally, said county civil counsel Bryan Graham, there is an exemption to the Freedom of Information Act which allows a name to be withheld up until a candidate is interviewed, if that candidate specifies the desire when applying.

"I would like to see something formalized" so that candidates know at what point their name may be released to the public, said Sullivan. "We want to be within the law and respect the public's right to know."

"I agree with Chris about putting names out," said commissioner Ron Reinhardt. "When people apply for jobs, some of those don't want their names out."

"To reveal all nine names that applied knowing only one person's going to get the job, that would have a negative impact," said Christensen, but added that it may make sense to address the issue at the next personnel committee meeting and consider creating a policy that reveals the names of two or three finalists in the hiring process to the public.

according to McGraw. The students chose the component parts and had to collectively determine how to combine them into a free-standing construction. Students were responsible for the design, and planning with McGraw's guidance and suggestions, how their robot was to be assembled. Assisting in the process, McGraw's sister, Ann Bourne, an artist in her own right, accepted the role of welder.

Each robot was created in the course of a 55-minute class period and in a week's time, the art room was transformed from a construction zone to a whimsical robot convention center.

"It was fun making robots with Mrs. McGraw and my friends," wrote third-grader Lauren Shepard about the process.

The robots are currently on display in the school lobby and the art room. They will be featured at the annual art show set to take place from 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, May 9, and from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Friday, May 10, and Monday, May 13, at the elementary school.

TREES

movals to start taking place some time this spring. Like last year, city crews will mark trees for removal with an large "X" prior to the work being done.

But this year, it's not all bad news for the tree lovers in town.

This year the city, which has been listed as a Tree City USA with the National Arbor Day Foundation for the past 21 years, is reviving its tree planting program for city rights-of-way.

Elliot said the city has budgeted enough money to plant between 50 and 75 trees throughout the city.

Through the program, any city resident who is interested in having one of the new trees planted in front of his or her house can make a request, including which of several species choices he or she prefers.

Anyone interested in taking advantage of the program, should call Elliot at (231) 547-3276 for an information packet. Information on the program is also expected to be posted on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Elliott said homeowners where the new trees are planted will be given a TreeGator bag and it will be the homeowner's responsibility to make sure the tree stays watered. (A TreeGator bag is a permeable bag that wraps around a tree, that can then be filled with water, which is slowly released to the tree's roots.)

DESIGN

cating and/or re-designing the feature.

The fireplace project was originally offered to the city council in July by an anonymous donor who offered to pay for nearly all of its construction costs.

In putting the project on hold, the council took advantage of an offer by the donor to consider modifications to the project by Mark Buday and Hitz (both of whom worked on the East Park development project) to serve as consultants to the city on the matter. Ultimately, mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. appointed a steering committee to work with Buday and Hitz as they worked on bringing forward a modified plan for the project.

Through that process, a much smaller concept for the project emerged that called for the fireplace to use less gas, and take on a oval bowl-shape with no chimney. The council approved a motion to move to the final design phase of this concept last month.

Also at Monday's meeting the council is expected to consider a draft version of a donation acceptance policy that was first discussed at its last meeting on April 1. The policy was drafted in response to concerns raised by some over how the fireplace project matter was handled by the council. The draft version of the plan can be downloaded from the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Rayders sweep Birch Run in openers

BIRCH RUN — The Charlevoix High School baseball team opened the season on a positive note Saturday, April 6.

Shane Sutherland was the winning pitcher in the opening game, while the Rayders rallied from a 3-0 deficit in the second game to sweep Birch Run, 3-0 and 5-4, in a non-league doubleheader.

"It was a nice way to start the season on a very cold day," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Sutherland was dominant on the mound in game one and it was a great comeback in game two. We were down to our last out and even our last strike, but kept battling.

"We were strong defensively and our pitchers threw strikes all day long."

Sutherland went all six innings in the opener and earned the shutout win as he allowed just two hits and one walk while striking out two.

All three Rayder runs came in the second inning as JJ Bottomley singled. Hunter Cox reached on a fielder's choice, KeNen Borths reached on a fielder's choice and stole second and Noah Certa added a RBI single.

Also for the Rayders in the opener, Certa finished with two hits and two stolen bases, while Nate Moon singled and Will Telgenhof added a double.

In the second game, the Rayders pushed across four runs in the sixth inning and added the game winning run in the seventh.

In the seventh, Luke Klinger reached on an error, Telgenhof reached on a sacrifice bunt and fielding error before Bottomley reached on a fielder's choice, pushing Klinger to third. Bottomley then stole second and on the catcher's throw — which went into centerfield — Klinger scored.

Bottomley earned the pitching win in relief of Moon. Bottomley struck out one, walked one and allowed one run over 2 1/3 innings. Moon worked four innings and allowed three runs, two of which were earned, on two hits while walking one and striking out one. Cox also pitched 2/3 of an innning in relief and fanned one, walked one and gave up one hit.

Bottomley collected Charlevoix's lone hit in the game, while Klinger had three walks and scored two runs.

Thanks to the recent cold and wet weather, its unclear when the Rayders might be back in action. Two double-headers the team had scheduled this week were called off because bad weather. Up next on the schedule is a double-header at Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday, April 16 and another at home against Traverse City Christian on Thursday, April 18, and at Boyne City on Friday, April 19.

The Charlevoix Radyer girls track team has been hampered by the weather in its pre-season training just like athletes in all the other spring sports, but the team has used the time to create close bonds among its smaller-than-usual ranks.

"This will be a very different year because we will have the smallest numbers on the team yet," coach Mary Plude said of the team which only numbers 22 girls this year. "The poor weather has actually given us time to bond. They have really started off the season coming together as a team."

The team only has two returning seniors, and nine returning underclassmen.

"I really like how they have absorbed the new team members and welcomed them in," Plude said. "The new members have really enjoyed the openness and are comfortable with the drive that the returning members are showing already."

Returning from state meet performances last year are junior Caroline Boss, sophomores Amber Way, Madeline Boss and Kourtney Putman. Way and Putman were both All-State in the 3200m relay and Amber was All-State and runner up in the 3200m run. Joining them will be freshman Hannah Zipp in the mid-distance and long jump; Ivy Wells in the pole vault, who has already broken the indoor school record this year and Autumn Drost and Makenzie Boyd are returning in the sprints.

Plude said the newcomers to the team are very open to trying a variety of events, so the team will be developing throughout the year as they improve and expand their potential..

"We hope to be competitive at the conference level and even do well at the regional. However, we will not be able to compete with the depth that Benzie Central has," Plude said.

She said she expects will do well at the regionals and team members should make qualifying times for the state meet.

"It has been a very enjoyable start to the season despite the weather. We will always make do with what is thrown at us. The girls have made no complaints about the snow, rain or being stuck inside," Plude added.

The team had been slated to participate in the Cadillac Track Invitational n Friday, April 12, but the event was cancelled because of the bad weather forecast. The next meet on the schedule is the Lake Michigan Conference Jamboree set for Monday, April 15 in East Jordan.

With their numbers up slightly from last year at 35 and many standout athletes returning the pre-season outlook for the Charlevoix Rayder boys track team is looking up.

"We look to be one of the top teams in the conference again this year. The boy's want to repeat their success from last years championship," coach Ken Plude said.

Plude expects the team to again be strong in the middle distances and distance events with Nick Plude, Jackson Buday, Tristen Rudolph, Nick Snabes, C.J. Rice.

In the sprints, a strong returning core of runners will include Jared Reibel, Charlie Hamilton, Devon Drain, and Miccah Peebles and in the hurdles, Chris Young and Parker Skeel

Field Events will feature Sawyer Russell, Justin Erskine, Sam Hovie in the pole vault. The throwing events will feature Speigle, Aaron Duckworth, Matt Mackenzie along with newcomer Alex Brown.

The long jump will feature Brian Noriot and Brown.

Plude is also looking for help from new athletes including Brown, Justin Pearl in the middle distances, and Ben Boss, Jamey Carter, Hunter Lopes and Andrew Mitchel in the throwing events.

Plude is also looking for his team to be one of the tops in the regionals as well.

The Rayders had been slated to participate in the Cadillac Invitational on Friday, April 12, but the event was called off because of bad weather in the forecast. Up next for the team is the Lake Michigan Conference Jamboree on Monday, April 15 in East Jordan.

Rayders look for young talent replace graduation losses

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Rayder varsity softball coach Ken Hoffman is looking for some of his young talent to step up to fill key roles vacated by graduating players as the team heads into its 2013 season.

"After losing six seniors last year, we will have a young but talented team," Hoffman said.

The Rayders will feature two returning senior players in Katie Hybl and Rache Shull.

Shull is a three-year starter in left field and Hybl, who will be pitching and catching, batted .540 last year. Both girls are four-year varsity players.

Junior Jennifer Archey who batted .466 last year, will be returning in center field while junior Kelsey Pischner, who batted .333 last year, will be returning to first base.

Other returning players include sophomores Kaitlin Loviska, and Nicole Peterson; juniors Paige Bradley, Ryleigh Knoop, Jacy Herriman and Allie Balyo.

New to the team this year are senior Olivia Certa and junior Gabby Grey who will be playing shortstop and catching.

The team features three freshmen in Hailey Berry, Yogi Hang, and Skylar Herriman.

Hang will be the team's second pitcher and play shortstop. Herriman will play third base and as the designated hitter. Berry plays first base and pitches.

Tom Mielke and Robert Hybl are also returning to assit with coaching duties.

Hoffman said he has high hopes for the season, but noted he and the team are anxious to get out of the gym. Like other springs sports, the team has been unable to practice outside and has already had one game cancelled and if weather. The team's game slated for Friday, April 12 against Harbor Light (weather permitting) has been moved to the city's Carpenter Street field because the field at the high school will still be too wet.

"The girls and coaches want to get out the gym," Hoffman said. "You really can't have a full practice in the gym. The gym floor is nothing like the dirt. The girls get used the bounces on the gym floor and then we get outside and ball stays down in the dirt."

On the schedule for next week, if Mother Nature cooperates, the Rayders will travel to Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday, April 16, host Traverse City Christian on Thursday, April 18, and travel to Boyne City on Friday, April 19

Girls soccer team shuts out Grayling in season opener

GRAYLING — Senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer had a pair of goals, while sophomore midfielder Elizabeth Way and senior midfielder Maura Brandi each added a goal apiece as the Rayders opened the season with a 4-0 Lake Michigan Conference win Tuesday on the road.

Also for the Rayders, senior midfielder Anna Way had a pair of assists, while senior Sydney Carlson added an assist.

"It was a good start and it was good for us to get out of the gym and get outside," Charlevoix first-year coach Pete Scholten said.

"The conditions weren't ideal, but we have some tough girls and some tough kids and they played their hearts out. It was a great way to start the season."

The Rayders dominated the game throughout offensively, finishing with 20 shots on goal.

Junior forward Katie Kitely, freshman forward Kelsey Engstrom and freshman midfielder Kylee Scholten also led the way offensive for the Rayders.

"We're ready," Scholten said. "It's been a bummer Mother Nature is not cooperating for us right now, but it worked out well for us. We went to Olivet College on March 23 before spring break and played outside in 25 degree temperatures on turf fields and we practiced outside yesterday."

Gloria Greene and Bailee Stevens split the goalkeeping duties and shutout in goal for the Rayders. Stevens had nine saves in the second half.

Defensively, the Rayders were led by Carolena Elowsky, Katie Paramo and Carlson.

"Senior defender Katie Paramo stepped up with stellar defense on both the outside and stopper positions," Scholten said.

The Rayders' game that had been slated at Kalkaska on Thursday, April 11 was called off because of bad weather. Up next the Rayders are slated to host Traverse City St. Francis on Monday, April 15 and Boyne City on Thursday, April 18. Kickoff for both games is set for 5 p.m.

Weather already wreaking havoc on spring sports

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Although the high school spring sports season was set to get into full swing this week lingering cold, wet and, yes, snowy weather has already prompted postponements or cancellations of a slew of Charlevoix Rayder sports events.

On Monday a large snow drift still remained between the high school softball and baseball fields and both fields were quite soggy.

And it doesn't look like Mother Nature is planning any help in the near future.

The weather forecast calls for temperatures in the mid- to upper 30s and good chances of rain, snow and wind over the next several days.

Among the events that were cancelled or postponed this week were the girls tennis match at Grayling was called off Monday; Wedenesday's baseball and softball home softball games against Newberry; Thursday's girls soccer game at Kalkaska and girls tennis at home against Petoskey's JV; Friday's varsity baseball at home against Kalkaska and JV baseball at Kalkaska and Cadillac Invitational track meet.

As of Wednesday afternoon, the a home softball game against Harbor Light (to be played on the city's Carpenter Street field) was still scheduled to take place.

Charlevoix High School Athletic Director Brian Certa said it will likely take several days of no precipitation before the baseball and softball fields will be ready for play. In the meantime, Certa will be working with other athletic directors to re-schedule as many games as possible.

A large snow drift still remained in front of the visitors' dugout on the Charlevoix high school baseball field Monday.

Plenty of talent returning for Rayder girls tennis team

Editor's note: Because of reporter's error the Charlevoix Rayder girls tennis season preview story that appeared on page B1 of the Friday, April 5 edition of the Charlevoix Courier contained multiple errors. A corrected and updated version of the story appears below.

Plenty of talent remains for the Charlevoix Rayders girls tennis team to compete for the Lake Michigan Conference crown in 2013.

Even with the loss of five seniors from last season's team, including No. 1 singles player Kelsey Way, the Rayders remain a experienced and veteran team for coach Andra Randall.

This season, five seniors and five juniors hold the team together.

Junior Madi Carey returns to singles for the Rayders, where she held the No. 2 spot throughout last season. Carey will move into the No. 1 singles spot this season.

"She has worked hard on her game and has a very powerful serve and fast game which helped her earn the No. 1 singles position," Randall said. "She will be a leader this year for the rest of the team."

Junior Lexie Barnes holds down the No. 2 spot, while senior Kelsea Stevens, who held the No. 3 spot for the Rayders a year ago, will resume the position this year. Senior Taylor Markgraf rounds out the Rayders singles unit at the No. 4 spot.

The Rayders doubles teams remain the strong point of the team with the return of No. 1 doubles team Karley Pearsall and Cassidy Peebles, both seniors.

"Back healthy, Karley hopes to play some strong doubles matches," Randall said. "Both seniors are really excited and focused on playing together and making a impact on our matches and conference matches."

The No. 2 doubles team of juniors Emily Roloff and junior Mallory Murray also returns to the lineup.

Senior Carley Scholey returns to her No. 3 doubles spot, where she'll be paired with sophomore Cassie McCraney.

Newcomers to the Rayders lineup will make up the No. 4 doubles team with the likes of Hannah Ennis, Ellie Ackerman, Karys Martin, Madyson Wojan, Sarah Rockafellow and Rachel Thompson competing.

"They all show a great passion for learning the game of tennis and I am excited to see how their commitment to the team is unfolding," Randall added.

The Rayders had been slated to open their season this week with two matches, but both were called off because of bad weather.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by Harvey L. Coates, a married man, Erica D. Coates, his wife of Charlevoix County, Michigan, Mortgagor to Independent Mortgage Co. West MI dated the 8th day of February, 2006, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for the County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, on the 14th day of February, 2006, in Liber 731, Page 87 of Charlevoix Records, which said mortgage was assigned to Independent Bank, thru mesne assignments, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal of $81,641.53 (eighty-one thousand six hundred forty-one and 53/100) plus accrued interest at 6.375% (six point three seven five) percent per annum. And no suit proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statue of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on, the 3rd day of May, 2013, at 11:00:00 AM said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction; to the highest bidder, main lobby of the Charlevoix County Courthouse, Charlevoix, MI, Charlevoix County, Michigan, of the premises described in said mortgage. Which said premises are described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the City of Boyne City, in the County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan and described as follows to wit: Situated in the City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan: Lot 4, Block A, Assessor's Terrace Addition to the City of Boyne City, according to the recorded plat thereof, as recorded in Liber 2 of Plats, Page 9. Commonly known as: 419 East Street Tax Parcel No.: 15-051-255-004-00 If the property is sold at a foreclosure sale the borrower, pursuant to MCLA 600.3278 will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period. The redemption period shall be six months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with 1948CL 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale. 2090 BIDS WANTED

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
Sandblast, Prime, and Painting of Fire Hydrants

The City of Charlevoix will be accepting sealed bids until 2:30pm, May 8, 2013 for the service of complete abrasive blasting, priming and painting of approximately 140 fire hydrants throughout the City of Charlevoix. All bids shall be sealed and clearly marked HYDRANT PAINTING, and directed to the City Clerk, Carol Ochs. The City Clerk's office is located at 210 State Street, Charlevoix MI., 49720. All questions or inquiries shall be directed to Pat Elliott at 231-547-3276.

A copy of the "local bidders preference policy" can be viewed at the City's website: www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

The City of Charlevoix reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals, to waive irregularities and to accept the proposal deemed to be in the best interest of the City of Charlevoix. Overall project cost or unit cost will not be the only factor used in determining the lowest qualified bidder.

At a minimum bidders shall be licensed and insured, and include such documentation in the sealed bid provided to the City.

The successful contractor shall have, in place, throughout the duration of this agreement general liability and work comp insurance in the amount of $2,000,000.00. This policy shall also name the City of Charlevoix as additional insured. If at any point this insurance requirement is not met the City reserves the right to make this agreement null and void.

It is important that all bidders are aware of the seasonality of Charlevoix and in particular the downtown area. The successful bidder will need to schedule the hydrant abrasive blasting and painting around the numerous events throughout our downtown. In no way will the successful bidder be allowed to negatively impact any festival or event being held within the City. Actual scheduling will be coordinated between the contractor and the Public Works Superintendent prior to commencing work on the hydrants.

Timeframe for completion of the painting of approximately 140 hydrants; the successful bidder shall complete the painting of approximately 140 hydrants during the spring, summer, and early fall of 2013. Specific weather conditions are covered in detail under "general specifications" later in this document.

Patrick Elliott, DPW Superintendent

Special meeting set to consider fireplace design

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday decided to set a special meeting to consider a more detailed final design for a contentious outdoor community fireplace project in the city's East Park that has been the source of much debate since late last summer.

Designer Richard Hitz, who has been working with consultant Mark Buday on redesigning the fireplace for the past several months, presented a more finalized version of the revised design to the council Monday.

The fireplace as approved on Aug. 9 last year, was originally designed to be 8 feet square at its base and topped by a chimney for a total structure height of about 20 feet. The redesigned version now has a low profile — only about 2-feet tall — with oval bowl design and no chimney.

Hitz explained at an earlier meeting that the aim of the re-design was to fulfill the original intent of the fireplace to serve as an attraction and gathering space in the downtown, especially in the cooler seasons — while addressing one of the biggest concerns raised by opponents of the project: its size and impact on the view from Bridge Street.

This drawing created by Richard Hitz shows one view of the final East Park community fireplace design that the Charlevoix City Council is considering.

The design Hitz presented Monday also included four permanent benches around the fireplace.

However the biggest concern about the design most had at the meeting, and the element that is yet to be finalized, is a sculpture that will serve the dual purpose of aesthetics and safety.

Hitz said the sculptural element would not only provide a more "dynamic" look to the structure, but it would serve to keep people from getting too close to the flames and keep people from throwing items into the fire. That element of the fireplace has yet to be

Caring legacy

Dwight 'Ike' Boss had a big heart for community's youth

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Boss

The Charlevoix and Ellsworth communities said good-bye this week to a man who many say had a significant impact on the area's youth through his many years of involvement in sports and recreation.

Dwight "Ike" Boss, died Thursday, April 11, at the age of 67, of cancer.

People in those communities don't have to look far to see the legacy Boss leaves behind.

Ike taught grades five through eight at Ellsworth Community School for 31 years, and had served as principal for a short time. He coached girl's basketball in Ellsworth for 24 years, compiling a lifetime record of 409-124, and served as the recreation director for the city of Charlevoix for 35 years.

Outside of his immediate family, perhaps one of the people who knew Ike best was his nephew, Bo Boss. Bo, who is still the manager of the city's Mount McSauba Ski Area, worked side-by-side with his uncle at the ski area for 35 years.

"Ike was one of Charlevoix's more colorful characters. He had his own (old school) style which sometimes portrayed a rather gruff exterior," Bo Boss said. "Everyone who had the chance to really know Ike, found a very kind, caring and extremely generous man."

Bo said his uncle had a "tremendous impact" on what he estimates are thousands of area youth over the years.

"I feel so blessed — how many people get to have the chance to work side by side with their best friend for over 35 years? We had many good times, some tough times, we laughed a lot and sometimes we shed a few tears," he said.

Perhaps one of Ike's most visible legacies will be the well groomed snow that skiers and snowboarders have and will continue to enjoy at Mount McSauba.

Jim Bartlett, area manager for Nub's Nob in Harbor Springs, worked closely with Ike to build snow-making guns for the ski area using the same technology used at Nub's Nob.

"He felt (the snow guns) were necessary as part of the program," Bartlett said. "He came to the conclusion that, just like the big (ski areas) you've got to have this if you're going to be in the (skiing) game."

"I give him all the credit in the world," Bartlett said. "I can't tell you how many hours he and Bo worked on that ... His whole thing was about the kids. He wanted to provide a quality environment for them to enjoy."

And, Bartlett said, he succeeded.

"I travel all over, and it's a really nice

School district budget battles continue

Athletic director position restructured for next year

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix Public Schools' 2012-2013 amended school budget — first up for consideration in February — failed to be approved, yet again, at Monday's regular board meeting as board trustee Glen Catt said he could not support the budget.

Reading at the meeting from a prepared statement, Catt said, "I believe there has been an act of malfeasance since the board approved the budget last year. While I support honoring our commitments to our suppliers, contractors and our employees, most importantly, I cannot in good conscience approve this budget."

This budget would have reflected cuts to the high school, middle school and elementary school budgets as well as the athletic budget totalling $44,335. That would leave the district's expected 2012-2013 year-end fund balance at $83,484. Prior to those proposed cuts, the budget was expected to wind up at about $40,000 the end of June.

The board struck down the proposed amended budget on Monday 3-2. Catt, vice president Kevin Pearsall and trustee Mike Pearsall voted against the proposed budget amendment. Board president John McLean and secretary and treasurer Valerie Snyder voted in support of the proposed amendment.

Trustees Dick Joseph and Nancy Allison were both absent.

Catt objected to the difference in school fund balances between when the school's 2012-2013 budget was first passed on July 1, when the school had its annual audit in August, and when the dangerously-low fund balance of about $40,000 was revealed in January.

According to the 2012-2013 budget as approved by the board on July 1, 2012, and posted on the school district's website, the assigned fund balance was projected to be $219,989 at the end of the 2012-2013 school year. Then, at the Aug. 27, 2012, board meeting, the board was presented with the school's annual audit. That audit reviewed the school's finances through June 30, 2012, and showed a fund balance of $452,827.

Catt

"It's tough. I'm trying to figure out what happened, and what happened to our fund balance there," said Catt in an interview following the meeting.

But Jeff Crouse, assistant superintendent with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, said com-

Crash injures one, causes fuel leak

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

A Charlevoix County Road Commission truck spreada sand to absorb diesel fuel that was spilled as a result of a collsion between a semi and a sport utility vehicle on M-66 north of Wickersham Road south of Charlevoix Wednesday.

A Charlevoix woman sustained minor injuries Wednesday when the vehicle she was driving collided with a semi truck. The crash also caused a diesel fuel leak.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured woman as Jodi Shepard of Charlevoix. Police said Shepard was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by her husband where she was treated for minor injuries.

The crash happened at about 8:38 a.m. on M-66 near Castleview Drive in Marion Township.

Deputies said Craig Butwell of Boyne Falls was driving a Poquette Leasing tractor-trailer south on M-66 when he attempted to make a right turn into a factory driveway. Authorities said Butwell reported that because of the length of the trailer he was hauling, before he began the turn, he moved the semi into the oncoming (northbound) lane to make the right turn into the factory easier to accomplish.

Deputies said Shepard was driving a Chevrolet Suburban following the semi truck and reported seeing the semi's right turn signal come on, but assumed it was going to turn left down a private drive. The Suburban struck the tractor near the passenger door puncturing the 100 gallon fuel tank on that side of the tractor. Diesel fuel spilled onto the roadway, but authorities are unsure of the exact amount.

Emergency crews shut down a section of M-66 between Loeb and Wickersham roads until about 10 a.m. to allow clean-up work to take place.

Deputies were assisted on scene by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, city of Charlevoix Police Department and ambulance, and the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Board minutes called into question

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Should public comments at local governmental meetings be recorded in the minutes by the county clerk word-for-word? Should they be summarized? Should they be included at all?

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners debated these question during its meeting Wednesday, April 10, after commissioner Larry Sullivan voiced a complaint that the minutes for the board's March 13 meeting were insufficient.

Despite his concern, the minutes were adopted by the board in a 5-1 vote, Sullivan the lone dissenter.

Sullivan's concern stemmed from the lack of mention in the minutes that several individuals stood up during the unscheduled public comment portion of the meeting and spoke in support of the county maintaining its recycling contract with Emmet County, including the city managers of Boyne City and East Jordan.

"There were a number of comments regarding the opposition by persons making unscheduled public comments to terminating the contract with Emmet County and I didn't see that reflected or borne out in the minutes," Sullivan said. "Everyone present, besides Bob Taylor, voiced opposition to ending the contract."

Rather than including that information, clerk Cheryl Potter Browe drew up minutes to include a short summary of some of the things the commenters said, while not relating that they were opposed to breaking the contract.

"At the least it's deceptive. At the most it's deliberately dishonest," said Nancy Ferguson, chair of the county recycling committee.

Ferguson spoke to the board on March 13 about why she believed the county should maintain its existing recycling contract.

Rather than detailing which decision by the board Ferguson was in support of or opposed to, the minutes simply state that "Ms. Ferguson addressed her timeline and reviewed it. Ms. Ferguson wanted it known that there are two good companies that they are working with."

"I was always told, you don't type anything verbatim, but type who spoke," said Browe, in response to Sullivan's complaint. "Unless it's a public hearing." All board of commissioner meetings are recorded and the audio is available to the public at the clerk's office, she added.

That is the case under Michigan law, said county civil counsel Bryan Graham, but the board could change the method of recording minutes if that was something they desired.

"Legally, only decisions need to be put down," said commissioner Ron Reinherdt. "Putting it in minutes, personally, I don't think it's necessary."

In fact, he said, it could be cumbersome to detail word-for word what each citizen had to say.

Sullivan explained that he was not looking for a verbatim report of what the public had to say, but an accurate summary of their opinions.

Perhaps, said commissioner Chris Christensen, the clerk could record the names of those who spoke in favor of or in opposition to a specific topic.

"I would not suggest a change of methods in taking minutes," said chair of the board Joel Evans.

During public comment at the meeting Wednesday, county residents Roger Conaway and Don Forbes spoke up in favor of the clerk presenting more detailed accounts of public comments in meeting minutes.

Ferguson also spoke up. It is $5 for a member of the public to get a disc with the audio recording of the meetings, she said.

"People shouldn't have to pay $5 to find out what's going on." That information should be made available in the minutes, she said.

Browe reported that she plans to attend a clerk conference in June. There will be a presentation at the conference on methods of taking minutes. She will take notes there and report back to the board what she learns, she said.

The clerk's office and human resources department are working to make all meetings available to the public in video format on the county's website, said human resources coordinator Kevin Shepard.

Public hearing set on zoning ordinance overhaul

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The City of Charlevoix Planning Commission is nearing the home stretch of its years-long effort to overhaul the city's outdated zoning ordinance and the next step in the process will be a fourth, and possibly final, public hearing on the draft ordinance before it goes to the city council for consideration.

The hearing will take place at the planning commission's next meeting, set for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23, in the city council chambers at city hall.

Although the first draft of the revised ordinance was unveiled in August, the groundwork for the overhaul goes back to 2010 when the commission updated the city land use master plan. The goals and objectives of the master plan have served as the guide for the ordinance revision process, city planner Mike Spencer said.

Depending on public input and their discussions, the commission could vote to send the ordinance on to the city council at the same meeting.

Over the past months, the planning commission has conducted three public hearings and multiple meetings and work sessions on the draft ordinance. Following are some of the more notable, and most discussed, elements of the draft ordinance summarized by Spencer:

— Modification of the building appearance standards section. This includes commercial or mixed use developments only on U.S. 31 or M-66 and does not include the downtown. This section requires pitched roofs. (Flat roofs and typical strip mall looking developments are not permitted.) Commercial buildings with a more residential look are permitted and encouraged. Front setbacks have been reduced to encourage better architecture and landscaping. Side or rear parking may be required for new developments. The goal is to improve the look and design of buildings in the commercial and mixed use districts on the major access corridors to the city.

— Changes to the number and size of accessory structures allowed in residential areas.

— Overall reduction in the number of parking spots required for commercial developments.

— Flexible standards for downtown buildings including an increase in structure height allowed and waiving parking requirements for downtown buildings facing Bridge Street between Antrim and the Pine River Channel. This is an attempt to encourage redevelopment or building up downtown.

— The planning commission, after some discussion, decided to continue to allow short term rentals in residential areas.

Spencer further summarized other changes contained in the draft ordinance, writing, "The zoning ordinance is intended to guide responsible future growth and development, protect public health and safety, provide for efficient transportation, preserve and protect neighborhood character, to prevent over-congestion of structures, protect water quality, and encourage redevelopment of existing outdated structures."

Other changes and updates include:

— The draft zoning ordinance is better organized and has much clearer language complemented by graphics to better define specific requirements.

— The zoning is compliant with all State of Michigan laws pertaining to planning and zoning, specifically the Zoning Enabling Act. (PA 110 of 2006)

— The zoning ordinance addresses unclear or missing language that has been discovered in administering specific requirements in the past.

— Numerous rezonings are proposed at various locations throughout the city. These are proposed to accommodate changes in land use that have occurred since 1978, address economic changes, guide future development toward appropriate locations, encourage mixed-use developments and promote higher density in appropriate locations.

— Reduction in the number of zoning districts.

— Creation of a mixed use commercial district along Bridge Street.

— Less restrictive setback requirements in residential, commercial and mixed use zoning districts.

— Regulations to address solar panels and wind energy systems.

— New regulations on accessory uses such as athletic courts in residential areas.

— Clear regulations on boathouses.

— Clear language on temporary buildings, uses and special events.

— Changes to landscaping requirements for commercial and industrial zoned properties.

— Changes to parking requirements. Less restrictive parking requirements and the ability to do shared parking lots.

— Minor changes to sign regulations.

— Streamlined development plan review procedures.

— Changes to special land use review procedures.

— New planned unit development (PUD) review procedures and standards allowing for flexibility in zoning if specific community benefits can be achieved.

— New language on nonconforming lots, uses and structures.

— New regulations on sexually oriented businesses.

— Changes to zoning board of appeals review procedures and standards.

Pavement quality report shows strides in the right direction

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW

Mike Woods (left), of the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments and Pat Harmon, of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, presented good news to the county board of commissioners last week on the quality of paved roads in the county.

The results of a survey of the quality of pavement on federal aid roads in Charlevoix County reveals some good news.

The Northwest Michigan Council of governments, in cooperation with county road commissions and the Michigan Department of Transportation, heads out annually on the roads in a 10-county region to evaluate pavement quality, identify needs and offer transportation planning assistance to local governments.

Mike Woods, a planner for the council, reported the results of the most recent survey to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week.

Roads that are eligible for federal funding based on traffic volume have improved in the county. The roads were rated from one to 10 and then given a designation of poor, fair or good.

The number of miles of roads that improved from a poor to fair rating in the past year went up more than almost any other county in the region, reported Woods. Eight percent of roads jumped from poor to good and more than 10 percent went up one quality category.

"That is among the top within our 10-county region," he revealed.

"The one thing that stands out to me is that the number of miles in good category have been increasing while the number of miles in the poor category have been going down," Woods said.

The council has data going back to 2008. Currently, the number of roads in poor condition in Charlevoix County are the lowest they have been since 2009. Conversely, miles of roads in both the fair and good categories are the highest they've been in the past four years.

Half of the county's federal aid roads are in fair condition. 20 percent are good and 30 percent are poor.

"It comes back to the road millage. That's the major factor," said commissioner Chris Christensen upon hearing the report. "There are a number of counties going the other way because they don't have the same set up we have here."

"If we didn't have this millage we'd be off the scale in the other direction had," agreed road commission manager Pat Harmon.

Several township millages have also helped out, added commissioner Ron Reinhardt.

Charlevoix County voters passed a 15-year road millage five years ago and 11 out of 15 townships in the county have road millages.

Library welcomes 'Creative Kids'

Creative Kids Day events at Charlevoix Public Library include some sort of movement activity, including the parachute.

The Charlevoix Public Library is hosting a Creative Kids Day from 10 a.m.-11:30 a.m. Thursday, April 25.

This special day for toddlers, preschoolers and their parents or guardians will provide an opportunity for art projects, cooking, face painting, music and stories. Different stations will be set up in the Youth Department of the library for kids to participate in a wide variety of activities.

"The kids really love all the unique activity Creative Kids Day provides," said librarian Laura Potter, "especially the ones that get their hands dirty!"

All families are invited. The program is brought to the library through a collaboration of Early On Northwest, Early/Head Start, Char-Em Intermediate School District, MSU Extension, Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians, Department of Human Services, Health Department, Charlevoix Public Library, Great Start Collaborative, Child Care Connections and community volunteers.

For more information about this or other kids programs at the library, call (231) 237-7350 or visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

Regardless of origin, behaviors can change

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The chicken and egg theory: Which came first and is it really important?

This article has nothing to do with fowl or omelets. What I do want to share is human behavior and whether it's genetic or environmental.

Not often, but sometimes, I get asked my opinion regarding what came first when forming the personality, likes and dislikes and emotions of an individual. Specific behaviors that may drive us crazy that we see in someone else can bring about interesting discussions, especially if you play the blame game. This is not one of those games to be brought out at family reunions.

Are we are all destined to be a certain personality at birth? Did our parents raise us in a particular manner and encourage us to become who we are today? My own personal experiences along with coursework in the area of abnormal psychology helped me in forming my own opinion. My thoughts on this are: Genes shape our behavior and personality traits: environment gives us the opportunity to change them.

When I am asked for professional advice regarding an individual's behavior, before I bring up sibling placement, drug use or depression, I delve into genetics. More often than not an individual acquires his or her personality traits and mental capabilities from a grandparent. Now, for years children have blamed their outcomes on their parents but I'm here to tell you it usually skips a generation. Our looks, mannerisms, height, weight, and personality can be traced back to good old Grandma or Grandpa.

For girls the usual trace pattern is their father and then their grandmother. For boys the diagram usually follows mom, and then Grandpa. Of course there are exceptions, but my own research follows this hierarchy and since this is an Opinion Page and not a term paper I'll digress.

As a licensed professional counselor, I've had the unique opportunity to experience being birthed into one family and raised in another. This knowledge plus years of experience in the counseling field have led me to these conclusions. Genetics outweighs environment, but if a person chooses and is open to change he or she will make some change, if given a positive and comfortable environment. Change can occur, but it happens because the individual feels change will be helpful in the long run.

When I hear someone say that he can't change how he reacts, solves, confronts, and faces various life situations, we discuss that any change is possible in small steps if you want to change. So, even though your character traits are formed at birth, if you are open and accepting to making small changes, your life on this planet may be a bit different.

We all take ourselves too seriously at times and if we think about how short life is we might appreciate and focus on the good qualities we garnered from Grandma and Grandpa and not the ones we don't care to talk about. The environment in which we grew up and modeled may help us attain a specific vocation or amount of education because it's considered the norm for our family. If families live in chaos then chaos may be what they create in new relationships to feel more at home. If your family members express their emotions, then you may have learned to talk about things that bother you. These behaviors are learned, but the bottom line is they are also a part of who you are genetically, and environment encourages and supports this behavior.

In stressful times we tend to look at the dark side and brood over what we can't change about ourselves or others. Maybe it would be more helpful to focus on the positive traits in ourselves and others and rejoice in knowing that change may take place in little steps when we are encouraged to do so in a calm and positive environment. Bottom line: Not all designer genes are 'one size fits all.'

Knights of Columbus offer thanks for cash party

On behalf of the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Council 7172, we wish to express our thanks to all who supported the 37th Annual Cash Raffle Party held Saturday, April 13, 2013 at the Castle Farms.

Comments fro attendees said this was the best Cash Raffle Party ever-from the "Disc-O-Nection" music to the "A Matter of Taste" catering to "Cheers" Beverage Service, and judging from the crowd-everyone seemed to have a great time.

As we have promoted numerous times, the net proceeds from the community support goes right back into the community via Knights contributions to over 22 groups and numerous individuals in need.

We greatly appreciate the special guests this year-Bishop Bernard Hebda of the Gaylord Diocese who attended with Fr. Matthew Wigton following St. Mary's Parish Communion/Confirmation service, and Ms. Linda Mueller, Owner of Castle Farms.

We also appreciate the support from area merchants who work with the Council so we use LOCAL supplies and services!

Sincerely,

Steve Seely and Roger Nesburg,
Event co-chairs

Volunteers appreciated

Editor:

National Volunteer Appreciation Week is being celebrated April 21-27. The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan feels incredibly fortunate to be surrounded by caring, dedicated and talented volunteers. We appreciate the work they do in many of our program areas and are grateful for the support they provide to our organization and clients every single day. Last year alone, WRCNM volunteers provided 5,684 hours of service to our agency. Through their valuable commitment, our organization was able to provide life-changing services to thousands of Northern Michigan residents.

Many of our volunteers work at the Safe Home engaging with families and staffing the crisis phone line; others assist customers at our two Gold Mine Resale Shops by running the cash register and helping with the overall operations of the stores; local men and women serve on our Violence Prevention Team furthering the work of social change within our community; and our board of directors provide leadership and insight for the agency. We are also grateful for the individuals that donate their time through the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (R.S.V.P.) of the Emmet County Friendship Center to help with clerical tasks and agency mailings, in addition to the many service groups and community members who have assisted with a variety of projects from fund-raising to facility upkeep throughout the year.

We thank this remarkable group of people who are willing to give so much without expecting anything in return. Because of their volunteer support, the Women's Center is able to accomplish so much more for so many in our community.

Thank you, WRCNM volunteers!

Sincerely,

Jamie Winters
Safe Home Coordinator

Two buildings right choice for school district

There has been a lot of discussion about our school board's decision to go to a two building configuration next school year. It is important for everyone to understand the history of how we got to this point from a variety of perspectives.

First, we cannot ignore the fact that Charlevoix has lost a lot of our student population. We have lost 400 students since 2002; this is 90 students more than what currently attend Charlevoix High School. In the last several years families and businesses have moved out of our town. (You see the shuttered windows in our community.) With students gone, so is the district's funding; losing 10 students equates roughly a $80,000 loss in revenue.

Add to our declining enrollment losses the state's shrinking funding for public education. Since 1994, the state of Michigan's funding has decreased by approximately $1,000/pupil statewide

Since 2008, Charlevoix's state funding has dropped $500/pupil. Unfunded mandates and typical cost of living increases continue to rise while cost-shifting from the state to our school's general fund and employees' paychecks eats up our discretionary revenues and forces us into cuts.

For Charlevoix school employees, these cost shifts result in paying out 26 percent of our salaries even though we haven't seen a pay/step increase for two years. Working with our school board, and in an effort to shore up our financial situation, Charlevoix's school employees agreed to a two year contract giving approximately $1 million dollars in concessions. These concessions approximate a $6,000/year loss in revenue for our employees.

Our district has also cut millions of dollars from our operating expenses over the past decade. Superintendent Gendron has presented these cuts to the community. His budget Powerpoint outlines many of the actions our district has taken. The financial update Powerpoint in his blog spells out the issues we've been and continue to face. Yet by using the educational knowledge of our administrative team over the years, our district has cut significantly while maintaining our district's high academic and supportive environment.

Which is why over the past five years or so the idea of moving to a two-building configuration was investigated. As a parent and educator, I am excited by the potential the two building configuration brings. Maintaining three buildings with limited staff resources at hand spreads us too thin making it more difficult to provide a solid education. In discussions I've had with my high school students, they wished they had this opportunity afforded to them. Advancement in courses, additional assistance when struggling, and access to more vocational and extra-curricular programs are things they cited. For me, I know that Rayders excel, and with this, as with everything else, we will thrive.

However, I caution you to stay tuned to the state's K-12 funding process for things are changing yet again. Charlevoix Public Schools' funding was significantly cut by Proposal A, even though the promise of equal funding for districts has not been achieved. We may be cut even further by the changes coming out of Lansing in the next year or two. The "Any Time, Any Place, Any Way, Any Pace" school funding plan will be vastly different from anything we've seen. Our public dollars will go to many more types of schools thereby spreading and decreasing school funding further.

Given the history, moving to two buildings is a sound decision that allows our staff to provide our services in the most efficient and effective manner possible. It will allow us to better weather whatever comes our way.

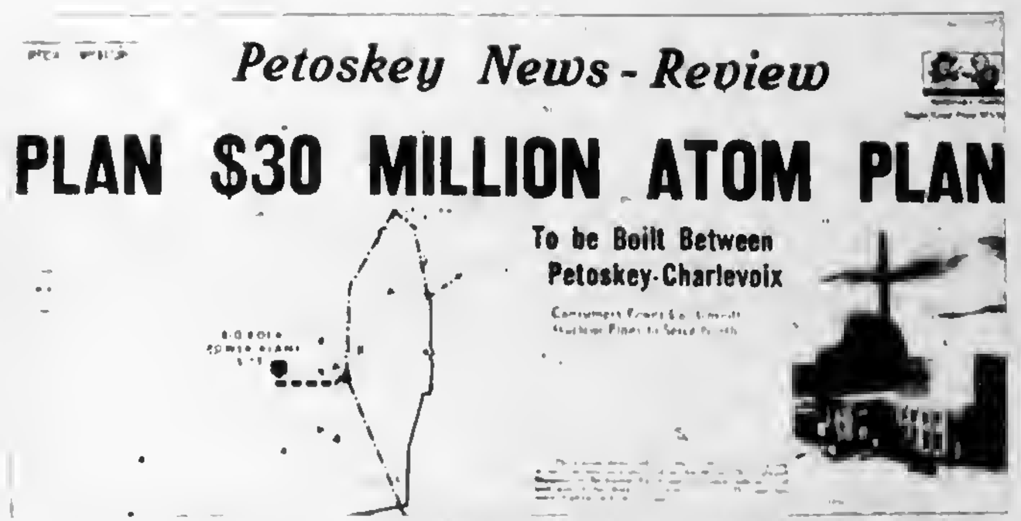
CHARLEVOIX LOOKING BACK…



Petoskey News-Review

PLAN $30 MILLION ATOM PLAN

To be Built Between Petoskey-Charlevoix

In the early summer of 1959, Charlevoix was rocked to its foundations when Consumers Power of Jackson announced the town had been chosen as the site of Michigan's first, and the nation's fifth, nuclear power plant. A discombobulated member of Charlevoix's upper crust almost went into hysterics at the thought of future radioactive smoke killing all the flowers in town. She never considered the residents. As can be seen in the headline, the Petoskey paper jealously tried to place the Big Rock Point plant closer to that town, and subsequent papers even claimed the plant was "near Petoskey," not Charlevoix. But up the little, and mainly experimental and research facility went only four miles north on the Lake Michigan shore. It soon became known around the world and was both a source of enormous local pride and ongoing protest and controversy, once even bearing the wrath of Ralph Nader. Big Rock Point set operational world records, its radioactive byproducts saved tens of thousands of lives, and during its active lifetime from September, 1962, to August, 1997, it saw 16 other nuclear plants come and go in the United States. Now only a bare, wild shore remains near the big rock landmark it was named after.

The Circle of Arts in Charlevoix will present Things with Wings, a multimedia display of flight inspired art. The show will run April 20-June 16 at 109 Clinton St., in Charlevoix. The exhibit's featured artist will be Charlevoix's own, Jim Lahade, wood carver and nature enthusiast.

"I have always been an outdoorsy person," said Lahade as he explained his connection with, and appreciation for, animals.

Lahade was born in the Upper Peninsula, and admits that, in spite of his travels around the United States, he is continually pulled back to Northern Michigan.

Before his carving days, Lahade was a school teacher. To earn extra money he would assist with nature studies at parks and nature preserves. He dabbled in the artistic world when he began making dioramas of animal habitats, educational displays and later even learned the art of taxidermy.

Lahade had the opportunity to test his talents in wood carving when he pursued an interest in duck hunting. He began carving ducks, then bears, and later found a knack for highly detailed birds. He focused on birds of prey such as raptors and hawks, but has been known to carve even the smallest of birds, such as a warbler.

Though he doesn't consider himself an artist, the intricate detail makes Lahade's work coveted by many. He sells his carvings by request and on a commission basis.

"I just do the best I can to replicate nature ... and, I carve because I like to carve," he said.

Lahade does not use a model for his carvings, but rather has mastered the shape and detail of animals through his taxidermy experience.

"I just know what the animal looks like from 50 years of dealing with animals," the retired teacher said.

Lahade said he uses tools ranging from a powerful chainsaw for full scale pieces to tiny dental drills for fine details. But the wood is really the key in making a quality piece he noted. He went on to say that one needs to find the softest wood without knots, that isn't going to crack. Tupelo, a wood found in Louisiana, and basswood work best for delicate pieces, Lahade said.

"And ducks have to be cedar so they float," he added.

Lahade — like the birds he depicts in his work — also goes south for the winter and will stop in Alabama and other states to pick up the best wood for his hobby.

The Circle of Arts asked Lahade to display his works for its Things with Wings exhibit. Lahade has spent a lot of time choosing from older pieces and creating new — some 35 carvings.

Char-Em ISD celebrates 50th anniversary April 19

This year, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District celebrates its 50th anniversary.

To mark the occasion, Char-Em ISD is inviting all current and former employees, boards of education members, area school personnel and other partners to help commemorate during a 50th anniversary celebration from 1-5 p.m. Friday, April 19, at the ISD's office in Charlevoix.

"There is much to celebrate," said current ISD Superintendent Rick Diebold said.

He noted that, over the years, the ISD staff and administrators have provided programming and services to the K-12 districts that have "exceeded the visions of the ISD founders in many cases."

During the April 19 open house, attendees will take a trip down memory lane by looking at photos, reviewing a historical timeline of Char-Em milestones, and browsing through a history book, created for the event. A gallery of enlarged historical photographs will be displayed on the walls throughout the ISD office. The celebration will include a brief program starting at 3:30 p.m. Executive secretaries Diane Chapman, Linda Johnson and ISD Director of Communication Services Dianne Litzenburger worked with other retires to plan the celebration. The event will provide opportunities for guests to both reminisce and see how things have changed.

"Diane, Linda, and I had a great time, laughing often, as we sorted through boxes of old documents and photographs, during our planning meetings," Litzenburger said. "We expect to hear more laughter as guests talk about the good times they had helping districts and students over the years."

Created by the Legislature in 1962, Char-Em ISD, one of Michigan's 56 educational service agencies, provides consolidated support services, which saves money and resources for K-12 districts. The ISD trains teachers and pilots innovative programs. Char-Em ISD also coordinates special education, alternative education and career and technical educational services across the region.

In 1963, Char-Em ISD became the first multi-county intermediate school district, by consolidating the school districts of Charlevoix and Emmet counties. A year later, Ellsworth and Central Lake public schools in Antrim County were annexed and joined the ISD. The ISD currently serves 11 local public schools, six private schools and three public school academies.

Charles Robinson served as the first superintendent. Ten board members were appointed until the biennial election of 1965 was held, when the Char-Em ISD Board of Education members were elected by popular vote.

"Char-Em remains only one of a handful of ISDs that elects board members by popular vote, rather than appointing them," Litzenburger said.

Both Litzenburger and Diebold are looking forward to seeing many current and retired staff, board members and others at the open house celebration.

Attendees are asked to bring a new or gently used children's book ranging from infant board books to chapter books. The books collected will be distributed by Great Start to children at community locations throughout the ISD's service area of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties.

Char-Em ISD's anniversary celebration will take place at their main office at 08568 Mercer Blvd., in Charlevoix.

Did you know that Char-Em ISD:

Has had only four superintendents in 50 years

Was the first multi-county ISD (1963)

Annexed Central Lake and Ellsworth (1964)

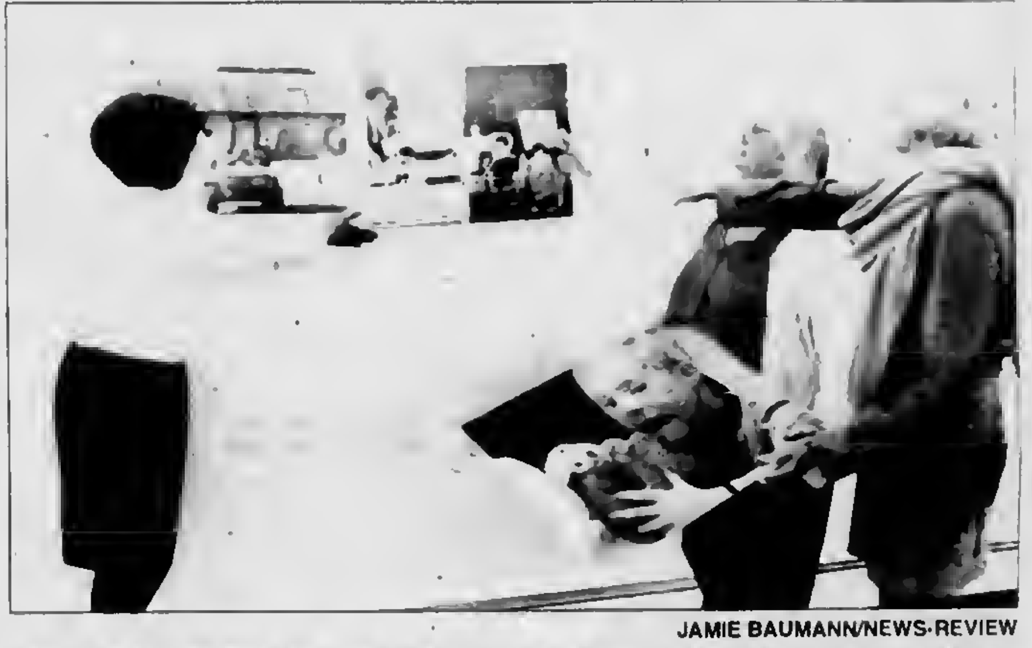
Was located in the Charlevoix County Building (1966)

Moved to its current location on Mercer Boulevard in Charlevoix (1972)

Acquired the Boyne Valley Educational Center in Boyne Falls (2000)

Added the Boyne City office (2001)

Added Patricia A. Taylor School for Exceptional Learners (2003)



JAMIE BAUMANN/NEWS-REVIEW

Executive secretaries Diane Chapman (from left) and Linda Johnson hold up enlarged historical photographs for Communication Services Director Dianne Litzenburger to view. Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District is preparing for a 50th anniversary celebration at their Charlevoix office from 1-5 p.m. on Friday, April 19.

OBITUARIES

Dwight M. 'Ike' Boss, 67

Dwight M. "Ike" Boss, 67, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, April 11, 2013, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He was born Sept. 21,1945, in Charlevoix to John E. and Iola (Chew) Boss. Ike graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1963, and earned a Bachelor of Arts in elementary education from Spring Arbor College in 1968. On June 11, 1966, he married Joyce A. Holcomb in Wilmore, Ky.

Ike taught grades five through eight at Ellsworth Community School for 31 years, and had served as principal for a short time. He coached girl's basketball in Ellsworth for 24 years, compiling a lifetime record of 409-124. Ike was the recreation director for the city of Charlevoix for 35 years.

He was a member of the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, served on the Charlevoix school board, and on the board of directors for B.A.S.E.S. Ike loved all sports, especially basketball. He enjoyed travel, music, "top down" cruising in his Jeep, and his 1968 Olds 442.

Ike is survived by his wife, Joyce; their children, Melissa (Jason) Wyglendowski of Astoria, Ore., and Jeffrey Boyd (Carrie Greetis) Boss of Charlevoix; granddaughters, Sarah and Erica Wyglendowski; brothers, Dale (Marilyn) Boss of Charlevoix, Dean (Beulah) Boss of Spring Arbor; sister, Marlene Terry of Lubbock, Texas; 18 nieces and nephews.

Ike was preceded in death by his parents, John and Iola; baby daughter, Christie Lynn, and grandson, J.T. Wyglendowski.

Visitation took place from 5-8 p.m. Monday, April 15, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. Funeral took place at 1 p.m. Tuesday, April 16, at the Community Reformed Church, the Rev. Chip Sauer officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix County Humane Society, 614 Beardsley, Boyne City, Mich. 49712, or to the Good Samaritan Family Services, 9746 Main Street, Ellsworth, Mich. 49729.

Please sign Ike's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Herb Beach

Herb Beach passed away at his home in Charlevoix April 8, 2013. He was born April 6, 1939, in Detroit to Roscoe and Edith Beach. Herb served in the U.S. Army in South Korea as a 1st Lieutenant Company Commander and Engineering Corps rebuilding bridges destroyed during the Korean War. Herb was guest of honor to the South Korean President in 1969 for the work he and his company performed at the request of the South Korean government.

Herb was the last of his generation, surviving the passing of his wife Luella Walter-Szymoniak-Beach; his parents; brothers, George, Bob, Jim, and Bill.

Surviving Herb are his stepchildren, Bob (Jenny), John (Dana), and Sandy Szymoniak; four grandchildren; one great-grandchild; many nieces and nephews.

Herb's family would like to thank all who knew him for their loving support and friendship.

No services are planned.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling arrangements.

The Northern Michigan Brass Band will The band will perform at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 28, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix

Brass band concert series continues in Charlevoix, Harbor Springs

The Northern Michigan Brass Band will present a pair of benefit concerts in its ongoing series Something for Everyone.

The band will perform at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 28, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix; and at 3 p.m. on Sunday, May 5, in the Harbor Springs Performing Arts Center in Harbor Springs.

Now in its 13th year of operation, this 27-piece, British-style ensemble will perform a program of brass band music by Edward Gregson, Johann Sebastian Bach, Zo Elliot, Karl King, Carl Hohne, Richard Rodgers, Cole Porter, Neal Hefti and The Beatles. The featured soloist on this program will be Edward R. Bahr, Northern Michigan Brass Band's principal euphonium and professor emeritus of low brass at Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss.

The program will open with "The Champions," a stirring British march by G.H. Wilcox, followed by "Variations on Laudate Dominum," an original composition for brass band by British composer Edward Gregson; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," by Bach in an arrangement for brass by Philip Sparke; "Slavische Fantasie" by Höbne featuring euphonium soloist Bahr; and "España Cañi," a Spanish paso doble by Pascual Marquina. In addition to a couple of circus marches by American composers Karl King and Orion Farrar, the program will also include the overture to "South Pacific" by Richard Rodgers and a couple of pieces popularized by swing era giants Count Basie and Frank Sinatra. The highlight of these particular concerts is sure to be outstanding brass players from each of the local schools joining the band for a performance of Zo Elliott's "British Eighth March."

Brass band conductor Ralph Schweigert said the idea for a series of programs based on the concept "something for everyone," originates from the fact that not everyone listens to music in the same way.

"Some people listen with their heads, others with their hearts and still others with their feet," Schweigert said. "I try to include music that will appeal to all these listening styles on any one program."

General admission is $10 with students admitted free. Proceeds from this benefit concert will go to support local school band programs including Charlevoix High School, Harbor Springs High School and Northwest Academy. Tickets will be available at the door.

Centered in Gaylord, the all-volunteer Northern Michigan Brass Band has attracted adult brass players from across Northern Michigan from Alpena to Traverse City and north to Mackinaw City, including Petoskey, Charlevoix, Bellaire, Williamsburg, East Jordan, Beulah and Gaylord. Since the band was organized in January of 1999, it has presented more than 70 concerts in various venues throughout Michigan. For more information about the band and these concerts, visit www.northernmichiganbrassband.org.

The Northern Michigan concerts are being sponsored in part by CMU Public Radio.

Kiwanis essay contest deadline May 8

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is sponsoring an essay contest open to all Charlevoix area students currently in the fifth grade.

In their essays, students are to explain, in one to two pages, which non-profit group they think an award of $50 should be given and why they have selected that particular charity.

The club will select multiple student essay contest winners and an award ceremony will take place to which winners and their parents will be invited. Each student who wrote a winning essay will be presented with a $50 check and the students in turn will present their check to their favorite charity.

Charlevoix Kiwanis Club officials said the organziation hopes to encourage fifth grade students to think about all of the good things that the various charities do to help our community.

The essay contest is named after former Charlevoix Kiwanis Club member Merle Vandenberg. Vandenberg served Kiwanis as president of the local club and as a lieutenant governor. He was a teacher and dedicated his life to helping Charlevoix area students.

The essay contest is open to all fifth graders. Essay deadline is Wednesday, May 8. Contact Gayle Gennett at (231) 547-5598 for more information.

Choral scholarship applications due May 3

The Northern Michigan Chorale will again offer its annual vocal music scholarship.

These scholarships are available for anyone of high school age or older. Applicants need to be a resident of Northern Michigan.

Letters of application are due by Monday, May 3 and must include name, address and phone number. Also, in the application letter, specify the planned use for the grant, such as vocal lessons or music camp assistance. Vocal students and high school applicants should provide a letter of recommendation from their music instructors.

Auditions will take place at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 6, at Petoskey United Methodist Church, 1804 East Mitchell Road.

Send letters of application to: Northern Michigan Chorale, Box 51, Petoskey, Mich. 49770.

facility, especially for a community that size ... What he did with McSauba is something that's going to last for many years to come."

Dean Davenport, who himself served as the summer recreation director for 18 summers, got to know Ike well when he worked for Davenport in a college internship and later in many capacities.

"He knew what Charlevoix needed and organized it very well," Davenport said, noting that he helped acquire several grants that enabled the city to upgrade their facilities. "He had a unique love for our city of Charlevoix, always wanting the best for the town and was willing to do the work to achieve it ... He was rightfully proud of his many years as the city's recreation director and will be missed by those he touched through the years."

Davenport said he also played on a fast pitch softball team with Ike and he remembers him as "a solid player and an excellent teammate."

"I watched him coach at Ellsworth and he was a tough but fair coach that had much success," Davenport said. "He was so into doing things 'right' for his girls."

But Ike's concern for the community's youth went beyond the playing field, as he spent many years serving the board of directors for Bay Area Substance Abuse Education Services (BASES).

BASES director Scott Kelly said Ike not only served on the board, but was one of the organization's primary volunteers doing tasks such as helping answer the phones and working the concession counter at the teen center when staff was sick or on vacation.

"He was always willing to help out a teen who said he or she was hungry for a snack by purchasing them a candy bar, soda or one of Ike's favorites — ice cream for all."

Growing up in Charlevoix, Kelly knew Ike as a teacher and successful coach from Ellsworth, but he also worked closely with Ike on men's fast pitch softball in Charlevoix since the 1980s and later on many other softball-related events. He noted that for many years Ike and his wife, Joyce, ran the concession stand at the ball park as well.

"Ike was always willing to help out to host tournaments and make the experience the best it could be for the players, coaches, fans and umpires who came to Charlevoix," Kelly said.

Kelly also recalled fond memories of Ike's regular morning visits to his father's refinishing shop where they frequently had coffee and talked about the current events of Charlevoix.

"There was always bantering and good humored fun back and forth with all of the retirees sometimes putting their own twist on the local gossip."

Kelly added, "Ike had a big heart and was always willing to help out. Several times over the years Ike would tell me, 'I don't have the money to be able to contribute like some of the others, but I will definitely share my time.' And as we all learn, time is our biggest and most precious commodity. Ike will be missed."

In honor of his years of service to the city, Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. ordered city of Charlevoix flags to be flown at half-staff.

Ike Boss' funeral took place 1 p.m. Tuesday, April 16, at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church, with the Rev. Chip Sauer officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

MEETING

designed, but Hitz, who is offering his services to the city free of charge continues to work on the issue and hoped to have a concept for the council to consider at the special meeting.

Hitz showed a couple of examples. One, for instance, would look like sticks surrounding the fire.

Several members of the audience and council member Lyle Gennett voiced concerns about how well such a piece could protect people, especially children from getting burned.

Audience member Gabe Campbell, who is one of four people running against three members of the council in an upcoming May 7 recall election, said the council should wait until after the election to make its decision on the fireplace.

"If you can hold off until after election, it won't look like you are trying to rush something through," Campbell said.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. responded that the council isn't rushing the matter adding, "If they wanted to rush it through, they could have done that a long time ago."

Gennett said he thinks the council should take a bit more time on the final design — at least longer than a week.

Ultimately, the council voted 4-1, with Gennett casting the dissenting vote, to schedule the special meeting for 6 p.m. on Monday, April 22. (Council member Shane Cole was absent from the meeting.) The meeting will convene in Plaza B in East Park to allow the council and members of the public to see first-hand roughly where the elements of the fireplace would be placed. The meeting will the temporarily adjourn back to the council's chambers at city hall where the council will discuss the design, take further public comment, and possible decide if the project will move forward. At the same meeting, if the council decides to go forward with the project, it will also consider a draft contract with John Wunn, who has been representing the anonymous donor who originally offered to donate the fireplace to the city. Among the items that the contract spells out is that the fireplace should be "self-funding" and that taxpayer money should not be spent for its operation.

Also at Monday's meeting, the council unanimously approved a new policy for how it will handle donations of items to the city in the future.

The policy grew out of concerns that members of the community voiced over how the council handled the fireplace donation.

The draft of the policy was first introduced at the council's April 1 meeting, but the council choose to postpone a decision on it for two weeks to allow the community more time to review and comment on it. Straebel said Monday that four comments were received on the policy and a few changes were made based on some of the comments.

Some highlights of the policy include:

- When in the city's best interest, the city reserves the right to restore, relocate, remove or relinquish gifts that are no longer suited for their original purpose. Ongoing maintenance and operational costs may need to be covered by outside sources, depending upon council's decision.
- There are guidelines established for each donation that council may choose to use when deciding merits of each donation element.
- Acknowledgements and plaques should be tasteful and subtle.

Some discussion took place, sparked by audience comments, about the fact that the policy uses leaves it to the council's discretion if a proposed donation should be reviewed by the planning commission or any of the city's other subordinate boards or commissions — especially for projects planned for city parks.

City attorney Bryan Graham noted that in many cases the law does not require the council to put such projects before the planning commission or before a public hearing and that by using the word "may" instead of "shall" gives the policy more flexibility.

The complete policy is available on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

City manager Rob Straebel also noted that city planner Mike Spencer is working on another policy that will eventually come up to the council through the planning commission that will contemplate which city project — whether by donation, funded by the city itself or through other funding sources — should go before the city's various subordinate board or go to a public hearing. Straebel noted that work on the policy will move forward once the planning commission and council have completed work on the pending update to the city's zoning ordinance.

BUDGET

paring a budget's assigned fund balance to a financial audit is "not really comparing apples to apples."

He called the school's annual budget a predictive tool whereas an audit is a snapshot in time of a school's actual financial results.

"What you're looking at with the June document is a budget, and a budget is significantly different from an audit," said Crouse.

So while the school had $452,000 at the time the audit was completed, it needed to use about $325,000 over the course of the year, according to the proposed amended April budget. Of the $452,000, only $408,000 is spendable. That resulted in the $83,000 figure in the April amended budget that was struck down.

An added expense was four new teachers that the school hired in August. The board approved the hire of two full-time teachers, one half time teacher, and one teacher just over half-time. The board also hired a special education aide and administrative assistant.

But, said Catt, seven teachers retired at the end of the 2012 year, and an eighth teacher resigned.

"It appears to me we added more staffing than we had budgeted," said Catt. "And enrollment was definitely down, but we knew enrollment was going to go down."

The district graduated 97 students, but only 52 students were coming in the kindergarten class.

Even so, those budget impacts should have been accounted for, says Catt.

"At some point, we added more spending to the budget without knowledge of it," said Catt. "Enrollment and, in my opinion, bad decision making are our two biggest enemies and until we fix these problems, we're not going to get better."

Board secretary and treasurer Valerie Snyder said she is not aware of any act of malfeasance.

"The difference is staffing changes," she said. "We added staff back after that June budget."

Snyder

The new staff hires, in addition to two teachers who were recalled after being laid off, equaled a cost of $235,670, said Crouse. According to the minutes of the Aug. 27, 2012, meeting, each of the teacher hires were approved 6-0. That unanimous approval included Catt's vote.

"I don't share that concern (that there was an act of malfeasance)," she said. "I think we all know what the budget numbers were in June, and I think we have all been made aware of the all the factors that our budget faces."

Bob Gendron, schools superintendant, said the suggestion of malfeasance took him by surprise, and that the 2012-2013 budget was based in part on money the district expected to receive from the state, but did not ultimately receive.

"The budgeting process was based upon gambles — 'If the state does this, if the state does that,'" he said. "My method is absolute. What are the things I can absolutely say we are receiving."

Also at the meeting, the board voted 4-1, with Snyder casting the dissenting vote, to end the contract of athletic director Brian Cetta. Board president John McLean said the position of athletic director has been combined with the position of high school assistant principal. Travis Garrett, currently the district's middle school principal, will take on the role. This move saved the district about $28,000, said Gendron.

A staff reduction recommendation item died on the table. No board member made a motion to vote on the item.

The board is scheduled to meet Monday, May 6, for a work session at the district's administrative building, 104 East St. Mary's Drive in Charlevoix.

TC Liberty falls to lady Rayders

Junior forward Katie Kiteley scored a pair of goals to lead the Charlevoix girls' soccer team to a shutout win over the Traverse City Liberty Tuesday at Shanahan Field.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 2-0 overall, 2-0 league with both wins coming via shutouts.

"We came out with high intensity scoring three goals in the first half and kept it high in the second half adding another three," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "Our offensive attack had 28 shots on goal."

Also for Charlevoix, senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer added a goal, junior forward Kaitlin Hinkley scored a header off an Anna Way corner kick, sophomore midfielder Elizabeth Way scored a goal and freshman forward Kelsey Engstrom scored an unassisted goal.

The Rayders goals were evenly split between the to halves of the game.

Way finished with three assists, while Engstrom and freshman Kylee Scholten each added assists.

Defensively, coach Scholten lauded the efforts of outside defensive back Carolena Elowsky and senior stopper Sydney Carlson along with sophomore sophomore sweeper Leah Davis.

Goalkeepers senior Bailee Stevens and sophomore Gloria Greene shared the shutout in goal as Stevens finished with three saves and Greene added four stops.

Up next the Rayders were set to host Boyne City on Thursday, April 18, play in the Morel Cup Tournament on Saturday, April 20 and travel to Elk Rapids on Monday, April 21.

Rayders fall to Rams in brisk season opener

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Charlevoix Rayder girls soccer team braved cold and windy conditions Tuesday when the team was finally able to get outdoors for the first time this season. The Rayders fell 8-0 in a Lake Michigan Conference meet at Harbor Springs.

"For both teams, it was our first time outside period, so it was nice to get out and get it going," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

"It was very brisk, but we were determined to get a match under our belt. Harbor showed strong and won 8-0. This was the first day on outdoor courts this season. I think the girls made several unforced errors and serving got us in trouble with most of the matches.

"If we get a handle on that and get some real court time, I think we can increase our competitiveness with teams like Harbor," Randall added. "I'm proud of their first season opener."

Singles results: 1-Leah Collie (HS) defeated Madi Carey, 6-3, 6-2; 2-Emily Lesky (HS) def. Lexie Barnes, 7-5, 6-2; 3-Abbey Knoodle (HS) def. Kelsea Stevens, 6-0, 6-0; 4-Alexa Jensen-Philbrick (HS) def. Taylor Markgraf, 7-5, 6-4.

Doubles: 1-Perry Bower-Rae Claramunt (HS) def. Cassidy Peebles-Karley Pearsall, 7-6, 6-3; 2-Eva Zoerhof-Mikayla Dickinson (HS) def. Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff, 6-1, 6-1; 3-Claire Cunningham-Allison Green (HS) def. Carly Scholey-Cassie McCranney, 6-2, 6-0; 4-Liza Wilkes-Rachel Postma (HS) def. Girls golf offers many scholarship opportunities

Editor's note: The following column was written by Charlevoix resident Dean Davenport. Davenport is the former athletic director for Ferris State University, former City of Charlevoix recreation director and heads up the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program:

In the state of Michigan there are 25 colleges where women's golf is one of the athletic offerings that are a part of the intercollegiate program. Of these universities only seven, all from the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Associations, do not offer athletic scholarships to recruited athletes. It is a fact that women's golf scholarships are often the most difficult for golf coaches to award to prospective team candidates. There are just not that many serious women golfers in our state to fill the scholarships available.

There are six NCAA Division I schools (University of Michigan, Michigan State University, Oakland University, Western Michigan University and Eastern Michigan University, University of Detroit Mercy) each offering six full awards totaling 36 scholarships. In Division II four schools (Ferris State, Grand Valley State, Lake Superior and Northwood are allowed 5.4 full scholarships totaling just under 22 full scholarships. State schools in the Wolverine-Hoosier NAIA conference (Davenport University, Aquinas, Madonna, Rochester and Spring Arbor) have limited scholarship dollars but offer a women's golf team experience and scholarship help. So, we know that there are likely to be in excess of 65 scholarships in Michigan institutions looking for women who have a pas-

Local marathon runner safe following bombing

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

COURTESY PHOTO/SARAH PARDEE

Sarah and Dan Pardee of Charlevoix pose in Boaton just after Sarah finished the Boaton Marathon Tuesday. They took this photo just before bombs exploded near the marathon's finish line.

A local runner, Sarah Pardee of Charlevoix, is safe after bombs went off at the finish line of the Boston Marathon on Monday.

Sarah Pardee, 31, finished the race in 3:30:27, and was two blocks away when the bombs exploded four hours and nine minutes into the marathon.

"I know premonitions are kind of strange, but as soon as I finished the marathon — everybody just wobbled around like zombies. We were so tired and barely able to walk. I wanted just to get out of those crowds and go find (husband) Dan," she said.

Sarah said she was waiting in line for a porta-potty and decided to leave to find her husband.

"I thought, 'This is ridiculous, I'm going to find him and we need to get out of here,'" said Sarah.

Just after Sarah found her husband, the bombs exploded.

Sarah said she and her husband heard the explosions, but thought at first they were celebrations — April 15 was Patriot's Day.

"We thought it was just a cannon or some type of celebration. We kept walking and tried to get on the subway," she said.

But at that point officials were closing down the subways, and that's when the Pardees realized something awful had happened. They managed to flag a taxi to take them across the Charles River to Cambridge, where they were staying in a hotel.

"(The taxi driver) had the news on, and it said apparently a couple of bombs had just gone off," she said. "That was about 10-15 minutes after everything happened."

Sarah said she and her husband only left their hotel to find something to eat later that night. They went to a mall across the street from their hotel, and said shops in the mall were already shut down.

"They were telling us not to gather in large areas with a lot of people," said Sarah. "Everybody seemed to be walking around, not very talkative, minding their own business. A lot of people in our hotel were runners or families of runners, walking around looking dazed and shocked."

> "Of course, your thoughts and prayers go out to the families of those who didn't make it,"
> — Sarah Pardee

Lee Phillips of Petoskey said her daughter, Nicole Sterrett, a first-grade teacher at Charlevoix, ran the Boston Marathon last year. Phillips said the finish line of the marathon is packed with spectators.

"We were trying to get to the finish line (during the 2012 race) because she had already crossed, and it was wall-to-wall people," said Phillips.

The Phillipses, Sterrett's husband, and the Sterretts' four children were caught in the crowd of people.

"You could hardly walk through the crowd. We tried to get to the finish line and as we got there, they wouldn't let us through. We had to turn around and go back through that mob of people," recalled Phillips. "We finally got out of that horde of people. It was awful."

The weather for the marathon in 2012 was very warm — in the high 80s — and marathon officials offered runners the chance to drop out of the race and run it the following year.

Phillips said Nicole opted to finish the 2012 race because of the cost of traveling to Boston.

"I'm glad she didn't run it this year," said Phillips.

Sarah Pardee said she is thankful she finished ahead of the explosions, but that she is thinking of those impacted by the attacks.

"Of course, your thoughts and prayers go out to the families of those who didn't make it," said Pardee. "I can't imagine, as a runner, not being able to find my family at the end of the race, or finding out that my family had been hurt because they had come to watch what was supposed to be such a happy event. My heart goes out to the people who weren't as blessed as us to have gotten out of there when we did."

sion and skill level to compete in golf at the college level.

The point of this article is, whether it's a full scholarship or a partial, with the high cost of attending college, it is a great help to any family financially to have scholarship help. The point of emphases is that golf must be played at an early age if the prospect is to "catch the eye" of the college coach. Charlevoix area girls have a rare opportunity to learn the game through the Junior Golf program.

Currently we have 25 young girls 8 and 9 years old just starting to learn how the game is played. They have the opportunity to be very good. However it takes focus, and fundamental skill development to "have a game". Parents need to offer support for these girls. But why couldn't some of them decide they want to pursue the most available scholarship for female athletes. There is much competition for basketball, soccer softball, volleyball, and track scholarships but not so for golf. Come on girls why not you?

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf program is a five-week, 16 sessions program that meets one hour in the morning, playing at four different local courses. (Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club and Golf, Antrim Dells, and the City of Charlevoix's Charlevoix Golf Club). The cost is $50 for the seasonal pass or $5 per session attended. It has received the highest endorsement from the National Junior Golf Association, ranking it one of the top 13 programs in the country. It has just celebrated its 18th anniversary. Ages are 8 through 17. Registration is scheduled for May 8 at the Charlevoix Golf Club course.

Sales

Digital Sales Representative

The Petoskey News-Review is seeking a Digital Sales Representative. Do you consistently achieve goals? Do you feel like you'd enjoy going on sales calls every day, and meeting with new prospects (or are you already doing so)? We're looking for a Digital Sales Rep to join our market-leading team that focuses on our customers' growth.
We're seeking someone to help us maximize digital revenue across platforms, and ensure that our customers' digital advertising campaigns are optimized and completed accurately. Our culture thrives on creating and executing big ideas that provide solutions for our customers.

This position requires solid presentation skills, creativity and great attention to detail. Prior sales and digital media experience are both a big plus.

To qualify, you must possess good interpersonal skills, ambition and excellent prospecting abilities. Other responsibilities include the ability to develop and retain new, local business, manage and develop client projects and provide solutions, along with great problem-solving.

The position offers great earning potential and full benefits, including group health, paid time off and 401(k). Dependable transportation and a valid driver's license are required.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Charlevoix Electric Department has hired Asplundh Tree Expert Company to trim back tree branches from our power lines for the remainder of 2013. Tree branches and fallen limbs cause most of the power outages during storms. By keeping branches and limbs trimmed back from the lines the outages virtually disappear, while increasing safety to both the public and to the electrical workers, and also reducing damage to the lines and equipment. The workers follow International Society of Arboriculture standards in their trimming to maintain the health of the trees. Please contact the Charlevoix Electric Department at 231-547-3273 if you have any questions.

Charlevoix High School among top 50 in state

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix school officials received a ray of sunshine this week amidst the gloom of dealing with looming deep budget cuts when U.S. News and World Report released its annual rankings of the best schools in the country, and Charlevoix High School ranked number 43 out of more than 800 districts in Michigan, and 1,488 in the country.

That ranking qualified it for a silver medal standing from the magazine.

"It's just a true testament to our Charlevoix community — how they value the importance of a good education — and that our students and teachers take their jobs seriously," said Suzanne Klinger, principal of the high school. "I'm just thrilled we offer and continue to offer a top notch education to all students even in these times of challenging budget issues."

The report lists a few reasons Charlevoix High School made the rank. First, with 369 students to 21 full-time teachers at the time of the evaluation, the school had a 17-1 student-to-teacher ratio. The school

Fireplace project moves forward

Safety now biggest concern among objectors, designers

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

What's next?

The council has directed consultants Richard Hitz and Mark Buday to finalize the design of the proposed fireplace re-design, and present it with options for the protective sculptural element.

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday moved one step closer to nailing down a final revised design for a contentious community fireplace project in the city's East Park.

By a vote of 5-1 the council gave its design consultants, Richard Hitz and Mark Buday, the go-ahead to continue with the final design process. Council member Lyle Gennett cast the lone dissenting vote.

Monday's meeting began with a work session at the location for the proposed fireplace — the park's Plaza B, located along the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets.

The site visit was intended to give council members and the public attending a better sense of what how the revised design will work in that space. After mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. pointed out some of the heights on the existing foundation and pointed out some other elements of the project, including the location of four proposed benches, which was marked off in green paint on the ground, the meeting adjourned back to the council chambers for further discussion.

Monday marked the first time the green plywood box has been removed from the partially-completed foundation since the council ordered work stopped on the original design shortly after construction began in August.

When the meeting re-convened, Hitz presented the additional details that he and Buday have proposed for the project since the council set Monday's special meeting and public hearing on the matter a week prior.

Originally designed as an 8-foot square and tall fireplace to be topped by a stone fireplace reaching about 20 feet high, the design the council is now considering has changed dramatically from the original. The new design resembles an oval-shaped bowl about 8 feet long by 3 feet wide that would be set only a few feet above ground level.

About the only elements that have not changed is the location and that it would include a gas-fueled fire element.

In his portion of the presentation Monday, Hitz explained that he and Buday are now proposing that the burner element inside the bowl take a linear shape running the long way of the oval and perhaps surrounded by a ring of smaller flames. He also proposed the bottom of the firebowl have several lights shining upwards so that the sculptural element would be highlighted at night even when the fire is not burning. Hitz also said, because the fireplace is to serve as a type of sculpture itself, that the bowl could be a designed to be

Recall election candidate forum set for May 1

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

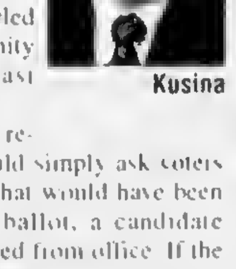
After many months of controversy that has led to an attempt to recall three members of the Charlevoix City Council, city voters will soon have an opportunity to hear from all of the candidates at one time and in one place when the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce hosts a candidate forum from 6-8 p.m. on Wednesday, May 1, at the Charlevoix High School auditorium.

The event will be professionally moderated and appropriate questions from the audience will be asked.

The forum will have two portions, from 6-7:30 will be a formal question and answer period. The last half hour of the event will be an informal meet and greet where those in attendance can have one-on-one time to ask questions and meet the candidates. The event will also be video recorded and available to watch on the Charlevoix Chamber YouTube page (VisitCharlevoix) and on the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review websites.

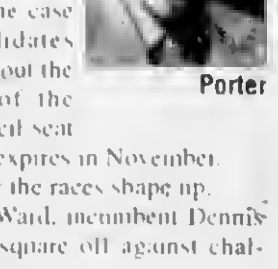
The recall election will take place on Tuesday, May 7. Polls will be open at Charlevoix City Hall from 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

Because of recent changes in the state's recall law, the election now looks no different than a typical end-of-term race that would take place in November. However, the election has its roots in the city council's now controversial decision in August to accept an anonymous donor's offer to pay for the construction of a gas-fueled outdoor community fireplace in East Park.



Kusina

Previously the recall process would simply ask voters if, for a reason that would have been printed on the ballot, a candidate should be removed from office. If the recall was successful, a process to replace the recalled official would then take place. The new law combined the two processes. Now, no reason for the recall election will appear on the ballot. Instead voters will simply be asked which of two (or in one case three) candidates should serve out the remainder of the current council seat term, which expires in November.



Porter

Here's how the races shape up.

In the 1st Ward, incumbent Dennis Kusina will square off against challenger Jeff Porter.

Teen carrying BB gun prompts police response

A youth carrying what appeared to be a long rifle near Charlevoix Elementary School on Monday afternoon was found to not be breaking any laws.

According to a release from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office, shortly after 4:45 p.m., Dispatchers at 9-1-1 received a call from concerned citizen who witnessed a "high school-aged boy walking through the woods with what was reported to be a long rifle."

This took place just off Waller Road near Mount McSauba Road in Charlevoix Township. Members from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Charlevoix City Police and the Department of Natural Resources responded to try to locate the individual with officers also dispatched to the school just as a precaution, according to the release.

At this point in time, there had not been any indication the reported individual had any malicious intent or that he was headed in the direction of the school. After following up on some leads on the whereabouts of the subject, officers located the teen and two of his friends at Mount McSauba where the local boys had been target practicing with BB guns.

According to a the release, at no time did any illegal activity take place nor was there any malicious intent to the three boys' activities.

"The sheriff's office would like to thank the alertness of our citizens," Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said. "This incident, although not ill intended, shows that our citizens are vigilant which improves the safety of our community."

County property values at 'rock bottom'

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Annual county state equalized value changes:	Average SEV changes in cities within the county:	Average SEV changes in townships within the county:
2010: -12.8 percent	2010: -12.7 percent	2010: -12.9 percent
2011: -0.8 percent	2011: +1.7 percent	2011: -1.5 percent
2012: -5.2 percent	2012: -5.7 percent	2012: -5 percent
2013: -7.45 percent	2013: -5.8 percent	2013: -7.9 percent

EAST JORDAN — Property values in Charlevoix County have consistently fallen since the housing market took a turn for the worse in 2008 and this past year was no exception.

The final equalization report for the 2013 fiscal year was presented to the county board of commissioners Wednesday at their regular meeting in East Jordan.

In the biggest decrease since 2010, the combined state equalized value of property in the county fell another 7.45 percent. That after a 5 percent decrease in 2012, 1 percent drop the year before that and nearly 13 percent drop in 2010.

A county that collected taxes on $2.7 billion of value three years ago, and significantly more the year before that, must operate this coming year with $2.3 billion in value.

Within the county, nearly every township and city saw declines in property value.

All three cities — East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix — were down between 4 and 7 percent.

Townships showed changes that varied a little more with Hudson and South Arm townships faring the best. Both saw modest growth of less than 1 percent.

Eveline and Peaine townships were hit the hardest. Equalized values in Eveline dropped 17 percent and in Peaine, 15 percent.

On average, property values within the townships dropped about 8 percent.

There is an end in sight, reported county equalization director Patrick Suboski.

"It's been my observation that the market has stabilized and I think we have seen pretty much rock bottom," he said, predicting that values will increase, at least modestly, in the next year or two.

"We're having a bit of a roller coaster effect," added assistant equalization director Jeff Grimm. "From looking at the sales, I do think it's starting to settle down a little bit. I think we will see smaller decreases than in the past, or possibly stabilize or increase modestly."

The report details tax exemptions granted to industrial facilities in the county. Forty facilities, with about $25 million of equalized taxable value, received tax exemption certificates in 2013.

The report is available on the county website and at the clerk's office.

Pending school district budget cuts taking shape

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education heard a recap of how each building administrator will deal with the move to a two-building system for the school district.

The board voted to move to a two-building system during its March 25 board meeting, but did not approve an overall budget reduction plan. The board said it wanted more information about how staffing and programming would change.

Elementary principal Doug Drenth, middle school principal Travis Garrett and high school principal Suzanne Klinger presented those changes at the work session.

Both elementary and middle and high school plans include a staff reduction plan aimed at saving the school district about $630,000.

Drenth gave a break-down of how class sizes will be impacted. Depending on transfers from other kindergartens and schools, the first grade class could be 72 students, he said. That would leave between 21 and 24 students distributed among each class. Second grade could have 28 students in each of the three classes and the third grade could have 29 students.

"The major concern of the board was those fourth grade numbers," said Drenth.

Right now, Drenth is projecting anywhere between 66 and 70 students divided between two sections — giving each class 33 or 34 students.

"That's the one I've really been working on," he said.

One option is to move a fifth grade teacher to the fourth grade in the morning so the core curriculum classes of social studies, science and math could be divided between three teachers. In the afternoon, the fifth grade teacher would return to teaching fifth grade, and the fourth grade teachers would receive support from the Title I teachers, who are funded under a federal grant to support students struggling in math and reading.

"I think about these things at two o'clock in the morning," said Drenth.

The high school and middle school staff reductions, and reverting the high school back to semesters from its current system of trimesters will require the school to adjust its scheduling, said Klinger — mainly finding room in its schedule to accommodate electives for students.

Two introduced bills might help alleviate the pressure. House Bill 4102 and Senate Bill 0133 both propose to eliminate foreign language requirements, and are being considered in the House and Senate. Should those bills pass, said Klinger, about 25-30 percent of Charlevoix's high schoolers will not take Spanish, and classes like art, construction and band will have the opportunity fill up.

Board vice president Kevin Pearsall asked Travis Garrett — who is currently the middle school principal and will take on the role of assistant principal and athletic director at the combined middle and high school — where the seventh and eighth grade students will have recess. Garrett pointed to an open space behind the high school building, where the district is considering putting soccer goals and a volleyball court.

Garrett said he was not worried about his seventh and eighth grade students being combined with the high schoolers.

"It was very calm and quiet. I was really impressed with what it looked like at the high school. It was not the perception I had," said Garrett. "I asked Suzanne (Klinger), do you really want seventh and eighth graders running around here?"

The board plans to vote on implementing the cuts during a special board meeting, 6 p.m., Monday, May 6, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

City to flush fire hydrants starting early May

Starting in the first week of May, City of Charlevoix water department crews will begin flushing all of the city's fire hydrants.

City public works superintendent Pat Elliott said the work is expected to take about three weeks to complete.

Elliott said while the flushing is taking place, water customers may notice cloudy or rust-colored water in their homes. Anyone who experiences this in their home should let the water run through multiple faucets in the home until the water runs clear.

Elliott also asked anyone who sees a hydrant being flushed to refrain from driving through or playing in the water.

Elliot explained that routine flushing of the hydrants is important to the water system for several reasons. Flushing removes any stagnate water in the distribution main lines and cleans main lines of any sediment. He said the practice is recommended by the state department of environmental quality, and is generally a sound practice for a distribution system. Another benefit, Elliot noted, is that the flushing gives crews the opportunity to test all the hydrants for proper operation and address any repair needs.

Anyone with questions or concerns about the hydrant flushing program may direct inquiries to Elliot at (231) 547-3276.

Commission delays zoning ordinance updates

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Planning Commission has extended its consideration of a final draft of a major overhaul of the city's zoning ordinance and has set another public hearing on the matter.

On Tuesday, the planning commission met to take public input on the proposed changes and had possibly hoped to vote on approving a recommended draft to be sent to the city council for its consideration.

However, city planner Mike Spencer said, the city attorney has been sidelined recently by an illness and has been delayed in his review of the current version of the draft ordinance. Because many of the city attorney's comments and suggestions for the ordinance were not available for review Tuesday, the council has set another public hearing for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, May 13 at city hall. At that time the commission will take further comments on the proposed ordinance and review the city attorney's comments and could approve the draft to be sent to the city council for its consideration for approval.

The current version of the draft ordinance and accompanying information can be found on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Lake association to host low water forum May 6 in Boyne

BOYNE CITY — The Lake Charlevoix Association will host a low water forum at 6:30 p.m. Monday, May 6, at the Boyne City High School Performing Arts Center.

The lineup of expert speakers includes Jennifer McKay, policy expert from Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council; Roger Gauthier, retired senior hydrologist from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and current chair of Restore Our Water International; and featured guest speaker, Lana Pollack, U.S. Chair of the International Joint Commission.

Each speaker will give a presentation followed by a question and answer session with audience participation.

"Please join us to learn the causes of the recent extremely low levels and what if anything can be done to help remedy the situation," said Lake Charlevoix Association president Dan Mishler.

Coaches, teachers on defense to avoid creating offense

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

This is not an easy time to be an athletic coach, or a teacher, or just a commentor. If today, someone is sufficiently offended by something you may have said or done, your whole professional life may be at risk. A major college basketball coach is fired for, among other things, throwing basketballs at his players or using inappropriate language when speaking to them. The newspapers report a lacrosse coach suspended for using what are called slurs directed at his players. I remember a long-time elementary school teacher who lamented the fact that it was considered unwise for her to show any sort of tactile affection for a student without someone misunderstanding it as inappropriate fondling.

I am pretty certain that, during more than 30 years of teaching, I said things in class and to students that I would not want to be spread over the Internet.

Maybe part of the problem is that statements and even actions that might have been meant as private are, in today's world, very widely distributed, and become public almost instantly.

Many years ago, my first flight instructor in the Navy said things to me during our early flights, when I did something potentially dangerous to both of us, that I am certain he would not want to be publicly repeated. I suppose I could have been offended, but it is true that I was putting both of our lives at risk.

A coach's or a teacher's professional life may be equally put at risk by an offended player, an offended fan or an offended parent. Certainly there are behaviors that are completely out of bounds and are a good reason to be offended. We all remember Jerry Sandusky from Penn State. But potentially offensive words are another matter. We recall the old schoolyard line about sticks and stones being harmful, but words, not so much. The memory of that line has not only prevented a lot of schoolyard fights, but might also be used to save the job or reputation of a coach or teacher.

What I am suggesting is that we might be a little more lenient in our capacity to be offended. Words spoken in the heat of trying to teach an athlete to manage a particular move, or in trying to vividly encourage a student in understanding logarithms may, to an onlooker or hearer sound offensive. But maybe the coach or teacher knows that those words will get the results both he and his charge want in this particular situation. The passionate urge to teach may lead to passionate words. Those words need not always be understood as offensive.

Maybe they are just effective.

My long-ago flight instructor kept us both alive partly through the use of language that certainly sounded offensive, but given the context, they may have been the best and most effective words.

Before discounting or being offended by the actions or words of a coach or teacher, we might try to understand the context in which the words were spoken or the actions performed. "Judge not" is still good advice, at least without first understanding the context.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Player goes to bat for Little League fundraiser

Dear editor,

My name is Jake, and I am in fifth grade at Charlevoix Elementary. This year will be my fifth year playing Little League baseball in Charlevoix.

On May 4 and May 5, 12 former Major League Baseball players are coming to Charlevoix to help raise money for the organization.

There will be a free clinic for kids to meet and learn from the MLB players. There will also be a silent auction and a golf outing. Everyone in the community still has time to get involved.

Baseball is good for kids because they get exercise, make new friends, and learn a sport they can play for their whole life. Baseball gives kids something to do, too, and keeps them out of trouble. Everyone should want kids like that in our community.

People can help by signing their kids up for the clinic or for a team, coming to the auction, playing in the golf outing, or donating time or money to Charlevoix Little League.

If you want to help or learn more, please email my dad, Mark Snyder. His email address is mark-snyder@live.com.

Sincerely,
Jake Snyder

Atlantic sailing adventure topic of May Sail & Power Squadron meeting

Bill and Judy Stellin of Grand Rapids will give a presentation on their sailing adventure across the Atlantic at the next meeting of the Tip of the Mitt Sail & Power Squadron on Wednesday, May 15, at the Weathervane in Charlevoix. The Stellins will also talk about how they visited every port in the Mediterranean Sea over a period of seven years. The meeting begins with a social hour at 6 p.m., followed by dinner and the program.

The Tip of the Mitt Sail & Power Squadron has more than 80 members from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Gaylord, Boyne City, Cheboygan, Mackinaw City and other surrounding areas. Members participate in various activities including beginning and advanced classes, monthly dinners with speakers, seminars, rendezvous weekends and vessel safety checks in line with Coast Guard regulations for safe boating.

The Tip of the Mitt Squadron is affiliated with the all-volunteer United States Power Squadron, the nation's oldest fraternal boating organization with more than 45,000 members.

Recently, a dinner program at Stafford's Bay View Inn featured Roger Gauthier speaking on water levels and advancing Great Lakes sustainability. Earlier this month, United States Power Squadron instructors Christina Staats and Tom Tietjen presented a seminar on safety at sea to a group of recreational boaters. Topics included accident prevention, broken rigging, steering failure, crew overboard and taking on water. Classes are offered in basic seamanship, navigation, engine maintenance, weather and electronics.

The local squadron plans a rendezvous in Harbor Springs June 28-30, with a second rendezvous Aug. 23-25 featuring an Inland Waterway trip from Crooked Lake to Cheboygan and returning.

For further information on the group and its activities, or to attend an upcoming meeting, contact Bill Lovett, administrative officer, at (231) 547-3592 or blovett1914@gmail.com

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

A very young Willard A. Smith came up from Traverse City in April of 1869 to establish the first newspaper north of Traverse, the Charlevoix Sentinel. Pioneer settler and Civil War veteran E. H. Green, the first lawyer north of Traverse, would serve as editor for the initial two years. It is not known exactly where the first few issues were printed, but by May the paper was in the Chamberlin building at the corner of Clinton and Bridge where the North Seas gallery is now. Then it moved across the channel to the upper floor of Charlevoix's first general store, the Keyes building where the Weathervane Terrace Inn is located. In 1876 Smith built the building on the left on Bridge Street. There the Sentinel remained, under Smith's rabidly Republican guidance, until he died in December, 1917, and his daughter and son-in-law took over before it went out of business in the late 30s, a victim of the Great Depression. During Smith's tenure he was Charlevoix's conscience and moral prod, enthusiastic beyond measure for the town's development and future, and a hilarious verbal terror to anyone who crossed his path in the era when the word "libel" held no restraining force. He reported on everything that went on, a treasure trove of information on Charlevoix's early history. Next door to the Sentinel building is Gellick's saloon, at one time the only bar in town. Where was the Sentinel exactly? Directly east across Bridge Street from Jim Simonson's pastry shop and cafe on the Park Avenue corner, right on top of the Beaver Island Boat Company.

PELLSTON — On Monday, April 15, at the regular meeting of the Tip of the Mitt Flight, Civil Air Patrol — U.S. Air Force Auxiliary, Cadet Airman Basic Montana Thompson was officially promoted to Cadet Airman after completing leadership, drill, and physical fitness testing. Montana, the son of Eric and Julie Thompson, all of Charlevoix, was also awarded the General John F. Curry Achievement Award ribbon by Capt. Tom Walker of Petoskey, Flight Commander.

The General Curry Award is given for successfully completing the specific requirements of Achievement 1 in Phase I of the Civil Air Patrol Cadet Program.

The Tip of the Mitt Flight meets at 7 p.m. on first and third Monday of the month at Pellston Regional Airport, on the second floor.

The Civil Air Patrol's three missions are to develop youth through a cadet program, perform life-saving emergency services, and educate Americans on the importance of aviation and space science. The Tip of the Mitt Flight is actively recruiting new members throughout the Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties area. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Civil Air Patrol — U.S. Air Force Auxiliary, as either a cadet member (boys and girls 12-18) or a senior member (men and women over 18), are invited to attend a meeting or access the Tip of the Mitt Flight's website, http://tinyurl.com/tipcap or write to TipCAP@live.com.

Coaches, teachers on defense to avoid creating offense

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

This is not an easy time to be an athletic coach, or a teacher, or just a commentor. If today, someone is sufficiently offended by something you may have said or done, your whole professional life may be at risk. A major college basketball coach is fired for, among other things, throwing basketballs at his players or using inappropriate language when speaking to them. The newspapers report a lacrosse coach suspended for using what are called slurs directed at his players. I remember a long-time elementary school teacher who lamented the fact that it was considered unwise for her to show any sort of tactile affection for a student without someone misunderstanding it as inappropriate fondling.

I am pretty certain that, during more than 30 years of teaching, I said things in class and to students that I would not want to be spread over the Internet.

Maybe part of the problem is that statements and even actions that might have been meant as private are, in today's world, very widely distributed, and become public almost instantly.

Many years ago, my first flight instructor in the Navy said things to me during our early flights, when I did something potentially dangerous to both of us, that I am certain he would not want to be publicly repeated. I suppose I could have been offended, but it is true that I was putting both of our lives at risk.

A coach's or a teacher's professional life may be equally put at risk by an offended player, an offended fan or an offended parent. Certainly there are behaviors that are completely out of bounds and are a good reason to be offended. We all remember Jerry Sandusky from Penn State. But potentially offensive words are another matter. We recall the old schoolyard line about sticks and stones being harmful, but words, not so much. The memory of that line has not only prevented a lot of schoolyard fights, but might also be used to save the job or reputation of a coach or teacher.

What I am suggesting is that we might be a little more lenient in our capacity to be offended. Words spoken in the heat of trying to teach an athlete to manage a particular move, or in trying to vividly encourage a student in understanding logarithms may, to an onlooker or hearer sound offensive. But maybe the coach or teacher knows that those words will get the results both he and his charge want in this particular situation. The passionate urge to teach may lead to passionate words. Those words need not always be understood as offensive.

Maybe they are just effective.

My long-ago flight instructor kept us both alive partly through the use of language that certainly sounded offensive, but given the context, they may have been the best and most effective words.

Before discounting or being offended by the actions or words of a coach or teacher, we might try to understand the context in which the words were spoken or the actions performed. "Judge not" is still good advice, at least without first understanding the context.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Player goes to bat for Little League fundraiser

Dear editor,

My name is Jake, and I am in fifth grade at Charlevoix Elementary. This year will be my fifth year playing Little League baseball in Charlevoix.

On May 4 and May 5, 12 former Major League Baseball players are coming to Charlevoix to help raise money for the organization.

There will be a free clinic for kids to meet and learn from the MLB players. There will also be a silent auction and a golf outing. Everyone in the community still has time to get involved.

Baseball is good for kids because they get exercise, make new friends, and learn a sport they can play for their whole life. Baseball gives kids something to do, too, and keeps them out of trouble. Everyone should want kids like that in our community.

People can help by signing their kids up for the clinic or for a team, coming to the auction, playing in the golf outing, or donating time or money to Charlevoix Little League.

If you want to help or learn more, please email my dad, Mark Snyder. His email address is mark-snyder@live.com.

Sincerely,
Jake Snyder

Atlantic sailing adventure topic of May Sail & Power Squadron meeting

Bill and Judy Stellin of Grand Rapids will give a presentation on their sailing adventure across the Atlantic at the next meeting of the Tip of the Mitt Sail & Power Squadron on Wednesday, May 15, at the Weathervane in Charlevoix. The Stellins will also talk about how they visited every port in the Mediterranean Sea over a period of seven years. The meeting begins with a social hour at 6 p.m., followed by dinner and the program.

The Tip of the Mitt Sail & Power Squadron has more than 80 members from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Gaylord, Boyne City, Cheboygan, Mackinaw City and other surrounding areas. Members participate in various activities including beginning and advanced classes, monthly dinners with speakers, seminars, rendezvous weekends and vessel safety checks in line with Coast Guard regulations for safe boating.

The Tip of the Mitt Squadron is affiliated with the all-volunteer United States Power Squadron, the nation's oldest fraternal boating organization with more than 45,000 members.

Recently, a dinner program at Stafford's Bay View Inn featured Roger Gauthier speaking on water levels and advancing Great Lakes sustainability. Earlier this month, United States Power Squadron instructors Christina Staats and Tom Tietjen presented a seminar on safety at sea to a group of recreational boaters. Topics included accident prevention, broken rigging, steering failure, crew overboard and taking on water. Classes are offered in basic seamanship, navigation, engine maintenance, weather and electronics.

The local squadron plans a rendezvous in Harbor Springs June 28-30, with a second rendezvous Aug. 23-25 featuring an Inland Waterway trip from Crooked Lake to Cheboygan and returning.

For further information on the group and its activities, or to attend an upcoming meeting, contact Bill Lovett, administrative officer, at (231) 547-3592 or blovej1914@gmail.com.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

A very young Willard A. Smith came up from Traverse City in April of 1869 to establish the first newspaper north of Traverse, the Charlevoix Sentinel. Pioneer settler and Civil War veteran E. H. Green, the first lawyer north of Traverse, would serve as editor for the initial two years. It is not known exactly where the first few issues were printed, but by May the paper was in the Chamberlin building at the corner of Clinton and Bridge where the North Seas gallery is now. Then it moved across the channel to the upper floor of Charlevoix's first general store, the Keyes building where the Weathervane Terrace Inn is located. In 1876 Smith built the building on the left on Bridge Street. There the Sentinel remained, under Smith's rabidly Republican guidance, until he died in December, 1917, and his daughter and son-in-law took over before it went out of business in the late 30s, a victim of the Great Depression. During Smith's tenure he was Charlevoix's conscience and moral prod, enthusiastic beyond measure for the town's development and future, and a hilarious verbal terror to anyone who crossed his path in the era when the word "libel" held no restraining force. He reported on everything that went on, a treasure trove of information on Charlevoix's early history. Next door to the Sentinel building is Gellick's saloon, at one time the only bar in town. Where was the Sentinel exactly? Directly east across Bridge Street from Jim Simonson's pastry shop and cafe on the Park Avenue corner, right on top of the Beaver Island Boat Company.

PELLSTON — On Monday, April 15, at the regular meeting of the Tip of the Mitt Flight, Civil Air Patrol — U.S. Air Force Auxiliary, Cadet Airman Basic Montana Thompson was officially promoted to Cadet Airman after completing leadership, drill, and physical fitness testing. Montana, the son of Eric and Julie Thompson, all of Charlevoix, was also awarded the General John F. Curry Achievement Award ribbon by Capt. Tom Walker of Petoskey, Flight Commander.

The General Curry Award is given for successfully completing the specific requirements of Achievement 1 in Phase I of the Civil Air Patrol Cadet Program.

The Tip of the Mitt Flight meets at 7 p.m. on first and third Monday of the month at Pellston Regional Airport, on the second floor.

The Civil Air Patrol's three missions are to develop youth through a cadet program, perform life-saving emergency services, and educate Americans on the importance of aviation and space science. The Tip of the Mitt Flight is actively recruiting new members throughout the Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties area. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Civil Air Patrol — U.S. Air Force Auxiliary, as either a cadet member (boys and girls 12-18) or a senior member (men and women over 18), are invited to attend a meeting or access the Tip of the Mitt Flight's website, http://tinyurl.com/tipcap or write to TipCAP@live.com.

Charlevoix student to receive arts center scholarship May 1

OBITUARIES

Elbert W. Kaiser, 86

Elbert W. Kaiser, 86, of Charlevoix Township, died peacefully on April 20, 2013 in Charlevoix of natural causes following a brief illness.

Elbert was born May 29, 1926, in River Rouge, Mich. to Lauret Crozier and Webster Kaiser. Elbert was an intelligent and inquisitive child who liked to study and tinker with things. He served in World War II in the Pacific Theater as a Corporal with the 145th Regiment, 37th Infantry Division of the U.S. Army.

Elbert saw action in the Philippines. Near the end of his service, Elbert served in the military police to maintain order in Manila. He earned the Combat Infantry Badge and the Bronze Star Medal for service to his country.

After the war, he earned a degree in chemical engineering from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he also met his wife Beverly Van Patten, a talented musician. Elbert and Beverly had three children and a wonderful life together. The couple celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary last year.

Elbert enjoyed a successful career in the cement industry, and became a nationally recognized expert in his field. Rising to management positions over the years, his work took him to Ohio, California, and many cities throughout Michigan. He started his professional career as chemical engineer for the Peerless Cement division of the American Cement Corporation. In quick succession, his career advanced first to assistant plant manager, then to plant manager. Elbert was later promoted to operations manager at Peerless where he was in charge of the overall functioning of the company, which included the processes of manufacturing, engineering and working with the technical groups. After moving on from Peerless, Elbert took the plant manager position at Medusa's Charlevoix plant. After overseeing expansion of the Charlevoix plant, Elbert assumed an operations manager's position for Medusa, overseeing operations of all the cement plants within the Medusa organization. Elbert left Medusa for a brief stint with Lone Star cement company, in California, before returning to Charlevoix and settling in as the Medusa plant manager in Charlevoix.

Elbert and Beverly always said their favorite place was Charlevoix. They happily decided to stay in Charlevoix after Elbert' retirement from Medusa in 1991.

Elbert was an energetic, involved presence in whatever he pursued. In addition to his family commitments he had a passion and affinity for photography, reading, boating, playing golf, and was an avid amateur military and political historian. He was actively involved with the Charlevoix Lion's Club until his death, having served as the chapter president in 1989-90. Elbert was also an active member of the Charlevoix VFW. His efforts helped raise much-needed funds and recognition for both organizations.

Elbert is survived by son William and daughter-in-law Robin Daley of Thousand Oaks, Calif.; son Paul and daughter-in-law Annie of Northville, Mich.; daughter Linda and son-in-law William Shannon of Royal Oak, Mich.; by granddaughters Catherine, Caroline and Madeline Kaiser; Debbie Daniels; Kathy Reichel and a great-grand daughter, Audrey Reichel. His wife Beverly recently preceded Elbert in death on Feb. 14, 2013.

At Elbert's request, no services will be scheduled. His family invites all of Elbert's many friends to celebrate his life in their thoughts and in their hearts.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, VFW Post 1153 Charlevoix, Michigan and the Lions Club of Charlevoix.

Milford T. "Mel" Lewis, 81

Milford T. "Mel" Lewis, 81, Franklin, Charlevoix and Longboat Key Fla., died April 9, 2013 in Longboat Key, Fla.

Milford was born on March 26, 1932 in Detroit to Ruth and Samuel Lewis. He was raised in Detroit and his parents owned a seasonal home on Park Street in Charlevoix where he spent his summers since he was 6 years old.

In 1957, following his father's death, he took over the family business, L and L Wine and Liquor Corporation. The company was a fine wine importer that was established by his father one year after the repeal of Prohibition and it was the first company in the state to get a wholesale liquor license.

Milford loved Charlevoix and continued to spend his summers here for his entire life. He was a regular donor to the hospital, Venetian Festival, Operation Petunia and the lighthouse restoration project, just to name a few. In 1969 the waitresses at the Parkside Restaurant voted him "The Most Handsome Man in Charlevoix" and even made him a plaque to mark the award on a napkin.

He was an avid tennis player and played up until about two years ago. He particularly enjoyed his early Wednesday morning tennis matches at the public courts.

Milford enjoyed boating and cherished the simple beauties in life, especially sitting on the porch watching the sunsets.

He is survived by his wife of 41 years of Melvy Erman Lewis; two sons Steven (Jennifer) Lewis and Mark (Rena) Lewis; four grandchildren, Ryan, Alex, Samantha and Lauren Lewis; brother Frank (Carole) Lewis; Brother in law Earle and Beth Erman; nephew Mark (Audrey) Erman, Alyse Erman and Eric Erman; great-nephew Charlie Erman and many loving friends.

His funeral took place on Sunday, April 14, at the Ira Kaufman Chapel in Southfield with interment at Clover Hill Park Cemetery.

Crego named veteran of the month

Crego

The "Veteran of the Month" for March 2013 is Sharon Ellsworth Crego. He was born July 18, 1925 in Grand Ledge and in 1932 he moved with his family to a farm located in the Chandler Hill area, in Chandler Township, Charlevoix County, north east of Boyne Falls. Crego attended Boyne Falls Public Schools and after completing nine and a half years left school to help his family, during the Great Depression, by working on the family farm. On Nov. 4, 1943, he was inducted into the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps, in Detroit, entering into active duty on Nov. 27, 1943, at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and following testing, Crego was reassigned to aviation cadet training, Jefferson Barracks, Mo. On Feb. 7, 1944, he attended an engineering course at James Milliken University, 78th College Training Unit, Decatur, Ill. and in April 1944 the Army Air Corps determined that they had too many pilots in training. Crego was reassigned to a seven week aerial gunnery school at Kingman, Ariz. followed by phase training, in Alexandria, La., after being assigned to an aircrew on a B-17 Flying Fortress bomber. Completing their training, his aircrew was assigned to a new B-17 bomber, that they named "Wishbone," at Lincoln, Neb., and on Dec. 22, 1944 they departed the U.S from New Hampshire to Goose Bay, Labrador, to Meeks Field, Iceland and on to Prestwick, Scotland arriving in the European Theater of Operations on Dec. 30, 1944, and was assigned to the 526th Bomber Squadron, 379th Bomber Group, 8th Army Air Corps. Crego flew 16 combat missions between Jan. 22, 1945 and April 25, 1945, participated in battles over The Ardennes, the Rhineland and central Europe serving as an airplane armorer gunner. He was assigned to the waist guns, one 50-caliber, hand operated, machine gun on each side of the fuselage, was authorized to arm and disarm bombs and maintained the machine guns and bomb racks in the plane. On Aug. 26, 1945, Crego departed the European Theater of Operations arriving in the U.S. on Aug. 31, 1945 and on Dec. 5, 1945 at The Strategic Air Defense Command, Army Air Force, Personnel Distribution Command, San Antonio, Texas. Crego received an honorable discharge having attained the rank of staff sergeant and was awarded the following decorations and Citations: The American Theater Medal, the European-Asian-Middle-Eastern Theater Medal with Three Bronze Battle Stars, the Air Medal with one Bronze Cluster, the Victory Medal, the Army Air Force Air Crew Member Badge (Wings) and the Good Conduct Medal. Returning to the farm, Crego worked the land and on Aug. 30, 1951 he went to work for the U.S Postal Service as a rural mail carrier out of the Boyne Falls Post Office. On May 7, 1954, in Adrian, Crego married Shirley Clare Jackson before a Lenawee County justice of the peace and he served his community as president of the Boyne Falls School Board, Hudson Township Supervisor and was active in the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers Club. On Aug. 11, 1986, Crego retired and enjoyed tinkering around with old engines and tractors, attended Flywheeler shows, received his high school diploma on June 1, 2002, watched the Tiger and Lions games, watched his grandchildren playing sports and spent quality time with his family and friends. On Dec. 31, 2012, Sharon Ellsworth Crego answered the final call and is being honored by his children Leanna, Tim, Mark, James, Matt, Claudine and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City, Mich. at 6:15 p.m.

Ronald W Haggard
August 18, 1977 -
April 27, 2000

Death creeps and crawls and is always at our heels. As the years pass more loved ones and very good friends pass away. Others of us experience major life saving surgeries. However, we endure. We all endure and we never forget our lost loves. We remember, we rejoice with their unseen presence. We endure Another year has passed. Children have grown, many have married and the never ending cycle of life continues. We never forget or abandon our fund and loving memories of our departed. This is why we endure. This year we our hearts and minds are alive with the joy of Ronald Haggard's life. Ron left this world in 2000, but he lives in our hearts, he sits at our table and he is our family forever. God bless you, Ronald, we miss you, yet we endure with the knowledge that you are with our Savior, Jesus Christ.

We love and miss Ron, but gain comfort in knowing he is in the loving embrace of our Lord.

The family and friends of Ron

Memorial opportunity comes with spring concert

In the wake of recent violence throughout our country, the Little Traverse Choral Society board decided to base the spring concert on Leonard Bernstein's advice: "This will be our reply to violence: to make music more intensely, more beautifully and more devotedly than ever before."

The choral society will follow this theme with its May performances of John Rutter's Requiem which will be accompanied by instrumentalists and organ.

The concerts will be 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 4, at the Petoskey United Methodist Church and 3 p.m. Sunday, May 5, at the Cross in the Woods Catholic Shrine, Indian River. The Little Traverse Choral Society board is dedicating these concerts to the memory of former music director Fran Tollas, and Matthew Hazelwood, former principal conductor of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra and guest conductor of Little Traverse Choral Society.

The society invites the public to participate in a memorial opportunity with a special page in the program. For $25 one can remember a loved one and receive a ticket to the concert to be picked up at the door. Contributions should be received by today, April 16, for program recognition. Memorials can be mailed to LTCS, P.O. Box 2417, Petoskey, Mich. 49770. For further information, call Sulane Hamilton, (231) 526-5093.

Tickets are available from choral society members, at the Petoskey chamber of commerce and at the door; cost is $15 adults, $5 student, children 12 and under free. In accordance with the Little Traverse Choral Society's mission statement to advance the appreciation of classical music to all ages, it has invited the traveling Little Traverse Youth Choir to perform songs of love and peace during the May concerts.

Relay kick-off set for May 8

Residents are invited to kick off the American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 8 at the Eagles Hall in Boyne City. This rally is open to anyone who wants to learn more about Relay For Life and how to get involved. Relay For Life is a community celebration that honors cancer survivors, current cancer patients and caregivers. Relay for Life also pays tribute to those who have lost their battle with cancer.

Relay For Life is an exciting 24 hour event where individuals and teams camp-out overnight and take turns walking around a track to raise funds to fight cancer. It is a family event with live music and games. At nightfall, participants will light hundreds of luminaria candles around the track. Each light represents the memory of a loved one or honors someone fighting the disease. Relay for life brings together friends, families, businesses, hospitals, schools, faith-based groups — people from all walks of life to help fight back against cancer.

The Relay for Life event will take place on August 10–11 at Community Park in East Jordan.

For more information go to www.relayforlife.org/charlevoixcountymi or contact Anne McDevitt, Community Representative at (231) 675-2126 or anne.mcdevitt@cancer.org

Volunteers needed for Day of Caring

The Day of Caring committee and Char-Em United Way has started planning this year's event and is in need for volunteers.

Day of Caring will be Wednesday, Sept. 11, in honor of the National Day of Service and Remembrance of September 11.

"The one-day event is an incredible opportunity for people in our community to get involved and volunteer their time to complete projects that area nonprofits and organizations just don't have the staff, funds, or time to complete without help," said Lisa Luebke, Char-Em United Way Volunteer Connections director. "We are very excited that this year will mark the 10th anniversary of the event."

Volunteers are matched with nonprofits, schools and government agencies from all over Charlevoix and Emmet counties during Day of Caring. With such a large geographical area, help is needed to ensure a successful event for all involved. The committee is seeking new members to assist with planning from the Boyne City, East Jordan and northern Emmet County areas.

The committee will meet monthly from April through September sharing skills and ideas to organize and promote Day of Caring. Last year the committee helped bring more than 600 volunteers together with more than 50 projects.

If you would like to join the Day of Caring planning committee or have ideas to share, contact Char-Em United Way at (231) 487-1006, info@charemunitedway.org or www.charemunitedway.org.

Wanted: Chefs to write about food

Area chefs are invited to apply for an opportunity to submit editorial columns about gourmet dishes of his or her choosing, to be published during the summer schedule for The Graphic weekly newspaper.

The new section in the weekly community, arts, entertainment and music publication will be titled "Taste This," and should both present the dish with detailed description and also explain where it can be ordered, including at what price. A recipe is not required to be printed with the editorial.

This recurring editorial section will be published in rotation with "Serve This," and "Sip This," columns about do-it-yourself dishes and cocktail reviews at area businesses, respectively. A maximum eight chefs will be approved for this initial opportunity. They can choose to highlight their own dishes, or favored meals at other restaurants and eateries. If all slots are filled, chefs will be asked to contribute just one editorial during summer 2013. Pictures of the featured dishes will be taken by newspaper staff photographers to publish with the editorial columns.

Interested chefs should send a letter of interest and their resumé to the Graphic's editor, Sheri McWhirter-O'Donnell, at smcwhirter@petoskeynews.com, or at 319 State St., Petoskey, Mich. 49770. The deadline for submissions is Wednesday, May 1.

Petunia donations lag as planting nears

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

With this year's very slow-to-arrive spring, planting petunias may not be in the forefront of most Charlevoix residents' thoughts.

However, the annual planting day for Operation Petunia is now less than a month away and officials with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the organization that has overseen the annual petunia project for more than 30 years, say spring isn't the only thing that's been slow coming this year, donations to the project are well off pace from previous years.

Organization board president Aaron Wilkin said donations year-to-date are down about 17 percent this year.

Every summer since 1982, volunteers and donors have teamed up to make sure that the five miles of U.S. 31 one end of the city to the other is lined with 60,000 petunias. To make that happen takes somewhere around $30,000 every year.

Wilkin said he can't point to one factor, such as the cold weather or the economy, that seems to be slowing the flow of donations this year, but he said there are many ways people can help the cause.

First, Wilkin reminds residents that while organizers like big donations, a lot of small donations can add up quickly.

"People might think that a $20 or $30 donation won't help much, but if a lot of those come in, it can add up quickly," Wilkin said.

There are many ways those wishing to contribute can do so. Checks may be mailed to P.O Box 1, Charlevoix MI 49720. Donors can visit the organizations's website at www.keepcharlevoixbeautiful.org. The website offers a link where people can donate online using a credit card.

Other information about the organization and how to get involved is also posted on the site. The group also has a Facebook page.

And for those who would like to have their cake and eat it too, or more accurately, have their wine and donate, too, another opportunity to contribute to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful exists.

Prani and Suzanne Acharya of Esperance have been hosting wine tasting events each Saturday starting on March 23 through May 25, to benefit Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and Operation Petunia. The cost of the wine tasting is $10 per guest and $5 of that amount will be donated to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

For those looking for a way to help the effort beyond the pocketbook, Wilkin said organizers are still in need of block captains for planting day. Block captains help organize volunteers on planting day.

Anyone interested in being a block captain for the annual petunia planting on May 23 should contact Steve or Sandy Bennett at stbenn@chartermi.net.

Wilkin also noted that organizers are planning to make some changes to this year's planting day. Details of those changes and the rest of this year's planting day will be released in the coming weeks.

Volunteers key to reading program

Nancy LaCroix, one of many people who volunteer to tutor students at Charlevoix Elementary School works with a student recently.

The Charlevoix Elementary School has implemented a volunteer reading tutor program for elementary students to help sharpen their reading skills.

The program involves several dozen volunteers who take the time each week to help children build their reading skills through the reading aloud, rhyming and playing word games.

Mike Wolf a teacher consultant with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District along with Charlevoix Elementary School Principal Doug Drenth have organized the program.

Drenth said a majority of the volunteers are former educators and retired professionals who take the time to share their talents and "give back" to the community in a positive way by building relationships and sharing their reading and vocabulary talents with the kids.

Drenth said that the reading mentor program is priceless and with looming budget cuts, this is an ideal way to help meet the needs of children as well as it helps the teachers and staff who all care deeply about the students at our school.

Drenth said he wants to encourage other members of the community to donate their time to the effort.

Nancy LaCroix, who has been a volunteer in the reading program for several years emphasized that the program was very rewarding and that "the relationships with the kids are wonderful and the kids make me smile."

LaCroix volunteers two days a week with the program along with the many other volunteers. The skills that the children obtain from this program are a gift that will last a lifetime, Drenth added.

Anyone who would like to volunteer to help with schools reading tutoring program may contact Drenth at ddrenth@tayder.net or call (231) 547-3215 for more information.

Highway cleanups to start April 27

Volunteers participating in the Michigan Department of Transportation Adopt-A-Highway program will begin picking up litter April 27 along state highways in northern lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula. The pickup will continue until May 5 for northern lower Michigan, and to May 12 for the Upper Peninsula because of snow currently on the ground.

In 2012, Adopt-A-Highway groups reported collecting about 65,000 bags of trash, a cost benefit to the state of $5.6 million. Volunteers wear high-visibility, yellow-green safety vests required by federal regulations when working within a highway's right of way. MDOT provides the vests and trash bags for free, and arranges to haul away the trash.

Current volunteers include members of various civic groups, businesses and families. Crew members have to be at least 12 years old and each group must number at least three people.

Sections of highway are still available for adoption. Interested groups should check the MDOT web page at www.michigan.gov/adoptahighway for more information. Groups are asked to adopt a section of highway for at least two years. There is no fee to participate. Adopt-A-Highway signs bearing a group's name are posted along the stretches of adopted highway.

This year's second Adopt-A-Highway pickup will be from July 13-21, followed by the final pickup from Sept. 21-29.

a little oblong and be slightly higher on one end instead of a perfect oval.

Hitz also noted for those who visited the site, that the distance between the location of the proposed benches and the edge of the fireplace will be more than what exists at the site now, because the footprint of the changed design will be smaller than the current foundation at the site.

In an effort to answer some additional questions raised at last week's meeting Hitz said he and Buday visited the Crooked River Lodge in Alanson recently which has a similarly-designed outdoor fireplace (in size, shape and heat output). The men took temperature readings at various locations around the fire on a 37-degree night, to address concerns about the fire being too hot, or posing a risk of causing burns. Their readings found that although the center of the fire registered about 300 degrees and the outer edges of the fire registered about 165 degrees, temperature readings taken a foot or two away from the fire registered about 49 degrees.

Hitz also noted that the hotel's manager reported that the fireplace is very popular with hotel guests.

With all that said, questions still lingered about the sculpture feature and how it will serve to both look good and protect the public from the fire.

The danger the fireplace could pose to the public — especially children and the elderly — was the most common concerns voiced by members of the audience Monday.

"I think there are serious, serious concerns of safety with this fire pit — especially with children," city resident Nancy Porter said. "Children do things that are foolish."

Bob Bergmann said he is concerned about the proposed fixed benches around the fireplace because he believes they will be hazard to people walking nearby.

Vicki Voisin said the council shouldn't compare the Crooked River Lodge fireplace to the East Park proposal because the East Park proposal is in a public park that sees much more foot traffic.

John Campbell renewed his concerns over a proposal to have the fireplace operate on a timer. He said he remains concerned that people could be too close to the fireplace when it is off and be burned when it comes on without warning.

Hitz explained that the sculpture element is the last major piece of the project that needs to be nailed down. He said safety will be a top priority when designing the sculptural piece.

Responding to the safety concerns, council member Greg Stevens pointed out that a fire has been used for many years at the top of the rope tow at the Mount McSauba ski area. Stevens noted that although the area at McSauba typically has many children nearby, no incidents or problems have ever been reported.

Resident Gabe Campbell again asked the council to hold off on any further action involving the fireplace until after the upcoming May 7 recall election. Campbell is one of four people running in the upcoming election.

"I think you should hold of on any further decisions," Campbell said. "You have a vote coming up in May, the people will be speaking loud and clear."

Council member Gennett agreed saying, "I think, personally, it's in the best interest of the council to wait until after the election. There are people who claim they want to be heard. That's why election is happening. After (the election), we can push through with this, but if things turn in the other direction, we are going to sit here and undo what we did. I think it would be a wise thing to put off until then."

In response, Carlson said Monday's action was not a final approval, but just giving Hitz and Buday their support to the design to-date and the go-ahead to proceed with designing the final elements for the council's consideration. Carlson said that consideration of final approval isn't expected to take place until after the election.

The council approved the original design in August when an anonymous donor came forward through resident John Winn offering to pay for the bulk of the project. When construction started, however, the council heard a chorus of objections to the project, largely about the impact the fireplace and chimney would have on views of Round Lake from bridge street. In September, the council voted to put the project on hold so other options could be explored.

In the 2nd Ward, incumbent Bryan Vollmer will face off against challenger Gabe Campbell.

The 3rd Ward will feature a three-person race among incumbent Jill Picha and challengers Shirley Gibson and Dennis Halverson.

The deadline for filing paperwork to run in the election as a write-in candidate is 4 p.m. on Friday, April 26. As of 10 a.m. Thursday, April 25, no one had yet filed to run as a write-in candidate, city clerk Carol Ochs said.

Campbell and Porter are also the sponsors of two of the three the recall petitions that forced the recall election against their respective opponents in the upcoming election. Resident Julee Roth was the sponsor of the petition that was circulated against Picha.

Whoever wins the respective recall election races will immediately assume or retain that seat on the council and will serve the remainder of the term, which expires on Nov. 18. Coincidentally, the deadline for filing nominating petitions for candidates to appear on the November ballot is 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 14.

All of the candidates have experience serving with Charlevoix city government in various capacities. In fact, all but Halverson have served on the city council at one time. Halverson served as the city's police chief for many years.

The recall efforts stem from discontent with the city council among city residents concerning the outdoor community fireplace project in Plaza B of East Park. The fireplace project was approved by the city council at a special meeting on Aug. 9, 2012. Complaints about the project began surfacing when construction began days later. After hearing many complaints about the project, in September the council voted to put the project on hold so it could explore other options for the project that might make it more agreeable to more members of the community. On Monday the council voted 5-1 to move to the final design phase of a redesigned low-profile version of the fireplace.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce recently compiled profiles of the candidates that will be distributed on the night of the forum and are now available for download from the chamber's website www.charlevoix.org. The profile document includes the candidates' answers to five questions. Here are the candidates' answers to one of the questions: "What is your reason for wanting to serve?"

— Halverson: "As a longtime resident and former police chief, I have a deep love and understanding of our community. My previous experiences and continuing desire to learn and keep an open mind on all issues will serve the residents of Charlevoix in the manner they deserve. I bring common sense thinking, leadership and sound judgment, which are what voters expect from their elected officials. I represent a 'fresh start' in providing a fair, consistent and open political process.

— Gibson: "Improve the image and actions of the city council with a common sense approach, restore confidence in city council by listening to the public, get Charlevoix back on track to tackle the big issues facing the city."

— Campbell: "The present council is not listening to the people. I will."

— Kusina: "I want to give back to the city, community and my neighborhood. I want to make it a community that we are all proud of and a place we all want to live in. A place that is appealing for outsiders to come and visit and also a place that they want to move to. I would like it to be a place where businesses want to come to locate and set up shop. I want to make sure that we continue to be 'Charlevoix the Beautiful.'"

— Picha: "I was born and raised in Charlevoix's 3rd Ward where I still live to this day. I truly love this community, the people that live here and the many great things Charlevoix has to offer."

— Porter: "The vast majority of voters in Charlevoix's 1st Ward and I, are mad as hell and are not going to take it any more. I speak about the failure of the city council members, mayor and some staff to listen to the public. Having served on the city council before, I believe I have the necessary qualifications needed by our city."

— Vollmer: "My reason to serve is for awareness and first-hand involvement in issues that are happening in our community. Prior to serving I wasn't aware of what was going on and what it takes to make our city what it is."

For those who cannot attend the forum, the Courier will publish a story about the event and will also be making a video recording that will be available online.

also has 51 percent participation in advanced placement coursework and exams — which means students have the opportunity to earn college credit in a high school setting. The report also looks at state exit exams and other testing. Those tests show that Charlevoix high schoolers rank in the 76 percentile for proficiency in reading and 70 percentile in proficiency in math.

The report also evaluates the high school students' college readiness, which is based on four criteria, said Klinger. Those four criteria are the students' ACT scores; how disadvantaged students perform on the ACT; the percentage of students taking advanced placement courses; and the percentage of students scoring well on the advanced placement tests.

Fifty one percent of Charlevoix high school students are enrolled in an advanced placement class, and 30 percent of those students pass the advanced placement tests — which means a significant portion of Charlevoix high school students graduate with college credit under their belts.

"We're really proud," said Klinger. "The fact that we're 43 out of 826 school districts in Michigan is a true testament to how hard we've been working."

Rayders win season's first meet

Boys sweep relays, girls nip Harbor by two points

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — Eventually, the weather was bound to shape up.

On Monday, the Charlevoix High School track and field teams took advantage of the melting snow and clear lanes, bringing in their first Lake Michigan Conference win of the season in a four team meet at East Jordan High School.

The meet was the first of the season for the Rayders, who competed along with host East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs. Charlevoix took boys meet, sweeping all four relay events with a total score of 112 points to runner up Harbor Springs, who finished with 77. East Jordan finished third with 43, surpassing Boyne's 24 points.

"We could finally see what they were capable of and for them you can only practice so long without something to do," Charlevoix boys coach Ken Plude said. "They were excited. Very excited to get out there finally and have good weather."

"Our sprint relays looked really good this early. It's been a while since I've had those kind of times this early in the season," Plude added.

For the girls, Charlevoix edged out Boyne City for a two point 83-81 win, while Harbor Springs finished third with 68 points, East Jordan fourth with 14 points.

"I was very impressed. There's some kids that came through and I was really pleased. I had a lot of surprises," Charlevoix girls coach Mary Plude said.

Charlevoix's Jared Reibel edges Harbor Springs' Spencer Kloas (right) and Boyne City's Connor Mills in the 200-meter dash Monday at the Eaat Jordan High School track. Reibel won the event with a time of 25.11 seconds, while Klosa finished second and Mills third, with times of 25.22 and 25.40 respectively.

The meet was originally scheduled as a home meet for Charlevoix, but was moved because of field conditions to East Jordan. Mary Plude was pleased to have finally gotten a meet in for the season.

"We're so glad that East Jordan was willing to let us shift the meet to there," she said. "It was warmer over there, less wind, just a great track to be on. I think it really helped the performances."

For the Charlevoix boys' team, Nicholas Plude took first in the 800, 2:00.28; Jared Reibel won the 200, 25.11; Devante Drain won the 100, 12.42; Tristen Rudolph finished first in the 3200, 10:33.07; and Sawyer Russell won pole vault with a leap of 10 feet, 6 inches. Chris Young finished first in the 110 hurdles with a time of 18.02.

Charlevoix swept the relay competitions in the meet, finishing with a time of 8:41.54 in the 3200 relay (Jackson Buday, Nick Snabes, CJ Rice, Rudolph); 800, (Reibel, Plude, Charlie Hamilton, Russell), 2:00.28, 1600, (Young, Russell, Ben Boss, Plude) 3:46.26; and 400, (Reibel, Hamilton, Drain, Micah Peebles) 47.65.

East Jordan's Ben Walton won both the discus, 114 feet, 3 inches and the shot put, 48 feet, 1 inch. Donvee Burks won the high jump for the Red Devils with a leap of 5 feet, 10 inches, while Josh Wojan won the 1600 with a time of 4:43.17.

Harbor Springs' Sam Hansen won the long jump with a distance of 18 feet, 2 1/2 inches. John Bailey won the 400 with a time of 56.15, while Charlie Dryer won the 300 hurdles with a time of 43.62.

For the Charlevoix girls, Madeline Boss finished first in both the high jump, 4 feet, 8 inches; and long jump 14 feet, 6.75 inches. Amber Way won both the 1600, 5:29.28; and 800, 2:31.82. In the 400, Kourtney Putman placed first with a time of 1:06.85.

The Rayders won two relay events. In the 1600 (Caroline Boss, Maddie Boss, Putman, and Hannah Zipp), 4:26.76. The Rayders also won the 800 with the same team as the 1600, in a time of 1:57.52.

Boyne City's Mary Myers won the discus and shot put with throws of 79 feet, 9 inches and 31 feet, 1.5 inches respectively. Myers also won the pole vault with a height of 7 feet, 6 inches. Kylie Hicks won both the 100 and 300 hurdles with times of 16.11 and 50.40.

Boyne's 400 relay team of Tara Hufford, Kristen Rushlow, Hannah Brilinski and Megan Rushlow finished first in a time of 58.41.

For Harbor Springs, Salix Sampson won the 100 with a time of 13.49 and the 200 in a time of 28.56. Jessica Worm won the 3200 in 14:13.92 for the Rams.

Harbor also won the 3200 relay (Taylor Sydow, Kaitlyn Alessi, Regan Damoose and Emily Bosley) with of time of 11:38.83.

Rayders whip Ramblers, fall in double OT to Elks

The Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team set the tone early and found the back of the net often in a lopsided win over conference rival Boyne City on Thursday, April 18.

The Rayders scored five goals in the first half and added another three quick goals in the second half en route to rolling past the Ramblers, 8-0, In a Lake Michigan Conference match at Shanahan Field.

With the win, the Rayders — who won their first three games to start this season via a shutout — improved to 3-0 overall, 3-0 league.

"We executed perfectly tonight," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We had great crosses in front of the net and the girls were able to finish on many of them. We also had a lot of great passing and good combinations."

The Rayders scored just 28 seconds into the opening half on a quick pass to the corner from junior forward Kaitlin Hinkley to freshman midfielder Kylee Scholten to set the early tone.

Senior Hannah Herboldsheimer led the Rayders with three goals, while Kylee Scholten added two goals and scoring a goal apiece were senior midfielder Anna Way, junior forward Katie Kiteley and sophomore forward Grace Whitley. Hannah Herboldsheimer, Elizabeth Way, Kelsey Engstrom, Sophie Herboldsheimer, Hinkley and Scholten all added one assist.

The Rayder offense collected 25 shots on goal. Goalkeepers Gloria Greene and Bailee Stevens shared the shutout in goal as Green finished with three saves.

It would be a much harder-fought affair on Monday when dropped a double overtime shootout Lake Michigan Conference match to Elk Rapids, 1-0

In the shootout, the Elks outscored the Rayders, 3-2.

"We knew going into the game that it was going to be intense," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "It doesn't get much better than double overtime and a shootout. It was disappointing that we came up short, but the girls played a great game."

The Rayders took 20 shots on goal, but were unable to finish.

Rayder sophomore goalkeeper Gloria Greene shut out the Elks for 100 straight minutes, finishing with nine saves.

"Gloria Greene made several extraordinary saves that kept us in the game," Scholten said. "Offensively we controlled much of hte game, but just couldn't find the back of the net."

The Elks are 3-0-1 overall, 3-0 league, while the Rayders are 5-1 overall, 3-1 league.

Rayders win B flight in first Morel Cup tourney

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team rebounded from their first loss of the season to claim the B Flight of the first-ever Harbor Springs Morel Cup tournament Saturday.

The Rayders finished with a 2-1 record on the day as they opened with a 3-0 loss to Ann Arbor Huron, then topped Cheboygan, 1-0, before topping Maple City Glen Lake, 2-0, in the B Flight championship game.

Utica,Eisenhower won the overall tournament title as they topped Ann Arbor Huron in the title game.

"Despite the cool temps and snow flurries it was a great day of soccer," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "Our girls played very well and the tournament showed both our strengths and weaknesses."

Against Huron, Charlevoix collected eight shots on goal, while Huron was able to convert on some early Charlevoix mistakes.

"Ann Arbor was physically bigger and faster than us," Scholten said. "We made a few mistakes early on in the first half and they were quick to take advantage of it. We made some adjustments and we played a much better second half."

Senior goalkeeper Bailee Stevens had three saves in the first half for the Rayders, 5-1 overall, and sophomore Gloria Greene added seven saves in the second half.

"We were proud of our girls determination and never give up attitude," Scholten said.

Against Cheboygan, junior forward Kaitlin Hinkley scored the lone goal of the game off an assist from sophomore midfielder Elizabeth Way. The Rayders finished with nine shots on goal, while Stevens and Greene again split the goalkeeping duties with Stevens having six saves and Senior center midfielder Anna Way scored both goals for the Rayders in the their final game against Glen Lake. Both Way goals were unassisted. The Rayders finished with 18 shots on goal, while Stevens had two saves and Greene added three.

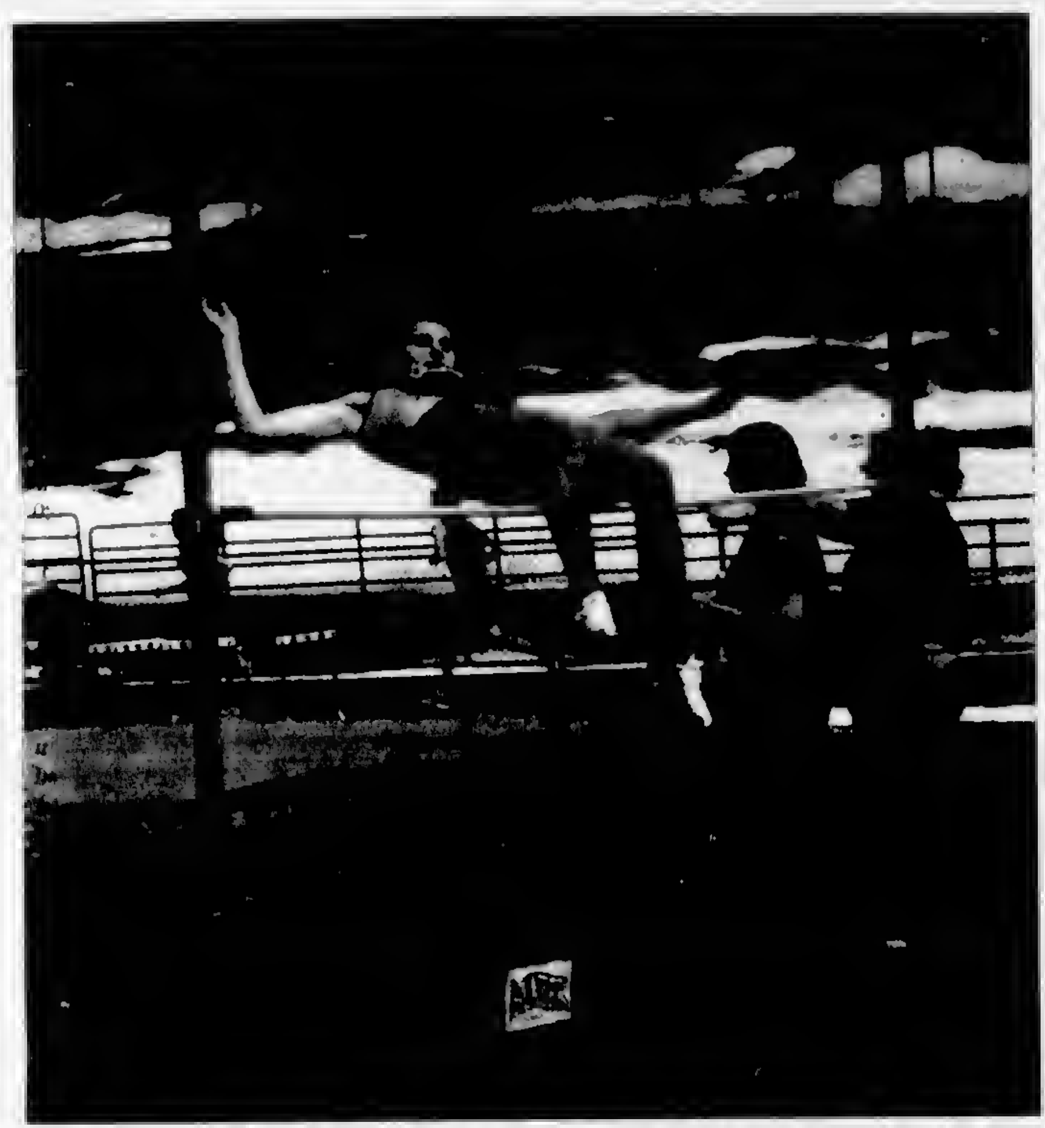
Host Harbor Springs finished with a 2-0-1 overall record and placed third overall in the tournament.

"I thought the girls played excellent," Harbor Springs coach Ed Fantozzi said. "It's probably a day the girls will not forget for a long time."

The Rams opened with a 3-1 win over Cheboygan then fell to Ann Arbor Huron, 4-2, in a shootout. In their final game, the Rams slipped past Alpena, 3-2.



Charlevoix's Madeline Boss leaps over the bar during the high jump Monday at the East Jordan High School track. Boss won the high jump with a height of 4 foot, 8 inches. She also won the long jump with a distance of 14 feet, 6.75 inches and was a part of the Rayders 800-meter and 1600-meter relay winning teams.

Travel team opens season

On Saturday, April 20, the Charlevoix U-14 girls travel soccer team opened its spring 2013 travel season at Shanahan field against the Traverse City Northstar Yellow team. Playing with a kickoff temperature of 27 degrees, a windchill of 14 degrees and snow squalls Charlevoix came up a goal short in the opener, losing 4-3. But Charlevoix bounced back its second game, defeating the Grayling Valkyrie team 4-0. Pictured is Charlevoix's midfielder Alexandria Snabes (right) and a Northstar defender.

Rayder boys, girls win at Ram Scram

HARBOR SPRINGS — Two meets in the books, two meet wins for the Charlevoix Rayders boys and girls' track teams.

The Rayders teams competed in the annual Ram Scram hosted by Harbor Springs High School on Wednesday, at Reynolds field in Harbor Springs.

Along with the Rayders and Rams, East Jordan, Boyne City, Pellston, Inland Lakes, Cheboygan, Sault Ste. Marie and White Pines (Ontario, Ont.), competed in the meet.

The Charlevoix boys team finished first with a total score of 161.66 points. Cheboygan finished second with 87, while Inland Lakes third with 63 total points. Harbor finished fourth with 63, followed by East Jordan, 58.33, Sault, 49, White Pines, 32, Boyne City, 24, and Pellston with 16.

The win for the Rayders comes two days after they won a Monday Lake Michigan Conference meet win in East Jordan. On Wednesday, early morning snow left the laned on the Harbor Springs track, but the frigid temperatures in the upper 30s remained throughout the meet.

"We ran really well. Great performances, good attitudes. Number one thing is having a good attitude this time of year when it's nasty," Charlevoix boys coach Ken Plude said. "I think it's actually making them more of a unit. It shows when they're racing that they're doing it for each other and cheering and having a good time."

"We almost broke some records and it's cold. If it was warmer we probably would have."

The relays at the meet are run co-ed, with two girls and two boys running each relay, while the individual 800, 1600 and 3200-meter runs are run clockwise around the track rather than the normal counter-clockwise.

"This is a lot of fun to combine things," Rayders girls' coach Mary Plude said. "A team effort. They did real well with the guys which I think adds a little spark to them. It's just a lot of fun for them."

The Rayders relay teams nearly swept the match, winning the 1,600 with a team of Caroline Boss, Madeline Boss, Nick Plude and Chris Young; 3,200 relay (Amber Way, Caroline Boss, Plude and Nick Snabes); shot-put relay (Kourtney Putman, Alex Brown, Hannah Zipp and Aaron Duckworth) and 800-meter relay (Boss, Ivy Wells, Jarod Reibel and Sawyer Russell).

In individuals for the boys, Sawyer Russell won the pole vault for the Rayders with a height of 10-feet, while East Jordan's Ben Walton won the shot put with a combined 91 feet, 2 inches. Pellston's Dale Stark took first in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 6 inches. Harbor Springs' Sam Hansen took first in the long jump with a combine jump of 37 feet, 7 inches.

On the track for the boys, Charlevoix's Chris Young took first place finishes in both the 110 and 300-meter hurdles with times of 17.25 and 44.44 respectively. East Jordan's Josh Wojan took both the 1600 run and 800 with times of 4:39.00 and 2:04.10.

A pair of Charlevoix boys' took both the 100-meter dash and 400-meter run in Devon Drain and Nick Plude respectively. Drain hit a mark of 11.63 in the 100, while Plude set the tone of 52.31 in the 400. Inland Lakes Daniel Flowers took first in the 200 with a 23.88 time.

For the girls, Boyne City's Mary Myers took first place finishes in both the Shot put, 59 feet, 6.25 inches combine, and discus, 148 feet, 3.5 inches combined. Ivy Wells took first in the pole vault for the Rayders with a height of 7 feet, 6.01 inches. Sandy Bischoff of Inland Lakes took first in the long jump with a combined 29 feet, .75 inches.

Harbor Springs Salix Sampson swept both the 100 and 200 meter dashes with time of 13.27 and 26.81 respectively, while Charlevoix's Amber Way stole the show in the 1600 and 3200 run, setting meet records in both with times of 5:29.60 and 11:42.00. Caroline Boss also set a meet record in the 800, with a time of 2:24.85.

In the hurdles events, Harbor's Paulina Adams took first in the 300 with a time of 54.46, while Boyne's Kylie Hicks took first in the 100 hurdles at 16.18 seconds.

BASEBALL

Rayders bats hot in sweep over Vikings

GRAYLING — Noah Certa had four hits and drove in four runs in the opening game, while Tommy Zipp had two doubles in game two as the Rayders swept Grayling, 16-12, 8-2, to improve to 4-0 overall, 2-0 league on Wednesday.

"I was very happy with the way we battled back in game one," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "The defense was a little shaky to start and we fell behind twice, but had two big innings, scoring five in the fourth and seven in the fifth. Noah Cena was on fire at the plate."

Also for the Rayders in game one, Tag MacCreadie had a double. Hunter Cox added two hits while Will Telgenhof, Nate Moon, JJ Bottomley and Zipp each added a hit.

Moon was the winning pitcher in relief.

In game two, Shane Sutherland, Moon, Telgenhof, Bottomley and McCreadie had a hit apiece, while Austin Putman drove in a run.

Zipp threw a complete game shutout, striking out six before the game was called because of darkness in the fourth inning.

"Tommy Zipp just took over both at the plate and on the hill and the defense turned it up a notch, turning two double plays on the day" Allen Telgenhof said

SOFTBALL

Charlevoix splits opener

Rayders rebound 5-3 after initial fall to Grayling

GRAYLING — The Charlevoix High School varsity softball team opened the 2013 season with a split in their season opener Wednesday against Grayling as they rebounded to win the nightcap, 5-3, after falling in the opener, 6-3.

Kelsey Pischner had three hits to lead the Rayders in the nightcap win, while Rachel Schull and Katie Hyhl had two hits apiece. Also for the Rayders, Jennifer Archey, Gabby Gray, Yogi Hang and Skyler Herriman each added one hit.

Hang was the winning pitcher as she struck out four, walked four and scattered three hits. Hyhl picked up the save as she struck out four, walked one and gave up just one hit in two innings of relief.

"I was proud of the girls," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said. "We've been stuck in the gym so long and you sometimes don't know what to expect your first time out. I was happy and we're excited for the rest of the year"

In the opening game, Grayling scored four runs in the opening inning to take an early lead.

"It was one of those things where we had some opening day jitters," Hoffman said. "Once we settled down, we played much better."

Schull had two hits to lead the Rayders offensively, while Pischner doubled. Archey, Gray, Hybl and Nicole Peterson all singled Hybl took the pitching loss as she struck out six, walked three and gave up six hits.

Charlevoix plays host to Suttons Bay in a non-league doubleheader on Friday, April 26.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Major Leaguers lined up for Little League kickoff

Charlevoix Little League has confirmed the roster of 12 former Major League Baseball players who will participate in its upcoming kickoff weekend event on May 4-5.

The players, including Bruce Look, Dennis Rasmussen, Steve Avery, Doug Mirabelli, Ray Herbert, Dick Colpaert, Dan Rohn, Roger Mason, John Luplow, Matt Mieske, Dave Bergman, and Rob Ellis will kick off the weekend hosting a free baseball/softball clinic from 10-1 pm on Saturday, May 4

Immediately following, clinic participants will be treated to a free lunch and autograph session with the former pros

The clinic will take place at the Charlevoix Little League Field off Carpenter Street near the airport. After lunch, Charlevoix Little League will host their Opening Day Ceremonies.

League president, John Haan said, "This is an amazing opportunity for all of the kids and baseball fans. It is going to be an exciting weekend."

The free clinic will be for children from ages 7-14 and is limited to the first 250 children. Pre-registration is available online at charlevoixlittleleague.com or mlbpaa.mlb.com.

The day will conclude with an evening reception and silent auction fundraiser with the former Major Leaguers' benefiting Charlevoix Little League at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. The silent auction will include several pieces of Major League Baseball memorabilia, as well as items from local businesses. Tickets for the evening reception are $30 and are available from any Little League board member and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Sunday will be the weekend's featured event with the "Golf with the Legends" golf outing. This unique double shotgun start scramble will take place at the historic Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix and will allow players the opportunity to golf nine of their eighteen holes side by side with former Major League players. The cost for the outing is $150 and includes green fees for 18 holes, cart, mid-afternoon lunch, and two tickets to the Saturday evening reception. Entry forms are available online at charlevoixlittleleague.com.

Sales

Digital Sales Representative

The Petoskey News-Review is seeking a Digital Sales Representative. Do you consistently achieve goals? Do you feel like you'd enjoy going on sales calls every day, and meeting with new prospects (or are you already doing so)? We're looking for a Digital Sales Rep to join our market-leading team that focuses on our customers' growth.
We're seeking someone to help us maximize digital revenue across platforms, and ensure that our customers' digital advertising campaigns are optimized and completed accurately. Our culture thrives on creating and executing big ideas that provide solutions for our customers.

This position requires solid presentation skills, creativity and great attention to detail. Prior sales and digital media experience are both a big plus.

To qualify, you must possess good interpersonal skills, ambition and excellent prospecting abilities. Other responsibilities include the ability to develop and retain new, local business, manage and develop client projects and provide solutions, along with great problem-solving.

The position offers great earning potential and full benefits, including group health, paid time off and 401(k). Dependable transportation and a valid driver's license are required.

Academy students learn while serving

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

In Earth Month, Northwest Academy teachers saw the chance to both get their students involved in the community and teach them classroom lessons through an environmentally-tuned service learning project.

The events culminated in an Earth Day clean-up in Charlevoix, said history and social studies teacher Christina Eanes.

"Service-learning is a teaching method that incorporates community improvement into classroom curriculum, resulting in benefits for the community and real-world learning for students," said Eanes.

That real-world learning is aimed both at teaching students critical thinking skills and hitting the state standards for social studies, science, math and language arts, she said.

During the pick-up, students gathered 83.3 pounds of trash from a several-block area that centered around Charlevoix's downtown.

Beau Kroondyk is the academy's 7-12 grade math teacher. His class handled the initial influx of material and analyzed the amount and kinds of materials.

The students sorted through the trash and counted each item. The most commonly discarded object? Cigarette butts. Of 528 pieces of paper picked up, only about 30 were not cigarette butts.

"We found paper and plastic, even car bumpers," said Kroondyk. "This came out of just a few blocks. Just imagine everywhere else."

Ninth grader Kori Eanes, Christina Eanes's daughter, said the service learning project made her not only think about the environment, but working with

Recall candidates have their say

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The candidates in the upcoming Charlevoix City Council recall election set for Tuesday, May 7 (from left) Dennis Kusina, Bryan Vollmer, Jill Picha, Jeff Porter, Gabe Campbell, Shirley Gibson, and Dennis Halverson participate in a community forum at Charlevoix High School Wednesday.

The seven candidates who will vie for three seats on the Charlevoix City Council in the Tuesday, May 7, recall election offered few surprises to the roughly 50 people who attended a community informational forum hosted by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at the Charlevoix High School auditorium Wednesday.

The central issue remains what it has been all along: The council's actions leading up to and including its approval of an outdoor community fireplace in East Park during a special meeting on Aug. 9, 2012.

During the roughly 90-minute forum, the candidates — who include incumbents Jill Picha, Dennis Kusina, and Bryan Vollmer and challengers Jeff Porter, Shirley Gibson, Gabe Campbell and Dennis Halverson, took turns answering questions from moderator Doug Deyoung — some of them prepared in advance, others submitted by audience members during the event.

- Answering a question about whether city parks should be used for events and if not, what effect might that have on businesses in the community, Kusina, Vollmer and Picha said the parks should be open for people to use and for events. Kusina took it a step further saying the fireplace would figure well into the park and events that take place there.

Gibson said she, too believes events are appropriate in the city's parks, but said the fireplace isn't likely to draw people to the community like events do.

Porter and Campbell didn't exactly answer the question regarding events in the park, but instead focused on the fireplace and criticized the process the council followed to approve the fireplace saying it didn't do enough to seek input from the community before the approval. Halverson noted that he served on the committee that developed the East Park plan and noted that the process the committee followed was very inclusive of many groups within the community which he said ultimately led to consensus on the park's development

Next the candidates were asked about the allegation made in the petitions circulated to prompt the recall claiming that the council violated the state's Open Meetings Act, when it met when it conducted the Aug. 9 special meeting at which the fireplace was approved.

The incumbents, Picha, Vollmer and Kusina held fast to the contention voiced by the city attorney and city clerk that no such violation took place and that the meeting was properly posted more than the 18 hours in advance, as required under the law.

Porter only said he thinks the matter will be resolved by the voters on Election Day. Both Campbell and Gibson stood equally fast to their contention that a violation of the act did take place. Both cited opinions by attorneys hinging on the fact that the meeting was posted as a joint meeting of the council and downtown development authority board, but the downtown development authority board could not conduct any business because it did not have a quorum present.

Halverson said he wasn't a party to the construction of the recall petition lan-

Here's how the races, as they will appear on the ballot, will shape up:

In the 1st Ward, incumbent Dennis Kusina will square off against challenger Jeff Porter.

In the 2nd Ward, incumbent Bryan Vollmer will face off against challenger Gabe Campbell.

The 3rd Ward will feature a three-person race among incumbent Jill Picha and challengers Shirley Gibson and Dennis Halverson.

The winners of the election will serve out the remainder of the term for the respective seats for which they are running. That term ends in November.

Fund created for Jerry Matelski memorial highway effort

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — An effort to designate Boyne City-Charlevoix Road as the Jerry Matelski Memorial Highway is under way.

Matelski, a Boyne City resident who passed away in 2010 at age 57 of esophageal cancer, was instrumental in obtaining extensive repairs on the road and advocated the passage of a 15-year county wide road millage in 2008.

Lynn Murray, a long-time friend of Matelski and Boyne City Zoning Board of Appeals member, is spearheading the effort to purchase two signs to place on either end of the road in honor of his friend.

The signs have been approved by the Charlevoix County Road Commission and will be placed in the commission's right-of-way. Each will cost approximately $2,000 to construct and install. The signs would be about 4 feet wide and just over 6 feet tall and would contain the county seal and the words "Jerry Matelski Memorial Highway."

"We need to raise about $4,000," said Murray. He is planning a few summer fundraising events for the signs and has opened a memorial fund at Bay Winds Credit Union where donations can be made.

He is also seeking two or more board members to help manage the fund and plan fundraising events.

"Considering the amount of good news and positive press regarding Charlevoix County's roads, it's important to remember (Matelski) as the person most responsible for these substantial improvements," Murray said, explaining his motivation for the project.

The roads were deteriorating rapidly, he said, and the county sheriff made a statement in 2007 that Boyne City-Charlevoix Road was "an accident waiting to happen."

Matelski

That year, Matelski organized a group called the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County. They put up signs at either end of the road to alert motorists to their cause, set up a website, called elected officials, attended township board meetings and circulated surveys to share their views about the condition of the road.

Matelski's dream became a reality in 2008 when voters in Charlevoix County narrowly approved a 15-year, 1 mill road improvement and repair millage by a narrow, 96-vote margin, which provided the funding for the repairs to Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

In all, the millage will result in the collection of approximately $35 million over a 15 year period to be used exclusively for road repair and construction. Murray said he hopes the memorializing of this road will show the importance of community participation and the impact that one passionate person can make.

"When people get involved, we can solve issues together," Murray said. "The end result here is that he almost managed — single-handedly — to spearhead this millage that is going to result in $35 million of infrastructure improvement here in Charlevoix County alone."

Matelski graduated from Boyne Falls High School and had four children including Gerald, who has preceded him in death, Adam, Brent and Kassie and was a devoted husband to his wife, Brenda.

Donations can be made directly to the Jerry Matelski Memorial Fund at Bay Winds Federal Credit Union. For more information, contact Murray at (231) 582-4144 or (231) 330-5215.

Health department issues warning of food service health inspector scam

Public health officials are warning local food establishments of a scam involving a phone call from someone identifying himself as a food inspector.

According to Scott Kendzierski, director of environmental health for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, health officials elsewhere in the state have indicated that at least one such scam is being reported by a food establishment in their area, although there have not yet been any such reports in Northwest Michigan.

In that instance, the male caller claimed to be planning to inspect the food establishment, and gave an employee instructions to await an automated call. The food establishment employee then received text messages including a special code and a link to a Craig's List ad.

"We want to remind all food establishments in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties that the health department and your local food inspector will always contact you personally," Kendzierski said. "Someone identifying himself or herself as a food inspector should be able to provide you with proper credentials. You will never be asked to respond to any automated calls or provide special access codes. If you receive a call like this, please let us know immediately."

Kendzierski recommends asking for identification if someone stops by or calls claiming to be from the local health department, Department of Agriculture, or federal food agencies that you don't know. If the individual cannot provide proper identification or if you suspect that the ID may be invalid, do not allow the person access to your facility. Contact your food regulatory agency immediately and report it. He adds that food establishment employees should never provide sensitive or confidential information, such as a Social Security number, as food inspectors would not ask for that information.

"We work hard to develop excellent relationships with food service operators," Kendzierski explained. "We will be working closely with local law enforcement officials to address any concerns."

Food service operators who have suspicions about the identity of an inspector, or who believe they are victims of a scam, should call Mike Jones, environmental health supervisor, at (231) 547-7641.

Correction

A story appearing on page A3 of the Friday, April 26, edition of the Charlevoix Courier about the Charlevoix Planning Commission's work on a major overhaul of the city's zoning ordinance listed the incorrect day of the week for the commission's next meeting and hearing on the ordinance amendment. The next meeting and public hearing will take place at 6 p.m. on Monday, May 13, at Charlevoix City Hall.

Plant worker finds, rescues missing boy

A St. Marys Cement plant worker who was among dozens of people searching for a missing autistic boy south of Charlevoix Saturday, found the boy and pulled him unharmed from Lake Michigan.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's office news release, at 9:21 a.m. Saturday sheriff's officials received a report of a 6-year-old autistic boy who had become separated from his mother at Fisherman's Island State Park, just south of Charlevoix. The mother reported that the boy had ventured off toward Lake Michigan in the direction of the St. Mary's Cement Plant

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said deputies made contact with the cement plant manager who advised his staff via radio that there was a missing child in the area. The cement plant manager then halted operations at the plant and asked employees to assist in the search. Plant employees utilized pickup trucks and all-terrain vehicles to access the outer areas of the property in the location where the boy was last seen.

Pavel Silkovskiy, an employee at the cement plant, was traveling on a lower road near Lake Michigan when he spotted the boy near the water.

According to the release, as Silkovskiy started to walk towards the child, the boy ran into the water. Silkovskiy was able to get to the boy and remove him from Lake Michigan, according to the release.

Sheriff's deputies, along with fire personnel, met plant staff and the young boy on the shoreline. Authorities said the child was cold because of the water but unharmed. The child was reunited with his parents a short time later at the state park.

Schneider lauded the efforts of St. Mary's Cement and their employees for their quick action.

"Their staff saved critical time and removed the child from imminent danger," Schneider said.

Deputies were assisted by the Charlevoix Police Department, Charlevoix Township Fire, Charlevoix EMS and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Parks Division.

Total recall: How we got here

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

City of Charlevoix voters won't know it by looking at the ballot when they go to the polls for the Charlevoix City Council recall election that will take place on Tuesday, May 7, but the recall attempt has its roots in a proposal to build an outdoor community fireplace in East Park brought to the council at a meeting in July of 2012.

The proposal came to the council from city resident John Winn who brought an offer from an anonymous donor who wished to pay for the construction of a gas-fueled fireplace and chimney in the park's Plaza B.

Winn later explained that the donor had originally wanted to contribute to the interactive fountain in the park, but since that project is complete, Winn suggested the fireplace to the donor as an alternative. Winn said he got the idea from a similar one that is located in downtown Holland that seemed to be a popular attraction.

When originally proposed, Winn explained that the donor was a man in his 80s who is not in good health. He told the council that a condition of the donor's offer was that the fireplace be completed in time for Apple Festival in October.

The original design called for the fireplace and chimney to be made out of stone to match the other structures in the park and for the firebox to be a roughly 8-foot cube topped by a roughly 13-foot-tall chimney for a total structure height of about 20 feet.

At the meeting, the council seemed agreeable to consider the project, and directed staff to look into the proposal further and report back.

At the council's next meeting on Aug. 6, city manager Rob Straebel reported that more details of the proposal were coming together, but had suggested that the council hold off for one more meeting while a few more details were finalized. Winn spoke up at the meeting telling the council he was concerned that waiting until the next council meeting could jeopardize the donor's timeline requirement for the project's completion. Hearing this, the council decided to schedule a special meeting to which it would also invite the downtown development authority board. The meeting was set for Aug. 9 and was to begin in East Park so that the council could discuss both the fireplace proposal and a proposal to plant more shade trees in the park.

During the special meeting, the downtown development authority board did not have enough members present to make a quorum and therefore that board did not conduct any official business. The council proceeded with its portion of the meeting. When the council re-convened at city hall it voted to not add any more shade trees to the park, but to move forward with the fireplace proposal. Little or no public comment was made about the fireplace proposal at any of the three meetings at which it was discussed prior to its approval.

When work began at the site days later, which included removing a tree, several residents and downtown business owners began to object to the project.

Jobless rate down

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Northwest Michigan's unemployment rate moved downward in March, a trend also seen in all of the state's other major labor markets.

Statistics recently released by the Michigan Department of Technology, Management and Budget showed a jobless rate of 10.5 percent for the 10-county Northwest Lower Michigan labor market in March. This represents a decrease from the 11.3 percent unemployment rate observed in February, as well as from the 11.8 percent figure seen a year earlier in March 2012.

The labor market includes Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford counties.

Around Michigan, "Local area unemployment rates have trended downward from January to March, while area employment levels have risen," said Michael Williams, acting director of the Bureau of Labor Market Information & Strategic Initiatives. "Over-the-year jobless rate declines in nearly all of Michigan's local areas were comparable to the national jobless rate reduction."

In the northwest region, the number of people employed showed month-to-month as well as year-to-year gains in March.

When March figures are compared with those from four years earlier (during the height of the last recession), Northwest Michigan Council of Governments chief financial officer Charlene Schlueter noted that the number of people employed in the region has dropped by 3,570. But the 10-county area has seen a larger decrease of 7,662 in its number of unemployed people during that four-year time span.

Local and state unemployment rates for March are as follows:

Emmet County 13.5 percent
Charlevoix County 12.2 percent
Michigan 8.8 percent

Well water testing offered

Your cottage, cabin or year-round home comes with its own set of seasonal rituals. If you have a seasonal place, chances are you'll soon be firing up the well pump for the first time in months, and flushing who-knows-what out of the pipes.

But even the most crystal-clear water may contain pathogens, microbes and bacteria that are harmful to your health, according to Scott Kendzierski, director of environmental health services for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

That's why the health department offers two types of well water testing kits at its offices throughout Northwest Michigan. The bacteriological (coliform) kit, which tests for the presence of E.coli and other bacteria, is available for $18. The partial chemistry kit, which tests levels of fluoride, chloride, hardness, iron, sodium, sulfates, nitrites and nitrates, is $20. Samples can be dropped off during scheduled drop-off hours at health department offices in Bellaire, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs/Petoskey and Gaylord. Samples are then analyzed at the health department's Northern Michigan Regional Laboratory, and results are generally available within two to three days.

"This should be part of the seasonal routine for every private well owner," Kendzierski said.

He added that well water testing is especially important for anyone with infants or children, as unsafe water can contaminate infant formulas and can lead to illness among those who consume tap water. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recommends annual well water testing, and the best time to do it is in the spring, following a rainy period.

Kendzierski explained that the presence of a contaminant in your well water does not necessarily mean there's a problem. However, when levels exceed state or federal health standards or recommended action levels, you should take steps to correct the situation. In most cases, the plan will call for identifying the source of contamination, having the well chlorinated, making well construction improvements or adding a water filtration/purification system.

For additional information about well water testing, visit www.nwhealth.org or call the health department at (800) 432-4121.

We're going nuts about healthy living

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

We've reached a point in our lives where obsessive compulsive behavior and thoughts about end of life make an interesting mix.

As we age, our thoughts sometimes wander into what waits for us when we slip the surly bonds of earthly life.' Awakening at all hours when our bones and muscles ache terribly, we begin to look around for a flashlight as bright as a miners helmet to guide us towards that tunnel of peace. With my sense of direction, I'd still need a flagman waving me in so I won't head south. A flagman is just my fancy word for guardian angel.

As we gracefully glide into maturity we forgo noise and look for peaceful surroundings such as walks along the beach, small gathering of friends, reading a favorite book in a cozy setting or quietly feeling the warmth by reliving memories of good times passed.

As you slip into this soft and cuddly mood, let's switch gears to adding obsessive compulsive behaviors to the mix. My husband and I both have obsessive tendencies and want to live life as healthy as can be until the well-lit landing strip is evident.

We follow a very healthy routine that only someone who has obsessive tendencies can relish.

We desired the essence of lavender and eucalyptus with their healing properties, but decided to skip the quick fix of Febreze and go natural with aromatherapy. No, not essential oils sitting around in pretty containers. We already had to call poison control when one grandson decided it was something he could chug. Our search brought us to plug-ins promising health to those who sniff. Well, the smell made me feel sick to my stomach so we are back to fresh flowers and simmering herbs on the stove.

And then there are the benefits of coconut oil. After ordering five books on the topic, we are over-educated about this nut that I now know is considered a fruit. Yes, proven to lower cholesterol but we have found it useful in the kitchen and in the bathroom, oh what the heck and polishing furniture too. There's an old saying that says, "If you can't eat it than you shouldn't be cleaning with it." I can't remember where I read that. It wasn't The Farmer's Almanac. Maybe it was Burma Shave.'

In the grocery aisle you can find coconut oil near the olive, vegetable and sunflower oils. In case you were wondering how we use it I'll tell you. If you're not, just skip to the end. So, you scoop out some of the coconut and place it in a jar. Ours sits in the medicine cabinet or what I we refer to as our health cabinet. While showering the jar sits in the sink with warm water.

After a shower a fingertip of oil goes a long way and has now replaced for us the following items: deodorant, preshave, aftershave, body lotion, face lotion and make up remover. In the kitchen it replaces olive oil for cooking and I just finished rubbing some into to old wooden cutting board to bring back some color.

Yes, we are two individuals living together under the same roof tripping into each other daily as we race to clean, fix, straighten and now be healthier. We've added something new that promises to clear the air — a new vacuum designed to eliminate pet hair. Only individuals like us would fight over who gets to use it. It could be worse. At least we live in a home that has become spa meets health food store, but if I do find my husband offering yoga classes in the living room I'll draw the line or at least vacuum it.

Petunia program needs your help

Editor,

Here we are again, rising out of a long and dismal patch of winter/spring to look forward to the beautiful petunia display that exemplifies the inevitable return of summer, and all the glory that goes with it. The board of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is tireless in their efforts to keep this project going given the many weather, time, and economic constraints put on them. One of the greatest assets of these amazing people is their ability to reach out to the community, even if it's in simple conversation, to remind everyone that it takes a community to find little ways to brighten the dismal days that come and go. We believe the petunias are one little way that we do this in Charlevoix, and yet we can never know the extent of the positive impact this display provides to the individuals who are fortunate enough to take in the marvelous scene.

The economic challenge of raising enough funds to manage the expense of the project, along with the challenge of keeping costs down, with efficiency that doesn't compromise quality, always taxes the board. It is inspirational to see this board at work, the creative ideas that come to light are amazing. But even as we see expenses minimized, we also see donations at a low as well. Each year we come forward in a plea to our community to give with your time, your donations, and your enthusiasm. It is hard not to be discouraged by the challenges we face, but we are always reminded at this time of year that our community comes through for its petunias.

We are proud and pleased to recognize the supportive endeavor that one of our great businesses is doing in its effort to provide support. Esperance is hosting a weekly wine tasting event every Saturday now until planting day, where half of the registration proceeds will go to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful to support Operation Petunia. At a minimum price of only $10 per person, that's $5 of each registration that goes to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful! We think the generous donation exemplifies their belief in the value of our project. The tasting takes about an hour and you may reserve tables from noon until 4 p.m. at (231) 237-9300. Esperance is located at 12853 US 31, that's just north of town.

We know that the members and visitors of this community also believe in our project. Please donate to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. If you are a social media fan, we are now on Facebook and you can see firsthand what the display means to so many people. We welcome your own stories of what it means to you.

Planting Day is quickly approaching on May 23. So, please join us in making it a community success. Donations can be mailed to KCB at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI.

Sincerely,
Vikki Seger
Secretary, Keep
Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc.

Your vote important in recall election

Editor:

This letter is in support of your current Charlevoix City Council. Many positive efforts for Charlevoix have taken place in the last several years. There is no need to list them, just look around. This council has earned and deserves your support. The recall election, scheduled for May 7, is not fully understood by many. It is not about a fireplace. It is about the future of Charlevoix. Staying away from the polls IS NOT a show of support for your council member. You must go to the polls and cast your vote for the person you previously elected to keep Charlevoix moving forward. Please do what you know is best for your town and vote to retain your present council representatives.

Thank you,
Kirby Dipert

Council member speaks out on upcoming election

Editor:

On May 7, Charlevoix voters will be asked to make a decision as to who will best represent them on city council. This recall election has come about because a group circulated petitions attempting to recall three particular Council members based on an alleged violation of the Open Meetings Act. However, this "alleged violation" according to the city attorneys and the city clerk, did not occur. This recall election is not about the Open Meetings Act. Rather, it is about the downtown fireplace project in East Park. The circulated petitions never mentioned the fireplace. Now, signs around our city would have you believe all our parks are in grave danger. Again, this is not the truth.

This action is not about the Open Meetings Act. It is not about the fireplace. It is an effort to bully city council into submission. It is being made by a group of people who are unhappy about a business decision made by city council which was within (the council's) power to make.

These people continue to say that council is not listening, but nothing could be further from the truth. The people spoke, and council halted construction on the fireplace. Architects Mark Buday and Richard Hitz have donated their professional time to evolve this project into a piece that will blend beautifully with the already existing park structures, with limited obstruction to the view. This smaller, more fuel efficient plan is proceeding to the design stage. After that, council will be presented with options regarding the final sculptural features which will then be reviewed for safety. The fuel costs will not be paid with taxpayer dollars, but through private donations. I assure you, the city council has have been listening to the people.

I wish to remain open to the opportunity that the fireplace could be a great project for Charlevoix. It may bring more interest in our downtown. Sitting on our laurels will not help attract new businesses to town or young people to live here something we continually work toward. I believe Charlevoix is a great place to live year round and for people to raise their families.

I have always done my best to make decisions in the best interest of the city and its future.

Please do not forget to vote on May 7. Every vote will count.

Sincerely,
Dennis Kusina
1st Ward Charlevoix
City Council member

Council is listening on fireplace issue

Editor:

One of my concerns surrounding the pending the Charlevoix City Council recall election is the truthfulness of the language used on the petitions circulated to prompt the recall. The petitions all made references to the city council having violated the Open Meetings Act, yet the city clerk and the city attorney have said on several occasions that no such violation took place. Although in late December the governor signed a law requiring that recall petitions must be reviewed for both clarity and truthfulness, these petitions were filed before the new law went into effect and do not have to pass the truthfulness test.

With dwindling assessed values and people being forced to move for job opportunities, this Council has done a great job of still balancing the city budget. They have been very diligent and cohesive in doing so. When they disagree, they do so respectfully. Recalls are for elected officials doing something illegal, unethical or immoral. Recalls are not supposed to be used because the official did not vote on one issue to your liking. That's what elections are for and there will be one five months from now. This recall election will cost tax payers more than $3,000.

The council is being accused of not listening regarding the fireplace and yet they stopped construction for nine months to take another look, even though there were three meetings originally and it was noticed in the paper. Ultimately some did not like the height. Richard Hitz via the appointed steering committee redesigned the entire project taking the height from 20 feet to three feet. However, there is a small group that wants nothing to do with compromise. They are the vocal minority and are the same two or three dozen negative people at every council meeting. There are nearly 3,000 community members not present who either approve or don't care one way or the other about the fireplace. Many of the petitioners were against the marina, fountain and park and now have the audacity to have yard signs saying, "Protect Our Parks."

I urge you to vote for Kusina, Picha and Vollmer in the recall election and then in November we can have an honest election for the candidate of your choice.

Your vote must be cast May 7 to keep your current councilperson.

John Winn

Mayor endorses incumbents in recall election

Editor

On May 7, 2013, City of Charlevoix residents will vote in a recall election that has the potential to substantially change the direction of the city. Supporters of the recall election cite the controversial fireplace proposal in East Park as the main reason for the recall election. City residents should strongly consider whether a recall election is appropriate for such an issue.

It is important to note that after numerous public meetings where strong opposition was voiced, the city council voted to halt the project and work on a new design that's more in scale with East Park.

Because of the community's feedback and through many months of public meetings, we now have a much better fireplace design that addresses the main critical points of the project. Specifically, the new design addresses the following: It fully respects and protects Round Lake views with a substantially reduced height; it is self-funded using no tax dollars to pay for natural gas consumption; it will be safe to operate; and be another great East Park attraction for our downtown area. The new design plans can be viewed at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

The current city council has a great track-record over the last five to six years investing millions of dollars into our community's infrastructure, increasing general fund reserves during the Great Recession while retaining valuable and dedicated full-time city employees. We have accomplished all this without a tax increase.

Overseeing a $15 million organization is much more than the single issue of a fireplace. I respectfully ask for your endorsement in voting for the current city council incumbents Jill Picha, Dennis Kusina and Bryan Vollmer.

Thanks to council for job well done

Editor:

Thanks to the Charlevoix City Council for listening to the people of the community in regard to the recent "fireplace" issue. The new design with the benches will be a beautiful addition to our park and enjoyed by many, not only locals, but our tourists as well! It will be a nice complement to East Park, situated between the trout pond and the band shelter. Thank you anonymous donor for your generous gift!

We would also like to take this opportunity to again thank the city council, planning commission, city manager, John Winn, Mark Buday, Peter Pollack (deceased) and whoever else was instrumental in planning, designing, obtaining monetary funds and constructing our new marina and parks as they are today. Our parks have not only been saved, but are probably some of the most beautiful in the State. We should look at the "big picture of accomplishments" over the last 10 years and be very proud of "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Let's support our current council members for a job well done.

Asian Fusion opens in downtown Charlevoix

ANNE KELLY
Courier staff writer

ANNE KELLY/CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Asian Fusion owners Gary Thao and his wife, Kaoyi Yang stand in the kitchen of their newly-opened restaurant in downtown Charlevoix.

Asian Fusion is a family run business recently making its debut in downtown Charlevoix. After only a few weeks of operation, owners Gary Thao and his wife, Kaoyi Yang, are already attracting customers who are pleased to have a Chinese-Thai eatery on Bridge Street.

"We are happy to be in such a beautiful location and to serve this community," Thao said. "I have been in the restaurant business since high school and decided to give it a shot here." Thao, originally from California and Minnesota, has worked previously as a prep cook and chef at several area locations: Asian Fusion in Bellaire, the former Golden Chopsticks in Traverse City and Chang Cuisine in Harbor Springs.

The family has another Asian Fusion restaurant in Bellaire, where the couple resides with their three children, Tameriak, 8, Gin, 7, and Evan, 6. Grandparents watch the children, while other relatives staff both venues as prep cooks and servers. Thao and Yang travel the 30-45 minutes to Charlevoix and back, Monday through Saturday. They are hoping to relocate in Charlevoix soon to make their lives easier as the summer season approaches.

Diners will find a variety of Asian dishes, served in a casual atmosphere at the restaurant. Both Chinese and Thai cuisine are on the menu, with Thai being the specialty. Thao and Yang bring a culinary heritage of Thailand/Laos to their wok, and are happy to share their family's recipes by serving delicious entrees made with fresh ingredients.

Two fortune cookies recently cracked open at the restaurant seem to be on track to coming true.

One fortune read: "You will make changes before settling satisfactorily."

Asian Fusion is already anticipating expanding hours to include Sunday by July and the owners are considering adding sushi to the menu.

The other fortune promised: "You will make a fortune with your friends."

Thao and Yang said they hope to make many friends in Charlevoix.

"We hope that everyone who comes will be happy and have a great experience," Yang said.

Asian Fusion Thai and Chinese Cuisine is located at 311 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix. The restaurant's phone number is (231) 237-9575. Fall, winter and spring hours are 11:30 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 11:30 a.m.-9 p.m. Friday, 3 p.m.-9 p.m. Saturday and closed Sunday. Summer hours will be 11:30 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 3-9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Stanley 'Stan' Warner, 62

Stanley "Stan" Warner, age 62, of Spring Lake, passed away Friday, April 26, 2013, at Spectrum Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids. He was born Jan. 11, 1951, in Charlevoix to Harley Charles and Marjorie Jean (Smith) Warner. He married the former Susan Diane Rowsey on Nov. 2, 1984.

Stan had been a Spring Lake resident for the last 20 years and was a medical technologist at North Ottawa Community Hospital. He earned his bachelor's degree at Michigan State University and his master's degree at the University of South Florida. Stan loved deer hunting and fishing. He was an avid MSU fan and loved all sports. He also enjoyed working on cars and anything else that was broken to make it "fixed like new."

He is lovingly remembered by his wife, Susan Warner; two daughters, Christine Warner of Grand Rapids and Kimberly (fiancé Aaron Stinson) Warner of Spring Lake; his mother, Marjorie Warner of Charlevoix; father-in-law, John (Janice) Rowsey of Ashland, Ohio; a nephew, Nicholas Warner of Grand Rapids; and his brother, Bob Warner of Myrtle Beach, S.C. He was preceded in death by his father, Harley Warner; a sister, Dawn LaJoie; and brother, Paxton Warner.

The service for Stan will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, May 3, at Spring Lake Wesleyan Church with the Rev. Peter Yoshoms officiating. Visitation took place at 4-7 p.m. Thursday, May 2 at VanZantwick Bartels Kammeraad Funeral Home in Spring Lake. Interment will be in the Barnard Cemetery in Charlevoix. Memorials to the Renucci Hospitality House and Muskegon Rescue Mission are appreciated. Share memories with the family at their online guest book at www.vbkfuneralhome.com.

The family is being served by VanZantwick Bartels Kammeraad Funeral Home of Spring Lake.

Workshop series aims to nourish minds, support Manna food bank

Along with providing food for thought, a monthly workshop series at Charlevoix's Castle Farms aims to help secure food for Northern Michigan people in need.

Anora O'Connor, general manager of the event venue/historical attraction along M-66, was looking for a way to fulfill an element of its mission statement — providing service by giving back to the local community. When input was provided by the castle's five event coordinators, the idea for a monthly workshop series emerged, with a fund-raising component to benefit The Manna Food Project.

Manna, based in Harbor Springs, is a nonprofit corporation with a food bank that supplies pantries in Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties.

The first installment in the workshop series, Bella e Dolce's "One Sweet Cookie" presentation, took place in March. In April, Merrymarkers visited the castle and gave a presentation focusing on 'The Impact of Weddings and events in Northern Michigan.'

The next workshop, "Picture Perfect," will be presented by Center of Attention Photography at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, May 16, at the castle. Center of Attention will share tips of the trade and details on how to capture the perfect photo shot.

The castle's own Johanna Alexander is scheduled to give a presentation, "Trash to Treasure," as part of the series at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, June 13. It will focus on ways to get creative with common household items.

Admission to each workshop is $5 per person, or $3 with a donation of canned food. All proceeds benefit The Manna Food Project.

Future workshop topics include gardening, quilting, music and food. All workshops are presented by vendors familiar with the castle and designed to be of specific interest to the community.

For more information on the workshop series, contact Larissa Ulrich at Castle Farms, (231) 237-0884, extension 236.

Historical society presents business, industry program

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a fully-illustrated program on "The History of Business and Industry in Charlevoix" at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 7, at the Depot, Depot Beach. The program will be presented by Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles.

Ever since millions of tons of Lake Michigan fish, called "finny gold," brought in the first settlers to Pine River, later Charlevoix, in the 1850s, a number of important businesses and industries followed — ice cutting, lumbering, tourism and resorts, a seed company, a sugar beet plant, then a cement plant after the turn of the century, followed by Loeb Farms, a huge employer, where testing of farm equipment took place for Sears Roebuck. So important did Charlevoix become to the economic well being of the entire Lake Charlevoix basin that the Charlevoix Sentinel claimed in 1897 that the town's two channels accommodated more maritime tonnage than any other port on this side of Lake Michigan outside Chicago.

In the 1950s it became the site of Michigan's first, and the nation's fifth, nuclear power plant, Big Rock Point. Charlevoix gained a national prominence for both the resort and other industries far beyond its size.

This commercial history will be explored with scores of classic photos from the Charlevoix Historical Society's archives.

There will be no admission fee for the event, but donations in support of the society are appreciated. Light refreshments will be served. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Prior to the program, a reception will take place at 6:30 p.m. to honor retiring Harsha House co-director Steve Goslee.

GLE People Fund grant applications due by June 1

The Great Lakes Energy People Fund is accepting grant applications from non-profit organizations throughout its local service area. The upcoming grant application deadline is June 1.

The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric cooperative to round up their bill each month to the next dollar. Since 1999 more than $2.3 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches from Kalamazoo to the Mackinac Straits.

Non-profit organizations can read program details and request a grant application online at www.gtlakes.com or by calling Great Lakes Energy at (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313. Non-profit organizations that serve communities located in the Great Lakes Energy service area are eligible to apply.

Organizations that are unable to apply by June 1 will have another opportunity to apply later this year.

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

After the Hotel Charlevoix on Bridge Street burned in early June of 1935, the city fathers saw the view through to Round Lake and realized the area would be perfect for a magnificent park that ideally would stretch all the way from the channel south to Antrim Street. But many property owners refused to sell, so the city bought up what it could and began the transformation in 1937. Before this happened, just after the fire, the hotel wreckage was cleared away and a fort/stockade went up on its grounds plus a few more lots to the north that had already been vacated. For a few summertime weeks the complex became a tourist attraction. The "Charlevoix County Homecoming and State Centennial" was held here from July 3 through July 6, the name confusing to those who regarded 1837 as the real Michigan founding date. A "pageantorium field" inside held productions put on by an Ohio company featuring such episodes as "The Dawn of Creation," "Coming of Father Charlevoix," "Dance of the Wilderness," and the grand finale, "a mammoth spectacle symbolizing the spirit and growth of America . . . where people . . . are united in a Union, one and inseparable." The first Venetian queen, Marge Carey, was crowned here. The pageant days were climaxed, like now on Saturday, by boxing and wrestling matches, a balloon ascension, an ox roast, and the first Venetian Boat Parade and Fireworks.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." her peers as well.

"Sometimes it's hard to compromise, but it shows a different side of everyone. You get to see their caring side," Kori said.

Christina Eanes and Kroondyk said the science class will be studying the recycling process and how different materials biodegrade.

The language arts and social studies classes will use information and data from the math and science classes to take their service learning one step further into the community: they will present the information to Charlevoix City Council during its regular session on May 20.

The language arts class will write persuasive essays to make recommendations to city council about how to keep Charlevoix as clean as possible, said Eanes. The social studies class will also make presentations to the city council about the classes' findings.

Eanes and Kori both said they hoped the project would result in long-term results for Charlevoix.

"It wasn't just about picking up trash to be good to the Earth, it's about what others can do to make a difference," said Kori. "We're supposed to be 'Charlevoix the Beautiful.'"

NWA recycling event

Northwest Academy's service learning project incorporated many activities. Not only did students perform an Earth-Day clean-up, they also took a tour of the recycling station, Emmet County Drop-off Center. Students also heard recycling presentations from Michelle Rick-Biddick, Charlevoix County Recycling Committee member.

But to address the three "Rs" of recycling — reduce, reuse and recycle — the school will host a yard sale, said third and fourth grade teacher Trista Teuscher.

The yard sale will take place rain or shine from 1-6 p.m. on Friday, May 3, and 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, May 4 at Northwest Academy, 115 W. Hurlbut St. in Charlevoix.

guage, but noted that the language passed the approval of the local election commission.

Asked what cause they would champion if elected — or retained — on the council, both Porter and Campbell said their priority would be to restore confidence among the community of the council. The other five candidates said looking for ways to stimulate business, high-tech businesses in particular, to make the community attractive to young people would be a priority.

Answering a question about whether private donations to erect structures on city property should be allowed without a vote of the people, there was a wider array of answers.

Campbell appeared to not hear or understand the question correctly and his answer had to do with allowing businesses to operate on public property. Both Porter and Gibson said it (allowing privately funded structures on city property) should not be allowed. Gibson took it a step further saying she thinks it may be illegal.

Halverson said allowing such things can be a "slippery slope" and the practice should be closely regulated.

Picha, Vollmer and Kusina said the practice is acceptable if done correctly. Vollmer and Kusina pointed to a new donation acceptance policy that the council recently approved as evidence that matters such as the fireplace will be more closely scrutinized in the future.

The challengers were asked what they would do to keep the public better informed.

Gibson said she thinks the council needs to have more public hearings. Halverson said the council needs to focus on working with the people not imposing things "on them." Porter said he'd seek to have the local cable company broadcast meetings, and that meeting minutes should be posted sooner. Campbell said when controversial issues come up council members should go out into the neighborhoods and talk to people.

Asked about their opinion on tax abatements for businesses, in varying degrees, most of the candidates said the abatements can be useful under the right circumstances and with the right company. Gibson said she thinks the abatements are generally a "revenue leak" and too many are given out. She said she would support abatements for new business, but is concerned that no follow-up is done to confirm that businesses given abatements are hiring the workers they promise to hire when they apply for the abatements.

The candidates were also asked to discuss the balance between the council's responsibility to reach out to the community to seek its input versus the community's responsibility to seek information. (The candidates took the question in the context of the fireplace debate).

Generally the challengers said that the council needs to go out of its way to seek community input on issues that are likely to be controversial, while the incumbents said they feel the council and city staff generally do a good job of making information about the council's activities readily available. The incumbents added at some point it's up to the public to stay informed about what is going on in their city government.

RECALL

meetings brought in packed houses of city residents who were upset with the fireplace project. Hearing the chorus of complaints, at its Sept. 4 meeting, the council voted to put the project on hold temporarily and scheduled a special meeting for Sept. 12 to discuss the matter further. At the special meeting Winn told the council that the donor was willing to consider revising the plan for the fireplace and extend his construction deadline to the spring so that the city could take advantage of an offer from Mark Buday, a consultant who worked on the East Park project, to help lead a process that might find a design and/or location for the fireplace that might be more agreeable to more people. The council voted to take Buday (and later fellow consultant Mark Hitz) and the donor up on the offer.

The debate over the fireplace figured largely in the run-up to the November city council and mayoral election. However the two council members who were challenged in the election, Greg Stevens and Shane Cole and mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. all retained their respective seats.

Around the same time, opponents of the fireplace project began the process of initiating recall proceedings against the three other council members who were not exempt from recall under state law — Jill Picha, Dennis Kusina and Bryan Vollmer.

The petitions that were approved, circulated and ultimately returned with sufficient signatures to prompt the recall election for all three council members, all claimed that the council violated the state's Open Meetings Act when it met during the special meeting on Aug. 9 at which the fireplace proposal was approved. Both the city clerk and city attorney denied any such violation.

Adding another wrinkle to the situation was a change in the state's recall election law that the governor signed late in December that changed the nature of recall elections. Previously recall ballots contained language about why the petition sponsors believed the elected official should be removed from office, a rebuttal statement from the official and then asked voters if the official should be recalled. Under the new law, recall elections now look identical to standard end-of-term elections where ballots simply ask voters to choose between candidates.

As dictated by state law, polls for the Charlevoix City Council recall election will be open from 7 a.m.-8 p.m. on Tuesday, May 7 at Charlevoix City Hall.

"People ask me how I first knew that my dad had an abdominal aortic aneurysm. And I know it sounds harsh — but I want everyone to get the message — I first knew that my dad had triple-A when he was dead. If we had known in time for the triple-A to be repaired, my father could have had so much more time with us. Today a quick and painless ultrasound can detect triple-A."

The current Charlevoix City Council has worked well together to accomplish the following:

- General Fund Reserve Balance is at an all-time high w/over $1 million or 31% of the total budget.
- No mill levy increase. Current mill levy is at a low 12.0093
- Invested over $4 million in street improvement projects. Utilizing long-term planning by annually adopting a 10-year Capital Improvement Plan. Projects have been completed on time and under budget with minimal impact to community from Memorial Day to Labor Day.
- Created more free parking for residents and visitors to our community by removing parking meters in off-street lots.
- Passed tax abatement for local industry, resulting in creation of 6-10 new jobs.
- Currently working with Chamber of Commerce, Downtown Development Assoc., CVB, Charlevoix Castle Farms, Charlevoix Public Schools, Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and Charlevoix Township to try and bring quality businesses to our area. Working together at monthly meetings to promote Charlevoix as a destination throughout the country.

SPORTS

Rayder offense comes alive in sweep of Red Devils

Charlevoix's offense came to life Tuesday in a Lake Michigan Conference sweep over East Jordan.

The Rayders, 7-1 overall, 4-0 league, collected 12 hits in the opening game followed by seven more in the nightcap as they tupped East Jordan, 11-4, 9-2.

"We used a big inning in both games to break them open," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "In the fourth inning of game one we had six guys straight reach base. The strength of our team is that we're solid one through nine and that's what it takes to get those big innings."

In the opener, Tommy Zipp had three hits including a double, while Shane Sutherlande added two doubles and two stolen bases. Noah Certa, Tag McCreadie and Austin Putman all doubled, while Nate Moon had two hits. Will Telgenhof and JJ Bottomley singled.

Sutherland was the winning pitcher as he struck out three, walked four and allowed four runs on four hits over six innings.

For East Jordan in game one, Tim Schut hit a two-run home run in the first inning and a solo homer in the third. Zach Shepard homered and singled, while Matt Bolser singled. Bolser took the pitching loss going five innings.

In game two, Sutherland hit a two-run home run and finished with two hits, while Moon added a pair of doubles. Hunter Cox, McCreadie, Will Telgenhof and Zipp all added a hit apiece

Zipp was the winning pitcher as he struck out eight, walked one and allowed two runs on five hits over six innings.

"Nate Moon, Shane Sutherland and Tommy Zipp were dominant at the plate from out 2-3-4 spots in the order," Allen Telgenhof said. "They were 12 for 18 on the day. Sutherland hit a big home run for us in game two, and Shane and Tommy were solid on the hill. "It was another good team effort."

For the Red Devils in game two, Dustin Hejka, Shepard, Bolser, Noah Raymond and Oscar Scheier all singled.

Hejka took the pitching loss with Raymond coming on in relief.

"Coach Telgenhof really has his squad hitting well and that was the key to the games," East Jordan coach Tom Reid said. "Our boys played a couple of decent games, but Charlevoix's bats just keep coming at you."

East Jordan is now 2-7 overall, 1-6 league.

On Friday, the Rayders split a non-conference double-header with Suttons Bay.

Nate Moon homered and Noah Certa added a pair of doubles as Charlevoix topped Suttons Bay, 11-6.

The Norsemen rebounded to take the second game, 5-0.

The Rayders collected 10 hits in the opening game win highlighted by Moon's homer — which was just the fifth home run hit out of the Charlevoix High School field in 11 years.

Also for Charlevoix in game one, Moon finished with two hits, while Shane Sutherland had two hits and three stolen bases and JJ Bottomley added two hits including a double. Tag McCreadie and Hunter Cox each added a hit apiece.

Bottomley was the winning pitcher as he worked five innings and struck out five. Cox pitched an inning of scoreless relief.

"Game one was a complete team win," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We hit well, fielded well and JJ Bottomley threw strikes and induced a lot of ground balls. We scored just about every way possible, on hits, errors, a suicide squeeze and a long home run.

"Nate's homer was the longest homer I've seen from the third base coaching box in 11 years."

In game two — which was shortened to four innings because of darkness — Moon, Sutherland and Will Telgenhof all had a hit apiece, while KeNen Borths took the pitching loss as he struck out four in four innings pitched. Will Telgenhof threw out three runners attempting to steal.

"In game two, we just ran into a hot pitcher in Jake Kiessel," Allen Telgenhof said.

Rayder bats hot in romps over Red Devils, Harbor Light

EAST JORDAN — Katie Hybl and Yogi Hang each threw eight strikeout complete game performances for the Charlevoix softball team as the Rayders picked up two Lake Michigan Conference wins over East Jordan, 12-2, 11-3 on Tuesday.

Hybl pitched game one of the meeting, going five innings, allowing three hits and three walks. Hang stepped up to the mound for game two, allowing four hits and two walks.

At the plate in game one for Charlevoix, Hybl, Gabb Gray, Skyler Herriman and Rachel Schull all had two hits each. Hang brought in a home run and a triple in the game, while Kaitlin Louiska had three singles.

For East Jordan, 0-6 overall, 0-6 league, Val Peters had a pair of singles, while Lindsey Graham, Tori Goodrich, Allie Sutton and Mckenna Steltzner all singled. Goodrich took the pitching loss as she walked two, struck out two and gave up 13 hits.

"I've just been extremely pleased with our hitting and pitching in the early going with all the gym time that we had," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said. "It's been nice to have a team that's able to get three or four runs an inning."

In game two, Hybl went 4-for-4 at the plate with two doubles, while Herriman drove in two home runs.

Kelsey Pischner tripled and Hang doubled, as did Gray. Jennifer Archey and Schull both singled.

For East Jordan, Peters doubled and singled, while Goodrich had two singles, Sutton doubled and Kayly Zimmer and Outman singled.

Outman took the pitching loss as she struck out three, walked two and allowed nine hits. Goodrich pitched in relief and walked two and scattered five hits.

"Charlevoix just out-hit us today," East Jordan coach Meg Kitson said. "Their girls looked really tough at the plate. We have to get more confident at the plate and get more aggressive. We can still turn this season around."

On Monday the Rayders defeated Harbor Light 10-3 in a non-league contest on the Rayders' very soggy home field.

Charelvoix is 6-1 overall, 3-1 league. The Rayders next play in Rudyard on Thursday, May 2.

For Charlevoix, freshman Jake Seger had two singles and scored twice in game one, and Andrew Michaud added a triple. Devin Largent struck out six and gave up four hits

In game two, Largent doubled and scored and Adam Michaud struck out eight

Weather plagues Little League in season prep

The calendar says spring, but, until this week the weather has been telling a different story.

From freezing temperatures to snow covered baseball fields, spring sports teams have really felt the impact and the Charlevoix Little League Program has had its share of struggles with this Michigan spring as well.

"Trying to schedule indoor practices for almost 200 kids is pretty challenging. Gym time is very limited when the weather turns bad. The schools have been very generous with their facilties. We really appreciate how helpful the athletic director has been getting us indoors to practice," Charlevoix Little League vice president Jim Lentz said.

Lentz noted that typically these teams would be practicing on week nights, but because of limited availability, practices have taken place on Saturdays and Sundays.

"We are making it work. We have several teams sharing the gym at one time to fit all of the practices in, but the kids are making good progress" coach Scott Nickel said.

The teams were able to practice outside this week for the first time and they are eagerly anticipating Opening Weekend May 4-5 when twelve Major League Baseball alumni will come to Charlevoix for a free clinic, reception, and golf outing fundraiser.

The Opening Day activities were originally scheduled to take place at the newly constructed Shanahan Baseball Field, but because of the very cold spring, the field could be damaged if it was played on. The activities have been moved to the Little League Field on Carpenter Street.

The twice-rescheduled annual field cleanup day took place Saturday, April 27.

Among the work completed was fresh diamond dust was hauled in, a new backstop was installed, the field was thatched and mowed, and the base paths were cut in. Along with the field work, the dugouts were cleaned out, the grounds were raked, and the concession stand was prepped for a busy season

In a matter of hours the field came to life and looks baseball ready.

Corey Ostrum of Viridis Living and Little League Grounds Committee Member led the project. "The amount of work that was accomplished completely exceeded my expectations. We appreciate the great bunch of parents, kids, and coaches who gave their time and made the day great," Ostrum said

The dugouts will receive a fresh coat of paint courtesy of Jeff Arnold Painting and Ace Hardware this week and will be ready to go for opening day.

The opening weekend event will kick off with a free baseball/softball clinic taught by 12 former Big Leaugers from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, May 4. The free clinic will be for children ages 7-14 and is limited to the first 250 children. Pre-registration is available online at charlevoixlittleleague.com or mlbpaa.mlb.com.

Immediately following, clinic participants will be treated to a free lunch and autograph session with the former pros.

After lunch, Charlevoix Little League will host their Opening Day ceremonies

The day will conclude with an evening reception and silent auction fundraiser with the former Major Leaguers' benefiting Charlevoix Little League at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. The silent auction will include several pieces of Major League Baseball memorabilia, as well as items from local businesses. Tickets for the evening reception are $30 and are available from any Little League board member and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlavoix's Carolena Elowsky (6) keeps tha ball away from a Kalkaska player during tha Rayders' win over the Blazers at homa on Monday.

Rayders roll past Red Devils, Blazers, fall to Harbor Rams

It was an up-and-down-and-back-up-again week for the Charlevoix Rayder girls soccer team as it rolled past East Jordan, fell in a tough game against perennial rival Harbor Spring and then rolled past Kalkaska.

On Monday, senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer scored a pair of goals as the Rayders rolled past Kalkaska, 8-0 in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

With the win, the Rayders improved to 7-3 overall, 5-2 league.

Also for the Rayders, junior forward Kaitlin Hinkley, junior forward Kaite Kitely, freshman forward Kelsey Engstrom, freshman forward Devon Bottomley, senior midfielder Anna Way and freshman forward Sophie Herboldsheimer all added a goal.

"Sophie Herholdsheimer's goal was a left footed rocket to the back of the far post," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "It was her first goal of her high school career and was unassisted."

Adding assists was Anna Way with three, while sophomore midfielder Elizabeth Way, Sophie Herboldsheimer and sophomore forward Grace Whitley had an assist apiece.

Sophomore goalkeeper Gloria Greene and senior Bailee Stevens shared the shutout in goal. Greene had the lone save as the Rayders outshot the Blazers, 25-1.

On Friday Harbor Springs senior Rhi Cullip scored three first half goals and that is all the Rams would need under the lights at Ottawa Stadium.

Cullip's first half scoring lifted the Rams to a 3-1 victory over Charlevoix in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

With the win, the Rams improved to 6-1 overall, 4-0 league, while Charlevoix fell to 6-3 overall, 4-2 league.

Cullip opened the scoring with her first goal at the 21 minute mark off a breakaway down the left side of the field.

Cullip would score the next two goals within a minute and and half of each other, starting at the four minute, 30 second mark of the first half.

"We had some defensive breakdowns," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "Against a quality team like Harbor Springs and a player like Rhi Cullip we just can't allow that to happen."

The Radyers would get on the board in the second half, on a goal scored by freshman midfielder Kylee Scholten at the 15 minute mark. Sophomore Olivia Storm had the assist.

Senior goalkeeper Bailee Stevens and sophomore Gloria Greene split the goalkeeping duties. Stevens had four saves and Greene added three.

"We felt we matched up well against Harbor Springs," Scholten said. "We saw speed on Harbor's front line that we haven't seen so far this season and they made us pay. I was proud that the girls were able to shut them out the second half and it was good to get on the board."

On Thursday, April 25, five different Charlevoix players scored a goal as the Rayders rolled past East Jordan, 5-0, in a Lake Michigan Conference match. The Rayders led 1-0 at halftime before adding four more goals in the second half to cruise to the win.

"East Jordan played a very strong game," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We had trouble distributing the ball to the outside early on. We picked up some intensity the second half and made better use of the field."

Scoring for the Rayders was freshman forward Kelsey Engstrom, senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer, senior midfielder Anna Way, junior forward Katie Kiteley and freshman forward Devon Bottomley. Bottomley's goal was the first of her high school career.

The Rayders collected 43 shots against the Red Devils.

Sophomore goalkeeper Gloria Greene and Bailee Stevens shared the shutout in goal. Greene finished with three saves and Stevens added four saves.

"We had a great first half with one mistake costing us a goal," East Jordan coach Kwin Morris said as the Red Devils trailed 1-0 at the half. "I was then plagued with injuries having to take out six of my starters and having only two of them return to the game.

"Charlevoix was a well coached team and they knew where to be and when," Morris added. "The passing and communication was amazing."

Charlevoix played host to Grayling Thursday, May 2 and then travels to Cheboygan on Friday, May 3.

TENNIS

Rayders defeat Boyne, TC Christian

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Madi Carey returns a shot during her No. 1 singles match against Boyna City's Claire Wallman on Tuesday.

The Charlevoix High School girls' tennis team improved to 2-1 overall, 1-1 league as they topped Boyne City, 6-2, Tuesday in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

"The energy was great with the girls and they were ready to have a good tennis day, rebounding from Monday's canceled rain-out with East Jordan," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

Singles results: 1-Claire Wellman (BC) defated Madi Carey, 3-6, 6-2 (10-8); 2-Lexie Barnes (C) def. Shelby Webster, 6-0, 6-0; 3-Kelsea Stevens (C) def. Carly Kruzel, 7-6 (8-6), 6-3; 4-Taylor Markgraf (C) def. Sam Orban, 6-4, 6-1. Doubles results: 1-Cassidy Peebles-Karley Pearsall (C) def. Cassidy Moody-Alie Culver, 6-0, 6-0; 2-Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff (C) def. Alyssa Wonski-Abi Hofweber, 6-0, 6-0; 3-Carly Scholey- Cassie McCranney (C) def. Carina Lawrence-Liz O'Donnell, 6-2, 6-3; 5-Bri Burnell-Sydney Fisher (BC) def. Hannah Ennis-Rachel Thompson, 6-1, 6-2.

On Thursday, April 25, the Rayders topped Traverse City Christian non-league match.

"All the girls improved their games from last week's match, reducing errors and playing better strategy in their matches," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

Singles results: 1-Madi Carey (C) def. Kelci Mohrmann via forfeit; 2-Lexi Barnes (C) def. Rylee Price, 6-0, 6-1; 3-Kelsea Stevens (C) def. Meg O'Connor, 6-2, 6-3; 4-Emily Peterson (TCC) def. Taylor Markgraf, 3-6, 6-4 (10-8).

Doubles results: 1-Katy Ufer-Amanda Mannes (TCC) def. Cassidy Peebles-Karley Pearsall, 7-5, 7-6 (7-5); 2-Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff (C) def. Shannon Ufer-Laura Murray, 6-0, 6-1; 3-Carley Scholey-Cassie McCranney (C) def. Katie Fink-Kyra Tosiello, 6-1, 7-5; 4-Jen Pustcyehuk- Margaret Pustcyehuk (TCC) def. Ellie Ackerman- Rachel Thompson, 6-0, 6-0.

"Lexie Barnes played a solid match and moved the ball around on the court," Randall said.

"She is a thoughtful player and really tries to play on her opponent's weakness. Kelsea Stevens did a fine job against her opponent keeping the match under control."

Randall also lauded the efforts of Mallory Murray and Emily Roloff at No. 2 doubles.

"They are a strong doubles team and they are positive players and work at empowering each other on the court to make great plays," Randall said.

"Carley Scholey and Cassie McCranney played strong in the first set, the second set Katie Fink and Kyra Tosiello fought back hard testing our girls."

Randall also credited the strong work ethic including Taylor Markgraf and Cassidy Peebles and Karley Pearsall.

The Rayders had another good showing on Wednesday when they made-up a previously postponed non-conference match against the Petoskey junior varsity.

"Having the opportunity to play two matches in a row, or even in a week is helping the girls progress in each of their respective games, Randall said.

Wednesday's singles results include:

No.1, Madi Carey (C) def. Megan Makula 6-0, 6-1; No.2, Lexie Barnes (C) def. Alliyah Pontiac 6-0, 6-0; No. 3, Kelsea Stevens (C) def. Kaylyn Schiemann 6-1, 6-1; No. 4, Taylor Markgraf (C) def. Delaney Carlson 6-0, 6-0.

Doubles results include:

No. 1, Cassidy Peebles/Karley Pearsall (C) def. Megan George/Sydney Foster 6-0, 6-0; No. 2, Mallory Murray/Emily Roloff (C) defeated Kinsley Williams/Rachel Fedorka 6-0, 6-0; No. 3 Carly Scholey/Cassie McCraney (C) defeated Riley LaPrairie/Krista Spencer 6-3, 6-3; No. 4, Rachel Thompson/Hannah Ennis (C) defeated Kayleigh Edwards 6-2, 6-1

The Rayders' record now stands at 3-1 overall. Up next the team was slated to head to Elk Rapids Thursday and will host Harbor Springs on Friday.

GOLF

Rayders take fourth at invite

INDIAN RIVER — Harbor Springs' Bennett Langton shot a team-best 82 and finished fourth place overall as the Rams finished runner-up at the Chuck Palmer Invitational Friday at the Indian River Golf Club. Cheboygan won the 13-team tournament with a team score of 347, while Harbor Springs was second, 350, followed by Lincoln-Alcona, 360; and Charlevoix, 363. St. Ignace finished fifth with 367, followed by Boyne City, 386; Sault Ste. Marie, 396; Newberry, 419; Alanson-Pellston, 447; Harbor Light Christian, 462; Inland Lakes, 481; Rogers City, 486; and East Jordan, 497.

Andrew Purcell of Cheboygan was medalist as he shot 75, while Inland Lakes' Nick Aldrich and Alcona's Walker Kelly were tied for second with 81s. Langton was fourth with 82, while Alanson-Pellston's Connor Kintz was fifth, 83; and Boyne City's Bradley Fouchia was sixth, 84.

Finishing tied for seventh was Cheboygan's Brenden Waebler, Harbor's Stewart Bower and Charlevoix's Brady Rizzo with 86s.

Other Charlevoix scores were Logan Hess and Noah Jeakle, 92; Chandler Novotny, 93; Corbin Turkelson, 94; and Ryan Joy, 102.

Pool to host kids' triathalon May 25

As part of its ongoing 15-year anniversary celebration, the Charlevoix Area Community Pool will host a triathalon for children, dubbed iSwim, iBike, iRun - iTri from 7:30 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, May 25.

The event is designed for children in kindergarten through 12th grade and will offer three courses of varying skill levels.

The cost is $30 per athlete for those who register by 5 p.m. on May 10. For those who register after May 10, the cost will be $40 per person.

Organizers said the event is aimed at giving participating children a sense of pride when they participate and succeed in a multi-discipline sport.

Each participant will receive an official "iTri" 2013 T-shirt, sports bottle, swim cap, nylon drawstring bag, and medal of accomplishment.

For more information, call (231) 547-0982 or email itri@charlevoixpool.org. Or visit the organization's website at www.charlevoixpool.org to register.

Recreation department gears up for summer

With summer right around the corner, the Charlevoix Parks and Recreation Department has announced its 2013 summer recreation activities.

The men's slo-pitch softball informational meeting will take place at 6 p.m. on Thursday, May 9, at Charlevoix City Hall. All returning teams and new teams/individuals should attend the meeting. Anyone looking to start a team or join an existing team should contact the recreation department to sign up.

There has been much interest in forming women's and co-ed softball leagues. If there are enough teams interested, an informational meeting will take place at 7:15 p.m. on Thursday, May 9, also at city hall. Call the recreation department if you have a team that would be interested in forming.

T-ball will begin the third week of June. Registration forms are currently available on the City of Charlevoix website, and will be sent home through the schools.

Camp McSauba begins June 17. Registration is open and forms are available on the City of Charlevoix website. Forms will also be sent home through the schools.

For any questions please contact: Charlevoix Recreation Department at (231)547-3253 or email awilkin@cityofcharlevoix.org.

WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

NOTICE OF
MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALL

The Mortgage described below is in default: Mortgage made by Susan M. Barr-Stemen, as Trustee of Susan M. Barr Trust dated July 11, 1995, as Mortgagor, to Business Lenders, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, as Mortgagee, dated July 13, 2006 and recorded July 19, 2006 in Liber 756, Page 767, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was assigned by Business Lenders, LLC to TSKEE Enterprises, LLC, a Florida limited liability company, as Assignee, by virtue of an Assignment of Mortgage dated February 14, 2013 and recorded March 5, 2013 in Liber 1022, Page 498, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Assignment of Mortgage"). The legal description contained in the Assignment of Mortgage was corrected by an Affidavit of Scrivener's Error dated March 27, 2013 and recorded April 4, 2013 in Liber 1025, Page 533, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan. The balance owing on the Mortgage is $797,476.33 at the time of this Notice The Mortgage contains a power of sale and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt secured by the Mortgage, or any part of the Mortgage. Take notice that on June 7, 2013 at 11:00 a.m., local time, or any adjourned date thereafter, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at public vendue at the place of holding the Circuit Court within Charlevoix County. CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

June 3, 2013.
A Public hearing of the City of Charlevoix City Council will be held at the City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720, beginning 7:00PM.

PROJECT SUMMARY:
Wastewater Treatment Plant Improvements – The original WWTP was constructed in 1972. Construction of corrective facilities is necessary to meet the requirements of the new MDEQ NPDES permit and schedule of compliance. Other Improvements also are necessary to enable the WWTP to provide the required level of service and meet current design and safety standards, including upgrades or additions to mechanical equipment, control systems, administrative and laboratory facilities, generator, process piping, odor control, electrical and HVAC.

The maximum estimated cost of the proposed project is $10,895,000. The debt service for the proposed project, in addition to the increase in operation, maintenance and replacement costs, translates to a monthly increase of $22.22 per Meter Equivalent (REU).

Any interested party may review or examine plan documents at the City of Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720, any weekday, Monday through Friday, from 8:00 AM to 4:00 PM. The plan documents also will be available at Charlevoix Township Hall, 12491 Waller Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720, Marion Township Hall, 03735 Marion Center Rd, Charlevoix, MI 49720, and Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old US 31 North, Charlevoix, MI 49720, during regular office hours or by appointment only. Also, any interested party may submit to the City of Charlevoix Clerk's Office written comments concerning the proposed projects until the date and time of said hearing. Written comments received before the hearing record is closed will receive responses in the final project plan.

The City of Charlevoix will provide necessary reasonable auxiliary aids and services, such as signers for the hearing impaired and audio tapes of printed materials being considered at the meeting, to individuals with disabilities at the meeting upon one week notice to the City of Charlevoix. Individuals with disabilities requiring auxiliary aids or services should contact the City of Charlevoix Clerk's Office in writing or by calling the following: City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720 (231) 547-3250.

Carving out a piece of history

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

A relative newcomer to Charlevoix, Brian Brooks may be sighted as he walks around town looking just a bit peculiar by modern standards. He can be seen on any given day sporting a cut-off tailored herring-bone blazer and derby hat, and gripping one of his hand-carved walking sticks.

"I want to look as if I were a bridge operator in the early days of Charlevoix," Brooks explained.

Brooks, a master carver, recently donated to the Michigan Department of Transportation a carving of the first style of bridge that once spanned the Pine River Channel and a miniature of the same in a tiny capsule.

Michigan Department of Transportation spokesman Bob Felt of Brooks' donation, "On behalf of MDOT and all the workers, we are honored to receive these special carvings that commemorate such an important moveable bridge located in an area where several modes of transportation intersect."

Brian Brooks, has been carving since he was an 8-year-old Cub Scout. He was hooked on the craft right from the start and by age 11 joined a wood carving club. As a boy living in the Boomfield Hills area, Brooks had the opportunity to attend a visiting German Woodcarving School which came to Livonia and offered after school classes. For seven months, carving in class, at home evenings and on weekends, Brooks — as a boy — was able to pass the test of carving all the required projects with high marks and was officially certified as an "International Master Woodcarver." During high school Brooks supplemented his studies by putting his talent to work, carving game room doors with individualized panels for area clients.

Charlevoix's Brian Brooks displays the carved models of the various versions of the Pine River Channel Bridge that he presented to Michigan Department of Transportation officials in the Memorial Bridge control room in April.

His resumé over the years reflects both desire and necessity, trying his hand at many endeavors. Brooks became a chef for several prominent restaurants in Detroit, a coal passer on a Great Lakes freighter, earned a degree in English and psychology from Oakland Community College, and later, another degree as a dental technician specializing in repairing partials and dentures, and worked as a factory worker in various positions with the General Motors Fort Street Plant. It was working in a General Motors service department warehouse that Brooks suffered injury to his vertebrae in an unfortunate accident. As a result, in 1991 he was medically retired. During and after this time, Brooks continued to carve as a creative outlet.

Brooks and his wife Julie met in 1974 while working with a theatrical group, Stagecrafter's, working on props for a production of How to Succeed In Business Without Really Trying. The two discovered they were artistic soulmates and subsequently married. It was Julie who discovered in the first two years of their marriage, that Brooks had a severe hearing disability, a fact which explained why he held and lost 14 jobs during that short time.

"I made him go to a doctor to check his hearing. It was either that or break up," Julie said. "I knew there was something wrong, and he wouldn't admit it."

Brooks was amazed at the difference a hearing aid made.

"I remember noticing the sound the car made on the road on the way home from getting my aids," Brooks said.

Julie, who enjoys drawing and photography, has been his main supporter ever since. The couple has raised two children, Jaimison, 31, presently in the U.S. Navy in Chattanooga, Tenn., and a daughter Devon, 29, who works and resides in Cedarville.

In 1997, the Brooks moved from the Detroit area to Indian River, where Brooks had spent childhood summers. There he carved walking sticks and whistles and sold them to tourists on the street. Brooks began carving miniatures and, at his daughter's suggestion, decided to see how small he could make a whistle. He sent the resulting carving to Ripley's Believe it or Not, and soon afterward received a certificate in the mail that his whistle would be listed in one of their publications. Miniatures fascinated Brooks and with only an Exacto-knife, he created a variety of novelty wood carvings: little aliens, an eight inch Marlin 2000 rifle in a case and tiny model bridges among other things. Most of his miniatures have workable, moveable parts.

The Brooks have led an ever-changing life, moving around the country, always punctuating their stay with carvings. Albuquerque, New Mexico; Las Vegas, Nevada, (where he carved model casino signs); Heber City, Utah, (where he carved conductor batons for maestros at the Salt Lake City Utah Symphony); met and played spoons (hand-crafted, of course) with performers back stage at Sundance; and footballs for all the players, managers and owners of the Utah Blades Arena Football team. Returning to Michigan, Brooks has lived and carved in Indian River, Petoskey and now Charlevoix, where he "fell in love with the bridge" and carved all six stages of its historical past on a miniature scale.

But Brooks can carve larger, when he puts his mind to it. He is proud of a rowboat which he made using only plywood, a screwdriver and a small handsaw. The boat was Great Lakes Certified by the Coast Guard and Brooks has taken it out on Little Traverse Bay to verify its seaworthiness.

"I carve from pictures, not plans," Brooks said. "It's all in my head." In his small bedroom studio, using a minimum of tools and a maximum of ingenuity, Brooks continues to carve a place for himself around town. He enjoys greeting people along the way and is looking into the possibility of displaying his work locally in the near future.

Cuts not enough

School board must find another $300,000 in cuts to balance budget

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix Middle School will close next year and students will instead attend classes at the district's elementary and high schools. The move, along with a staff reduction, is expected to save the district approximately $800,000.

In order for the district to balance its budget for next fiscal year, the reduction in buildings and staff must be accompanied by an additional $300,000 in cuts that have not yet been identified.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted 4-3 Monday night to close the building for the 2013-14 school year. Board vice president Kevin Pearsall, trustee Mike Pearsall and trustee Glen Catt voted against the closure.

The board also voted to lay off up to nine teachers, five support staff and reduce six teachers from full-time to part-time. Those include high school, middle school, elementary school and special education teachers. Kevin Pearsall abstained from voting because of a conflict of interest.

Board members agreed the middle school building would not be shuttered permanently. This fall, seventh- and eighth-grade students will move to the existing high school and the sixth-grade students to the existing elementary school. But, the empty building will not be sold or demolished, yet, and will likely be rented out to Head Start and other organizations in order to generate some income.

"We want to re-examine which building is best for us in the fall. A two building switch is the easiest solution right now," said superintendent Bob Gendron.

Although the switch will save the district a good deal of money, more cuts are needed — at least $300,000 worth — in order to balance the budget for the coming year.

The board approved an amended budget for this fiscal year at the meeting Monday that left about $84,000 of cash in reserve, or fund balance, for future years. Auditors generally suggest school districts maintain 15 percent of operating costs in fund balance in case of emergency needs. Charlevoix schools are currently at around 1 percent.

With a large amount of sick day liability — staff that have accumulated and can draw on those sick days — and such a low fund balance, if several employees decided to collect sick day compensation, the district would have to borrow money in order to pay it, said Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District assistant principal Jeff Crouse.

"With the work that's been done so far, in regards to moving to two buildings, you've avoided roughly $780,000 worth of the problem that was before you. There's still $286,000 or more that needs to be done to be comfortable moving forward in needed fund balance," Crouse said.

The schools are looking at less state and local revenue next year because of a 40-student decline in enrollment and other factors, he added. There will be less special education funding from the

Challengers sweep council recall election

Porter, Gibson, Campbell oust Kusina, Picha and Vollmer

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After nine months of turmoil surrounding a proposal to construct a community fireplace in Charlevoix's East Park, three challengers who were opposed to the project handily defeated three incumbent council members in a recall election Tuesday.

In unofficial results reported by Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs by ward are:

In the 1st Ward Jeff Porter defeated Dennis Kusina 193-135.

In the 2nd Ward, Gabe Campbell defeated Bryan Vollmer 116-54.

In the third Ward, Shirley Gibson won a three-way race with 119 votes to incumbent Jill Picha's 76 votes and Dennis Halverson's 22 votes.

Voter turnout was about 36 percent in the 1st Ward, about 24 percent in the 2nd Ward and about 26 percent in the 3rd Ward.

The Charlevoix County Board of Canvassers is scheduled to meet today, Wednesday, to certify the election results. If certified, as expected, Campbell, Gibson and Porter will assume their respective seats on the council immediately and will serve out the remainder of the current term for those seats which expire in November of this year.

Following the election Tuesday, the Charlevoix Courier sought comments from all of the candidates in the election by phone and/or email. Gibson said, "I would like to thank all my supporters. Now we need to move forward and be positive."

Picha said, "I congratulate my opponent. I wish only the best of luck for the residents and their new 3rd Ward city council representative. May God lead you all well in the days to come. As always, it has been my pleasure to serve as your loyal and attentive council person for the past five-plus years."

Kusina thanked those who voted for him and added, "Obviously the people have spoken. I wish the new (council members) well."

Vollmer said he would have no comment on the election's outcome.

The other candidates did not respond to requests for comment by press time Thursday.

Third ward resident Julee Roth who was the sponsor of the recall petition against Picha but did not run in the election wrote, "Vindication and the people have spoken!" in an emailed statement on the election.

Charlevoix grad Kevin Kusina co-produces 'Project Ice' documentary

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Kevin Kusina, son of Dennis and Peggy Kusina of Charlevoix, dabbled in film making as a student at Charlevoix High School. But some of his recent achievements, at age 25, have proven that exploring high school interests can lead to achieving lofty goals.

In his junior year, Kusina produced his first documentary film featuring former Charlevoix Coach Keith Haske's basketball team.

"He attended every home game starting in mid-season, shooting the film with a Sony video camera, and then computer-editing to put the footage together," Dennis Kusina said. "After the season, he presented a copy of the film to the team and coaches."

As a senior year exit project, he produced a memory film collage as part of an independent study.

"It wasn't a project I am most proud of, but it did get me practicing skills that would serve me well in the future; it got a camera in my hand," Kevin Kusina said.

The film was shown as part of the entertainment at the class' senior party. By the end of his junior year, Kusina made the decision to attend a college or university where he could study film making. Searching for a college that offered film and advertising, he finally decided on Quinnipiac, a private liberal arts college in Hamden, Conn. where he spent four years studying in the college of communication.

During this time, he did extra-curricular involvement in a local auto show production for PBS, worked as a

Policy prompts road project scramble

State/Antrim streets intersection work may move forward

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — A recent change in Michigan Department of Transportation policy requires local governments to spend up all unused federal transportation money by the end of this fiscal year, rather than saving a portion for future years as many municipalities had planned.

Because of the policy change, Charlevoix County now has until September to identify and bid out $288,000 worth of road and transit projects, in addition to those that had already been planned this year. If the money is not spent, it will be redistributed elsewhere in the state.

Harmon

City, county, township, transit and road commission leaders met in Boyne City Monday to come up with a list of proposed projects to present to MDOT for approval. Projects identified include an estimated $180,000 pavement improvement project on Pleasant and Division streets in Boyne City, a $130,000 intersection reconstruction at State and Antrim streets in Charlevoix and $44,000 for the replacement of county transit bus maintenance equipment. The cities must pay for 20 percent of project costs and the other 80 percent will be paid for by federal funds. Transit is not required to match federal dollars.

In case any of the projects don't go forward, the unspent balance will first be used by the transit authority to buy a new bus and second by the county road commission for pavement marking or other projects to be determined.

All projects are contingent on preliminary approval by MDOT, which is expected sometime next week and final approval in September.

From finding out about the policy change in April to the September deadline, the time frame offered for planning additional projects is slimmer than usual and may not be enough for the cities to plan and engineer extensive road projects.

"I don't know how we're going to spend all that money," said road commission manager Pat Harmon. "They're not giving us enough time."

The bar has been set extremely high in order for the local governments to be able to use the money, agreed Boyne City city manager Michael Cain.

"They're trying to make it so we can't spend it," he said.

There is a 75 percent chance that Charlevoix will be able to have engineering drawings for its project finished by the end of August, estimated city manager Rob Straebel.

Cain said he was 95 percent sure Boyne City will be able to have plans for its project ready in time.

In the past, many municipalities chose to hold on to some of the annual federal funding they receive through MDOT from one year to the next in order to complete larger projects at once instead of breaking up those projects into smaller pieces. That is the strategy Boyne City used in order to complete the Park Street reconstruction last year in one summer rather than two.

He disagrees with the new policy that local governments spend up federal aid within a year rather than saving it up for larger projects over the course of a few years, said Cain.

When funds are available for only one year and then they're gone, he said, large projects such as the Park Street reconstruction would need to be done in smaller segments instead of all at once. That, he continued, could mean decreased efficiencies and higher overall project costs.

City council considers Camp McSauba changes, road projects

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday voted to increase fees for child care before and after daily sessions of the city-run Camp McSauba day camp this summer — but by less than originally proposed.

Newly-hired city recreation director Amanda Wilkin explained to the council that last year many weeks the program didn't break even and struggled with some logistics issues.

Wilkin said she had originally intended to simply discontinue the program. But she said when word of the plan to discontinue the child care program got out she got "a lot of blowback" from parents about the decision.

Camp McSauba is a five-day per week day camp for kids that the city operates at the Mount McSauba Recreation Area for nine weeks each summer. The camp is open from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m. on Fridays). The before and after-care program (now called the "Northern Kids Club") offers working parents the option of dropping their children one hour before and picking them up up to two hours after camp.

Wilkin said last year, charging $30 per week for the extra time did not cover expenses. She proposed increasing the amount to $70 per week. But several council members and a few audience members thought the cost was too high and might be prohibitive for parents on a tight income.

Wilkin noted that there is a fund with scholarship money to assist low income families with the cost of the camp and before and after care.

Ultimately, the council unanimously approved (member Greg Stevens was absent) a measure to increase the fee to $50 per week.

The council also heard an update from Jim Malewitz with Performance Engineering on the status of the plans for underground utility and street reconstruction of Garfield Street from Bridge to State Street expected to take place in late summer or early fall.

Malewitz explained that in addition to the underground utility work, the plans call for the street to be widened by 2 feet to the north. He said the widening will help make room for bike lanes that will eventually be established along that block of Garfield.

Malewitz said the 5-foot-wide bike lanes are part of a long-term master plan in the city to create a bicycle-friendly route from Ferry Beach to the downtown area. The plan also calls for parking to be eventually allowed only on the north side of the street. He said the bike lanes likely won't be marked for several years and that the parking restriction wouldn't be necessary until that time. In the meantime he suggested that the city meet with representatives from St. Mary Church to work out times when parking would be allowed on the south side of Garfield Street, such as Saturday or Sunday mornings.

The council ultimately voted unanimously to give its tentative blessing to the design of the street. Final approval will come when the bids are awarded.

The council also heard about a similar project (minus the bike lanes) slated for Lewis Street. However in the case of Lewis Street, plans call for the street to be narrowed by 2 feet to 35 feet wide.

In other business, the council approved a measure to allow participants in the upcoming Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament to use the Ferry Beach boat launch for free during the June 7-9 event.

The council also set a public hearing for the June 3 city council meeting to discuss the status of upgrades needed at the city's the wastewater treatment plant. The hearing will take place at the start of the meeting at 7 p.m.

Hearing on hunting ban repeal set for Monday

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Township officials are planning a special informational session on a proposal to do away with a township ordinance that prohibits hunting on the north side of the Township.

Township supervisor Chuck Center said the session will take place at the township board's next regular monthly meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, May 13 at the Charlevoix Township hall located at the corner of Waller and Old Orchard Road.

Center said two officials with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources — one in the law enforcement division and one from the wildlife division will be on hand to answer questions and provide information.

Center explained that the township enacted the ordinance about a decade ago, but not for the safety reasons one might expect. He said the township board enacted the ban on hunting for the northern half of the township after a resident complained that a deer that had been wounded by a hunter wandered into her yard where some children witnessed it dying.

However, Center said now, in recent months township officials have received several complaints from residents on the north side that the deer are causing extensive damage to their landscaping.

Center said people in the north half of the township have been abiding by the ban even though it was recently discovered that the ordinance is not enforceable. He said research showed that the township board at the time the ordinance was enacted, did not follow the proper procedures leading up to approving it, and therefore the ordinance cannot be enforced by township or law enforcement officials.

Center said he does not expect the board will take action on the hunting ordinance on Monday, rather it will likely take a month to take community input on the matter and could take action at its June meeting.

He said if the consensus of the community supports eliminating the ordinance, the board could simply repeal it. If the consensus supports retaining the ordinance, the board would have to re-enacted it using the proper procedure to make it enforceable.

Anyone who is unable to attend the meeting or who would like more information, or to weigh in on the proposal to eliminate the hunting ban may call the township offices at (231) 547-4611 or contact Center via email at charsupervisor@chartwp.com.

Springtime is full of many tiny wonders

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

This is the season when people get out of doors again and connect with the new growth. Trees are budding, Forsythias are out, dandelions are beginning to show up. Lilacs will soon be in bloom. All that is interesting, but I prefer to look for some of the less obvious early bloomers.

My daily walks in Charlevoix bring me into contact with new plants that are mostly immigrants, like nearly all the rest of us. The ones listed here are from Europe, and probably arrived with other larger seeds or with a shovel of dirt from France or England. You could call them alien, invasive species, but they don't cause any trouble.

One of those I look for each spring is so small and obscure that it hardly has a common name. It is sometimes called whitlow grass, but I have searched in vain for who or what whitlow was. The whole plant is often just an inch or so tall (tall in a relative sense). It may have dozens of extremely small white flowers, seed capsules about the size of a common pin head, and a few leaves hugging the ground. You could say it has a sensible posture for something growing and blooming so early.

You will likely find whitlow grass in what the plant people call waste places. That is, frequently disturbed soil, where nothing else is growing so early. It is an annual plant that comes back from seed each spring, and dies away before taller things get a foothold. The seeds are so small they blow around or flow in water easily, so it may show up where it was last spring or in some distant, disturbed place.

It is only one of a number of tiny mustard relatives that make use of our early wet spring to survive. Their nearest relatives are desert plants that thrive briefly after rare rain showers.

There are non-mustard plants as well, in our catalog of obscure, tiny, nearly invisible, early blooming plants. Chickweeds, also an inch high bearing tiny white flowers and with a similar immigrant history, grow near the edge of flower beds and lawn edges, and may even bloom in February if there is a long warm spell.

These and a few unrelated small plants are commonly called belly plants, because it is necessary to get right down there to even see them. If you look very closely, the flowers of whitlow grass have four tiny white petals, and the Chickweed flowers have five; the sort of distinction that keeps botanists in business.

If you don't mind people looking at you strangely, you could get right down on hands and knees and see spring close up and personal. The world's wonders are not always as far away as tropical forests.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

VIEW OF M. J. STOCKMAN'S BRICK BLOCK CHARLEVOIX MICH.

Morris J. Stockman was one of Charlevoix's earliest pioneers, arriving in 1857. After service in the Civil War, he returned home and went into the hardware business with a Mr. Norris in a small building on Clinton Street near the Round Lake waterfront. Stockman bought Norris out shortly after, and in 1880 put up the first brick building in Charlevoix on the corner above his hardware, now East Park land directly across from the Central Drug Store. In 1883, Harvey Lee Iddings, who would become our first mayor in 1905, arrived from downstate to join Stockman as a partner. The two guided Stockman and Iddings Iron and Hardware Merchants into being one of the most highly respected and reputable businesses in Northern Michigan. Out front appear a carriage,a wagon, a yoke, a plow, a grindstone, and a butter churn. Over the entrance the sign advertises Jewel Stoves. By 1945, the lower floor had housed the Min-Eva cafe for some time, but in December that year the restaurant blew up from a gas explosion that sent a man through the window and into the street. The severely damaged building was torn down shortly after, thus allowing the park, begun in 1937, to come all the way up to the corner.

Next Progressive Women meeting set for May 28

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Donna Hornberger, president of League of Women Voters Grand Traverse Area will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Progressive Women of Charlevoix County. The Grand Traverse Area League is the largest league in Michigan and recently was presented with a League of Women Voters of the United States award for increasing its membership by over 22 percent in the past year. This year Hornberger received the Grand Traverse-Leelanau-Antrim Bar Association Liberty Bell Award for her activities to help foster community awareness of voter rights under the Constitution.

The meeting will take place Tuesday, May 28, at the Charlevoix Public Library in Community Room A. Members may arrive at noon and the speaker will begin at 12:30 p.m. Members are invited to brown bag their lunch. The program is open to anyone interested in progressive issues, male or female. R.S.V.P. by May 27 by sending an email to progwomenchxcty@yahoo.com or calling (231) 582-0416.

Hornberger will speak about "Dark Money and the Michigan Supreme Court Election." She will talk about the amount of funding for Michigan Supreme Court races and the fact that a lot of candidate campaign funding is from undisclosed donors. She will present the impact of such funding in Michigan Supreme Court elections and how other states conduct judicial elections. Hornberger will facilitate a discussion of alternative ways of selecting Michigan Supreme Court Justices and how to achieve that goal.

The Progressive Women of Charlevoix County meets from noon to 2 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of the month. Locations alternate between Charlevoix and Boyne City. There are no membership fees and meeting announcements are by email only. For more information or to be added to the mailing list, email progwomenchxcty@yahoo.com.

Hospital to host run and 'Doggie Dash'

Charlevoix Area Hospital school nurses are hosting a Family 5K Fun Run and Doggie Dash on Saturday, June 1. The race begins at 9 a.m., with registration starting at 8 a.m. Participants can also register ahead of time at cah.org.

"This event encourages families to start the summer off right by eating healthy foods, limiting screen time, and increasing physical activity," said hospital community health director Kathy Jacobsen. "Not to mention, spending some quality time with family and friends."

In addition to the scenic 5K route, a variety of activities will be offered throughout the morning, including yoga, karate, hula hooping, cross fit, dance, and face painting.

Registration fees are $25 for individuals and $45 for families. Fruit, bagels, and water will be provided for participants and all runners receive a free event T-shirt with registration. Note any participating pets must be leashed and friendly.

For more information or to register online, visit cah.org.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is located at 14700 Lake Shore Drive in Charlevoix. For more information about the event, contact Kathy Jacobsen at (231) 547-8906.

Donations sought for new helmets

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Rayder Gridiron Club is seeking donations from the community to help offset the cost of replacing worn out football helmets for the Charlevoix Rayder football teams.

The club recently sent out letters seeking these donations.

In the letter, dated May 1, the club writes: "Charlevoix High School currently has football helmets that are of varying age. Helmets are recycled after visual inspection deems them suitable for continued use and those helmets which do not pass a visual inspection are sent to the manufacturer for refurbishing. Interestingly, after a recent inspection of helmets that were felt to be in good repair, several were found to not maintain air pressure (specifically the bladder in the helmet that ensures proper fit and protection). This type of deficiency poses risk for any player who uses the helmet during play.

The club has formed a committee to steer a fundraising driving with the goal of purchasing 55 new helmets for the program.

"The hope of the committee is to have a set of helmets that are all of the same age and that employ the newest technology in regard to player safety," the organizers wrote.

The helmet suggested for potential purchase is the Schutt Vengeance helmet. This helmet has received a five star (highest) safety rating in recent testing.

The entire price for this helmet (including helmet, face mask, and chin strap) would be $215.

Donations are tax deductible, organizers said.

Given the time necessary to measure, order, and receive the helmets for the team, Gridiron Club officials are requesting those considering a contribution, do so no later than May 15.

Contributions may be sent to the Rayder Gridiron Club, [illegible] Box 754, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Community foundation awards $137,655 in grants

The board of trustees of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently approved $137,655 in grants, including a $10,000 award from the Lake Charlevoix Watershed Fund to the Conservation Resource Alliance. The alliance will utilize the grant to conduct an engineering study of the road-stream crossing of the Jordan River at Rogers Bridge Road.

The foundation's Youth Advisory Committee allocated more than $29,000 of the total, making awards to organizations and projects that will benefit the county's young people.

Nonprofit agencies submitted 39 proposals for consideration and 34 of those proposals received full or partial funding based on the recommendations of foundation advisory committees. The awards represent distributions from a wide range of donor advised, field of interest and unrestricted community foundation funds.

"The diversity of our funds gives us the resources to meet a wide variety of community needs," said Maureen Radke, program officer. "We're fortunate to be able to provide the connection between the needs identified by our grantees, and donors who want to be helpful in meeting those needs," she added.

Radke also noted the presence of several requests from local food pantries.

"Normally we see proposals for urgent needs in the October cycle, closer to winter," she said, "but their presence in the March cycle could be a sign of the times."

Grants supported artistic and musical performances, substance abuse issues, urgent needs, environmental stewardship activities, grief counseling, education and more, and will impact every segment of the community, from the youngest children to the elderly.

"Our mission is to enhance the quality of life for all people of Charlevoix County, and this cycle's grants will do just that," said Radke.

"In a period where the needs are great and the resources are scarce, the funds provided through the generosity of our donors are making a big difference in the community," said Chip Hansen, foundation president. "They increase our capacity for grant-making, while also increasing our permanent endowment, which will support worthwhile projects in the community, forever."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents and nonprofit organizations.

Since it was founded in 1992, the foundation's net assets have grown to more than $76 million, and grants and scholarships totaling more than $1[illegible] million have been distributed for the common good.

OBITUARY

Norman E. Probert, 75

Norman E. Probert, 75, of Charlevoix, died March 1, 2013, while camping in Louisiana.

The husband of Judy Harrell-Probert, they were married for 56 years. Together they had two children, Terri (Michael) Hodge of Petoskey, and Gary N. (Barbara) Probert of Orlando, Fla.; four grandchildren, Tricia Howard of Charlevoix, Jerred Hodge of Petoskey, Heather Probert of St. Cloud, Fla., and Brett Probert of Orlando, Fla.; one great-grandchild, Grayson Howard, of Charlevoix; two brothers, Albert and Milton Probert.

Norm was involved in many local associations. He was active in the Retired Teachers Association, past president of the Lake Charlevoix Association, and a past Charlevoix City-Council representative.

He was involved in the Michigan Wrestling Coaches Association and helped to establish the Wrestling Association Hall of Fame in Michigan.

Norm loved traveling, camping and being the "Park Jester" where ever he was.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Charlevoix County Community Foundation, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Mich. 49727; Attention: Chip Hansen, for Michigan Association of Retired School Personal (MARSP) Scholarship Program.

A memorial service is planned for Sunday, May 19, at the Charlevoix Public Library, 200 Clinton St., Charlevoix. A light lunch will be served at 1 p.m. and the memorial service will follow at 2:30 p.m. If anyone is unable to attend the service, please have a toast to "Norm" and remember the good times and smiles he may have brought to you.

Norman E. Probert: Oct. 14, 1937 — March 1, 2013

Charlevoix Area Hospital celebrates National Hospital Week May 12-18

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Area Hospital is celebrating National Hospital Week May 12-18 in several ways.

Kristie Roharge, who works in the Charlevoix Schools as one of hospital's school nurses and also coaches a local Girls On The Run group, has her students making hospital week-themed placemats for the patient trays.

The hospital also invites members of the community to stop by throughout the week, starting on Monday, May 13, during normal business hours (7 a.m.-7 p.m.) to enjoy a complimentary cup of coffee in our cafeteria or solarium, both of which showcase views of Lake Michigan. Display tables will be set up near the solarium on the upper level with helpful information about various services available at the hospital, including urgent care, physical and occupational therapy, dietary and diabetes education, bone density testing, cardiac rehab, and more.

Employees will be treated to a fish fry on Friday and will receive a token of appreciation from CEO Lyn Jenks.

"Hospital Week, first and foremost, is a celebration of people," Jenks said. "We are extremely proud of each member of our staff and we recognize the important role they play in extending a sense of trust and caring to our patients and our communities."

The celebration of Hospital Week began in 1921 after a magazine editor suggested that more information about hospitals might alleviate public fears about the medical institutions of the day. Originating in Chicago, the celebration succeeded in promoting trust and goodwill among members of the community and eventually spread to facilities across the country.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is located at 14700 Lake Shore Drive in Charlevoix. For more information on hospital week activities, please Chelsea Townsend, communications coordinator, at (231) 547-8686.

Concert series schedule unveiled

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority will once again sponsor Thursday evening performances in East Park's Odmark Pavilion this summer.

The concert series offers a wide variety of musical entertainment from mid June to late August.

The series continues its original Thursday evening format, with one exception – a special engagement Venetian Festival Tiki Tent performance on Tuesday, July 23.

All concerts begin at 7 p.m. and attendees can expect to enjoy roughly 90 minutes of top-quality entertainment in one of Michigan's most unique outdoor performance venues – the Odmark Performance Pavilion in Downtown Charlevoix's East Park, authority executive director Keith Carey said.

"The 2013 schedule is chock full of talented entertainers from across the country and even Canada," Carey said. "We're especially pleased to partner with the Charlevoix Public Library to offer a kids' concert on Thursday, Aug. 8 when noted children's songwriter/performer Randy Kaplan takes the stage for what promises to be a special evening for families."

More information on the Charlevoix Concert Series is available on the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority website at www.DowntownCharlevoix.com.

The 2013 Charlevoix Concert Series — All concerts begin at 7 p.m.

Thursday, June 20, Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra sponsored by Charlevoix County Community Foundation, (Petoskey/orchestral)

Thursday, June 27, The Snyders, (Repentigny, Quebec/Blues)

Thursday, July 11, Petoskey Steel Drum Band, (Petoskey/Island Percussion)

Experts convene, discuss low lake levels

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Key Messages
The Lake Michigan-Huron water level range is not natural
We are experiencing global warming impacts not simply a protracted drought
The duration of the current low water level regime is unprecedented
The economic and ecological impact

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Roger Gauthier, retired senior hydrologist and current chair of tha group Raatore Our Water International, apeaka during a low lake levals sympoalum hoated by tha Laka Charlevoix Association in Boyna City on Monday.

BOYNE CITY — Hundreds of Northern Michigan residents turned out to hear three groups speak to the reasons behind the declining Great Lakes water levels at the Boyne City High School's performing arts center.

Jennifer McKay, policy specialist with Petoskey's Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council; Roger Gauthier, retired senior hydrologist with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and current chair of a group called Restore Our Water International; and Lana Pollack, chair of the International Joint Commission, each presented.

McKay provided background to the situation, reiterating that evaporation from the lakes has continued to impact the lakes.

"Lake Michigan-Huron has been low for 14 consecutive years," she said, adding that Lake Michigan-Huron added 5 inches to its elevation since April. "But we need years of prolonged wet periods to raise water levels to average."

Gauthier is now the chair of Restore Our Water International, a grassroots, nonprofit group championing the effort to establish structures in the St. Clair River. Those structures would stem the outflow of water from Lakes Michigan and Huron.

"We're experiencing the effect of global warming," said Gauthier. "The Corps of Engineers is not saying that this is climate change, but a retired Corps of Engineer employee is telling you — yes, it is."

While the consensus among the four speakers was that excessive evaporation is driving declining levels, Gauthier focused more closely on constructing structures in the St. Clair River to stem the outflow in that system.

"Ninety percent of all the water in the Great Lakes is upstream of Sarnia (Canada) and Port Huron, and if you can't retain the water up in this part of the lakes, we're damned," said Gauthier.

Gauthier pointed to a slide during his presentation. The slide depicted a series of underwater sills — a 1965 engineering analysis from the Army Corps.

"These are speed bumps, 20, 30 of them along the river," said Gauthier. "It would provide backwater effects to hold water back. All we're saying at the moment is that it's long overdue to get these addressed."

Gauthier said construction those sills would take about 5-7 years. The Corps would have to conduct analyses ranging from environmental impact studies to navigation studies concerning the sills — and ask for between 30 and 150 million from Congress.

"But in the mean time, you might have to do something much quicker to stabilize the bottom of (the St. Clair River) if it is still eroding, and that is what we're pushing for right now," he said.

The International Joint Commission is a United States-Canadian organization formed in the early 1900s that cooperates over decisions regarding the Great Lakes and other waters along the United States and Canada border. The commission's chair, Pollack, said the commission is focusing on evaporation as the key driver of declining water levels.

She pointed the size of the Great Lakes basin — a swath of land surrounding all five of the Great Lakes that drains into the lakes.

"Look at the size of the basin and the landmass," said Pollack. "Now look at where the controls are."

She pointed out the St. Marys River, which flows from Lake Superior to Lake Huron, then the St. Clair River, which flows from Lake Huron into Lake Erie.

"There's a control here, a little pinch point known as the St. Marys River. Only so much water can pass through that point," Pollack said. "We need to use our common sense and question whether perhaps rainfall on all of this land mass and snowfall on all of this landmass and some groundwater that flows into it — then all of this evaporation on all of this landmass might have a bigger impact than what flows through (the St. Marys River) and (the St. Clair River)."

Residents who live on Lake Charlevoix attended the meeting because of impacts to Lake Charlevoix, which is connected to Lake Michigan through the Pine River Channel in Charlevoix.

Vance Wood lives in Ironton, and says his shoreline is impacted by lowered levels, particularly along the gently sloping beaches of Lake Charlevoix.

"Five inches of elevation makes a big difference — the water (along Lake Charlevoix shoreline) has gone down almost four feet," he said.

Another Ironton resident, Paul Brendtrow, agreed.

"The talk raised more questions than answers," he said.

While evaporation might have the primary impact on water levels, Brendtrow was hoping for a fix at the St. Clair River.

"If there was a way to adjust the flow on the St. Clair River, that would make some sense," he said.

Breast cancer walk set for May 11

Sales associate Donna Wynlawskyj of The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, smiles as she puts a decorated bra on display in support of this Saturday's Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial 5k Walk/Run. The breast cancer awareness fundraiser registration begins 8 a.m. ; walk/run begins at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 11 at East Park in Charlevoix. Monies raised go to the Circle of Strength Foundation to provide mamograms for those in need and the Health Department for cervical cancer screening.

The 19th annual Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Breast Cancer 5K Walk and Run will take place in on Saturday, May 11.

The event is organized by the Charlevoix Women's Circle (formerly Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. The group invites everyone to participate, to walk, to donate and to volunteer.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. in East Park and the walk and run begin at 9 a.m. Individual walkers, runners and teams can collect "pledges" for participating in the walk, or sponsor themselves with a one time donation. All entries with $30 or more in donations will receive a commemorative t-shirt.

Organizers also encourage participants to "wear their support" for the cause by wearing a decorated bra over their t-shirts during the event. Prizes will be awarded for the best among the decorated bras.

The event honors two local women: Sue DeYoung, a young mother of four children that died in 1992, and Judy Edger, who was a driving force behind this event until her death in March 1999. Monies raised this year will go to the Charlevoix County's Circle of Strength Foundation, to provide mammograms for women in need, and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, to be used for the free cervical screening program for Charlevoix County residents. Organizers said all monies raised will stay in, and benefit Charlevoix County. Money raised from the event is administered through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Organizers also noted that event has been recognized as a quality physical activity event by the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness.

Participants can register for the opportunity to be one of the runners selected to participate in the annual Labor Day Run over the Mackinac Bridge. For more information and to register for your chance to participate, visit:www.michiganfitness.org.

Over the years this event has raised more than $140,000 to assist women in Charlevoix county with cancer related screenings and treatment.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund may visit www.c3f.org/misc/misc-makeagift.htm on the Charlevoix County Community Foundation Website and make sure to note Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Breast Cancer 5K Walk/run.

For more information on the event, visit the organization's websit at www.walkruncure.org.

Charlevoix city election workars asaist voters with the voting proceaa in the Charlevolx City Council chambers Tueaday.

one chapter in city politics, the first pages of the next chapter are already in the works.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions for the Nov. 5 election — during which the same three council seats along with the mayor's and city clerk's seats will be up for election — is less than a week away at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 14.

And it looks like several rematches of Tuesday's races may be brewing.

Both Picha and Kusina have already filed their nominating petitions for the November election, and several others have been picked up but not yet turned in by at least some of the successful challengers in Tuesday's election, city clerk Carol Ochs said.

By law, anyone who files a nominating petition would have until Friday, May 17, to withdraw the petition. Speaking to the Courier late Tuesday, Kusina said he still plans to run for the 3rd Ward seat in November.

One person whose name won't be on the November ballot is Ochs for the clerk's post.

In February, Ochs wrote a letter in which she expressed her frustration with the recall, took issue with the motives of those who prompted it and endorsed Picha, Vollmer and Kusina in the recall election. At that time she also said that she viewed the recall effort (the petitions for which accused the council of violating the Open Meetings Act) as a vote of no confidence in her and said she was considering not seeking re-election in November. Speaking with the Courier mid-day on Tuesday, Ochs said she still had not decided if she would seek re-election to the clerk's post. However after reporting the results of the election, she announced that she has decided not to seek re-election.

What's next?

What the outcome of Tuesday's election means for the fate of the long-debated fireplace project remains unclear.

When the council meets next (which will be at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 20, assuming no special meetings are called in the interim), here's how its membership will shape up:

— Gibson, Porter and Campbell ran largely on platforms rooted in their opposition to the project.

— Both Greg Stevens and Lyle Gennett voted in favor of the original design. Stevens had remained supportive of the fireplace concept throughout. Gennett, after hearing the complaints in the weeks following the initial approval at one point said he thought the whole project should simply be scrapped. He also recently cast the sole dissenting vote in council actions to move forward to the final design phase of the dramatically re-vamped project. Prior to those recent votes, Gennett said he thought the council should wait until after the recall election to move to the final design phase of the process.

— Cole was present at the meeting at which the original fireplace plan was approved, but abstained from the vote over a concern that his wife's employment with DTE energy (the company that would supply the natural gas for the fireplace) would constitute a conflict of interest. Later, after consulting with the city attorney, it was determined that Cole could participate in discussions and votes on the fireplace, as long as determinations that it would be fueled by natural gas were voted on separately and he abstained from those votes. Cole has been supportive of the fireplace project.

— Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson was not at the meeting at which the original fireplace plan was approved, and would not have voted on the matter anyway, because under the city's charter, the mayor only votes to break a tie. However, Carlson was supportive of the idea of the fireplace originally. He has since said during meetings that the original design was probably too large and has expressed support for the modified design.

In order to completely overturn the decision to build a fireplace in East Park, the council would have to pass a motion by a 2/3 margin to suspend the council's rule against reconsidering already-decided matters more than one meeting after they have been decided. Then, by another 2/3 vote it would have to vote to rescind the Aug. 9 decision to approve a community fireplace in East Park.

DJ for a college radio station, was active in Quinnipiac's club TV station Q30 and the Qinnipiac Film Society, interned for NBC at Rockefeller Center and for a TV company in Stamford, Conn.

In 2009, a Quinnipiac documentary class provided him the opportunity to travel to Capetown, South Africa, where he filmed two documentaries, one on youth soccer in the townships and the other on wildlife in Kruger National Park. Kusina interned for two summers under local Harbor Springs film maker, Rick Pierpont, who encouraged him and taught him the many facets of the craft: shooting film, editing, making DVD's for clients — producing projects from which one can make a living.

After graduating from Quinnipiac, Kusina worked for the summer through October for Pierpont. He then moved to Connecticut with former college roommates in order to be close to New York City.

"He took the train in every day," his mother, Peggy said, "working on lighting for a film."

By Janoary, he moved to New York where he did freelance work as a key grip for "Ex-Girlfriends," a film directed by Alexander Poe.

He then applied for a position with "Project Ice," a documentary film produced by Bill Kleinert, former station manager for TV Channel 9 and 10 out of Cadillac.

"Project Ice," as the title suggests, features the important role ice plays on the Great Lakes and on those who live on their shores. Ice, beginning with the glacier, has shaped the geology of the region. The documentary depicts its significance in regards to shipping, navigation, geography, recreation and economy. It warns that climate change may endanger much that we have historically taken for granted.

For the film, Kleinert wanted someone who knew the weather; he got a bonus in the fact that Kusina who had once achieved the rank of Eagle Scout, was familiar with roughing it outdoors in the northern winters. Kusina's enthusiasm and competency on the job soon earned him a promotion as co-producer.

In a letter congratulating him on his promotion, Kleinert wrote: "By mid-year we'd both grown confident that his skills and talents would enable him to handle the myriad tasks, technical challenges and creative collaborative required as editor of our feature length documentary endeavor. We are a relatively small team, affording each of us the opportunity and challenge I have handed him, or that the film has placed in our path. His creativity, determination, focus, collaborative spirit and sense of humor have served us well throughout this marathon effort."

Together with a team of 10, Kleinert and Kusina traveled around the Great Lakes with high-definition cameras filming a way of life that they wished to present as "worth preserving." Subjects captured on camera range from U.S. Coast Guard cutters breaking ice in the Straits of Mackinac shipping lanes, to the variety of winter recreational activities the region affords its residents and winter visitors in the Great Lakes Area. Henry Pollack, geophysicist from University of Michigan, served as the film's advisor. Pollack, worked with the UN affiliated Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, which shared the Nobel Laureate Award with former Vice President Al Gore in 2007.

Kusina originally joined the team in February of 2011 as a digital imaging technician. His responsibility was to download film shot from the hard drive each day.

"It's a simple process," Kusina explained, but one little mistake and you've lost film footage."

At the end of the shoot, he and Kleinert went to Grand Rapids where Kusina spontaneously produced a "sneak peek" on the project to show Kleinert's friends so that they would get the gist of the production.

Kleinert then asked Kusina, to come to Washington, D.C. to help finalize the project which required the editing of 400 hours of film down to a manageable 1 hour 58 minutes. A few months ago, he produced a two and a half minute trailer which can be seen by searching on the internet for "Project Ice."

Kusina is presently living outside Washington, D.C. in Virginia. When asked what comes next he replied: "I plan to move to Boston and see what opportunity pops up there. I like D.C. but it's time for a change." As for working with Kleinert on another project, time will tell.

"The last two years have been very intense working on the documentary and meeting deadline. I think we all need a break right now."

He is anticipating seeing "Project Ice" become recognized as a regional contribution to national environmental awareness.

BUDGET

state and intermediate school district, less or no best practices funding and possibly less vocational education money, he said.

Athletics, transportation, staff and programs

"$300,000 (more in cuts) in essence gets us back to zero," said Gendron. "We have to cut $300,000 by June 30 to balance this budget."

Gendron outlined a list of ideas from board members on how that goal can be reached and the board discussed each item. Some options for the schools include privatizing technology services, making administrators pay for a portion of their health care, reducing bus routes, increasing the amount students pay-to-play sports, eliminating freshman athletic teams, reducing school-sponsored athletic transportation, cutting foreign language classes and an across-the-board 1 percent pay cut for all employees.

By privatizing technology services, the district could save $139,000. That's how much it costs for the salary and benefits of technology coordinator Scott Mays. Because some of that is paid for by vocational education funding, $63,000 comes out of the general fund.

Boyne City and East Jordan schools contract technology services with private companies, noted Gendron.

One option previously discussed that is no longer an option is laying off the athletic director and moving the middle school principal to an athletic director and assistant principal position.

"As per Travis' (middle school principal Travis Garrett) contract, when the meeting was had at end of March, that was not acted on," reported Gendron. "If it's not acted on by March 31, we're not allowed to do it."

Laying off the athletic director is still an option, he said, and could save the district some money.

If administrators paid 20 percent of their health insurance premiums, as do all other staff, the district would save almost $24,000.

"I'm looking at this layoff list and all these people that could be staying if we all pitch in a little bit," said Catt on why he supports the measure.

A 1 percent reduction in pay for all employees would save $63,500 next year.

If athletes paid $75 to participate in one sport and $150 for two, with no charge for a third, the district would recoup about $20,000. Those costs are about average, according to the Michigan High School Athletic Association, said Gendron, and about 50 percent of schools in the state charge athletes to participate.

Eliminating the district's three freshman athletic teams would save the district $10,900 in coaches' salaries.

The district spends approximately $166,000 each year to pay the 41 coaches it employs. There are 17 varsity sports available to students in the high school.

Maybe the board should think about eliminating a few of the sports, suggested Mike Pearsall.

"That's always open for discussion ... For the size of our schools we do have a variety of varsity sports," Gendron said. "We worked hard to stay away from the sacred cows of athletics and transportation ... but the reality is that's where we're at."

Cutting sports is a "slippery slope," said Catt, and could affect enrollment.

"We're not going to hurt our academics. If people want to leave us to go to a school that isn't in the top 100 or 200 or 300, I guess there's nothing we can do about that. But if you want your kid to get a good education, why would you go anywhere else?" asked trustee Dick Joseph, noting that Charlevoix High School was recently ranked as the 43rd best high school in the state: "We have the best school in our conference. I think we lose kids if our academics fail."

"We could lose 50 kids by cutting (athletics or transportation)," said Catt. "Athletics are your number one draw to your school system."

"Anything we do will be absolutely brutal," said board president John McLean, Jr. "The priority I have for the kids is getting them out of here with the best education possible."

AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW

Jeff Crouse (far left at podium), assistant superintendent of the Char-Em Intermediate School District reported financial figures to the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education Monday. After deciding to close one building and lay off 16 employees, the board must still find another $300,000 in order to balance its budget for the coming fiscal year.

He said he believes more students leave Charlevoix schools with academic rather than athletic scholarships.

"There is no sacred cow, except academics," he said. "I think everything's fair game."

The board directed the superintendent and principals to come up with a few budgets that include some or all of the cuts discussed in order to save the district at least $300,000 on top of the savings realized with the building consolidation and layoffs.

Administrator contracts

The board was scheduled to discuss administrator contracts at the meeting, but no discussion took place. The discussion was tabled at the board's April meeting and the only mention of the contracts made at the meeting Monday was to table them once more.

The district pays a total of $588,500 in salary alone to its seven administrators. That includes $88,000 for high school principal Suzanne Klinger, $80,000 for middle school principal Travis Garrett, $81,000 for elementary school principal Doug Drenth, $89,000 for technology coordinator Scott Mays, $65,500 for transportation supervisor Gordon Russell, $30,000 for food service manager Michael Washburn, $44,000 for mechanic Kenneth Rogers and $110,000 for superintendent Gendron. These numbers do not include other benefits such as health and retirement.

Rayders remain unbeaten in league

Varsity team ranked ninth in Divsion III state coaches poll

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

After two conference double-header sweeps in the past week, the Charelvoix varsity baseball team's record in the Lake Michigan Conference remains unblemished

On Tuesday, earned a pair of come-from-behind wins defeating Elk Rapdids 6-2 in the opener and 5-2 in the nightcap.

In the opening game, the Rayders, 13-1 overall, 8-0 league and ranked No. 9 in the Division III state coaches poll, used a five run fifth inning to propel them to the win, and then put up five runs in the fourth in the nightcap to earn the sweep.

"The guys are playing with so much confidence now, they don't think they're ever out of any game and it shows," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "That's four wins now where we came from behind in the fifth or sixth innings."

In the opening game, Noah Certa had two hits, while JJ Bottomley added three hits. Will Telgenhof had a double, while Nate Moon, Luke Klinger and Tag McCreadie all singled.

In the fifth inning and trailing 2-1, Klinger walked, Telgenhof had a sacrifice bunt and Bottomley had a RBI single to make it 2-2. McCreadie then singled and scored on a Certa RBI single to make it 3-2.

Moon then reached on an error and scored as did Certa on an error.

Shane Sutherland was the winning pitcher in the opener as he struck out six, walked three, allowed two runs and two hits over six innings.

In game two, Tommy Zipp had two hits, while Moon had a hit and two stolen bases, while Sutherland, Klinger, Telgenhof and McCreadie all had a hit apiece.

Zipp was the winning pitcher as he struck out 10, walked three and allowed two runs on one hit over six innings.

"Tommy and Shane were both great on the mound for us and we finally scored some runs for them late," Telgenhof said. "I'm just very proud of our guys and their baseball IQ. They really had some heads up baserunning in game two that took advantage of Elk Rapids and got them down."

On Friday the Radyers took a double header from conference Boyne City.

The Rayders won the opening game, 9-5, and then took the nightcap, 6-3.

In the opening game, the Rayders overcame a 5-2 deficit in the fifth inning and pushed across seven runs in the sixth in nine batters.

In that sixth, Nate Moon singled, Shane Suterland was hit by a pitch and Tommy Zipp singled before Luke Klinger walked to score Moon. Will Telgenhof had a sacrifice RBI before JJ Bottomley added a RBI single to tie the game at 5-5. Hunter Cox walked to drive in another run before Noah Certa added a two-run double.

"We had our backs to the wall, but our guys kept battling and had a huge sixth inning," Telgenhof said. Sutherland was the starting pitcher as he struck out six, walked three and allowed five run on five hits through 4 1/3 innings. Cox — a freshman — earned the win in 1 2/3 innings of relief as he struck out one and walked one.

Zipp and Klinger each finished with a pair of hits.

"Hunter Cox came in and closed it out for us," Telgenhof said. "It's hard to believe he's only a freshman, pitching in big situations as our reliever this year."

For Boyne, Nick Vellis took the pitching loss, while Dalton Gardner had two hits. Waylon Henning and Max Cuper had a hit apiece.

In the second game, Zipp had a no-hitter through 4 1/3 innings and earned the win as he struck out five, walked two and allowed three runs on two hits.

Offensively for the Rayders, Bottomley and Certa had two hits apiece, while Austin Putman, Will Telgehof, Klinger, Sutherlad and Moon had a hit apiece.

For Boyne, 4-3, 0-2, Elliott Hausler took the pitching loss, while Dalton Gardner and Jordan Fair collected the Ramblers' two hits.

On Thursday, May 2, Nate Moon's two-out bases loaded triple in the bottom of the second lifted the Rayders in game one, while Noah Certa's two-out double in the bottom of the second followed by Shane Sutherland's RBI single paced Charlevoix to a non-league sweep over Rudyard, 13-3 and 6-4.

In game two, Rudyard scored a pair of runs in the sixth and had runners on second and third before the Rayders got the final out.

"These games were a good measuring stick for us," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Rudyard made it to Battle Creek to the semis last year and they have a great program." Also for the Rayders, in game one, Moon, Sutherland, and Will Telgenhof had two hits apiece, with Telgenhof adding a double. Certa doubled, while Luke Klinger, JJ Bottomley and Austin Putman added singles.

Moon was the winning pitcher as he struck out five, walked six and allowed three runs on three hits over five innings.

In game two, Certa had two hits including a double, while Bottomly had two hits. Logan Eckhardt, Hunter Cox, Jared Cole and Moon each added a hit.

Bottomley was the winning pitcher as he struck out two, walked three and allowed four runs on seven hits over six innings.

"Tommy Zipp made a couple of huge catches in centerfield to help us hold on in game two."

On Wednesday, the Rayders traveled to Mancelona where they rolled past Mancelona in the opening game of a non-league doubleheader, 16-4. The Ironmen who are ranked No. 3 in the Division IV state coaches poll, then rebounded to top the Rayders in the nightcap, 6-5. With the split, the Rayders move to 14-2 overall.

In the opening game, the Rayders pounded out 18 hits led by Logan Eckhardt who Gabby Gray had a double, while Hang doubled and Rachel Schull and Allie Balyo singled.

On Thursday, May 2, the Rayders had and offensive field day as they swept Rudyard 12-0 and 23-3 in a non-conference double header.

Gabby Gray combined for six hits including three doubles, while Katie Hybl and Yogi Hang each picked up a pitching win for the Rayders.

In the opener, Hybl threw a five inning complete game two-hit shutout allowing two walks and striking out eight.

The Radyers offense was led by Gray, Hybl, Rachel Schull, and Skylar Herriman each had two hits, while Kelsey Pischner hit a threerun home run and Nicole Peterson and Jennifer Archey each had one hit apiece.

"We came a little sluggish in the second game, and made a few errors," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said. "But, our bats came alive in the fifth inning, as we batted around twice."

In the nightcap, Hang allowed three runs, on six hits, three walks and struck out six in a five inning complete game.

Gray had four hits, two were doubles, Hybl added three hits, two doubles, and Herriman had three hits. Archey, Shall, Hang, and Kaitlin Louiska each added two hits, while Peterson and Pischner each had a hit apiece for the Rayders.

On Wednesday the Radyers traveled to Mancelona for a non-league double-header where they fell to the Ironment 6-2 and 7-6.

The Ironmen, 10-0 overall, won game two on a seventh inning rally.

For Charlevoix, 12-3 overall, in the game Gabby Gray doubled and had two singles, while Katie Hybl doubled and singled and Yogi Hang tripled and singled. Jennifer Archey, Skylar Herriman, Kelsey Pischner and Rachel Shuil all added singles.

Hang took the pitching loss as she struck out seven, walked six and allowed three hits.

In the opener Hybl and Hang collected the Rayders' only two hits.

Hybl took the pitching loss as she struck out five, walked three and allowed six hits.

JV BASEBALL

Rayders fall to TC West, Boyne, Elks

Charlevoix first baseman Adam Michaud stretches to catch a throw for a force out in game one of the Rayder JV team's doubleheader against Elk Rapids on Tuesday.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Spencer Bruce reaches out and drives an RBI double.

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity baseball team's 0-6 record for the past week belies a few games that could have easily gone in the Rayders' favor.

Jordan Adkins singled and scored on an Alex Kleiber sacrifice fly for the Rayders in a game one 15-1 loss, while Andrew Michaud had three hits, two RBI and scored twice in a game two 5-4 loss for the Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity baseball team on Thursday, May 2.

Also for the Rayders, Avery Penfold singled, while Michaud took the pitching loss as he allowed five runs on four hits and fanned three.

On Friday, May 3 the JV squad dropped a twinbill to Boyne City 10-3 and 14-2.

Adam Michaud and Spencer Bruce each pitched well, but took losses for Charlevoix in the doubleheader.

In game one for the Rayders, Justin Adkins reached base three times and Mason Louiselle and Forrest Noirot each added a hit. In game two, the Rayders had a late inning rally led by Michaud. Jordan Adkins added a double.

At home on Tuesday the Rayders dropped a heartbreaker in game on, to Elk Rapids, 12-10.

Eight Rayders scored at least one run and Spencer Stewart drove in the go ahead run in the top of the 4th inning. Pitcher Mason Louiselle only struck out two, but had his strongest outing of the season getting many of ground ball outs, coach Brandon Webb said.

Charlevoix lost game two, 13-8. Alex Kleiber had a double to deep left center to start the game, and Spencer Kilpatrick was 2-for-3, with a double.

Charlevoix plays at Kalkaska on Friday and at Rudyard on Saturday.

SOCCER

Rayders shutout Grayling, Kalkaska

The Charlevoix Rayder girls soccer team earned two shutout wins over conference foes in the past week to improve their record to 9-3 overall, in the 7-2 league.

On Monday, seven different Charlevoix players scored as the Rayders rolled past Kalkaska 8-0 in a Lake Michigan Conference.

Kitely added two assists, while Maura Brandi, Anna Way, Ellie Way and Scholten added assists.

Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten lauded the strong defensive efforts of Carolena Elowsky, Sydney Carlson, Katie Paramo and Shelby Robinson

Senior goalkeeper Bailee Stevens and sophomore Gloria Greene shared the shutout in goal. Greene had one save.

The Rayders outshot the Blazers, 21-1.

On Friday, May 3, senior Hannah Herboldsheimer and sophomore Leah Davis each scored a goal as the Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team notched a 2-0 Lake Michigan Conference win over Grayling.

"Grayling is a much improved team," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We were expecting a battle and that's what we got."

Herboldsheimer scored first on a throw in assist from freshman Kylee Scholten before Davis, the Rayder's stopper, made it 2-0. Davis' goal came from about 25 yards out on an assist from senior Maura Brandi.

Senior Bailee Stevens and sophomore Gloria Greene shared the shutout in goal.

Green had three saves and Stevens added one save. The Rayders outshot the Vikings, 16-4.

"Senior defensive backs Carolena Elowsky, Sydey Stevens and junior defensive back Kelsey Robinson really stepped it up to shut down Grayling's attack," Scholten said.

Charlevoix, was slated to travel to Traverse City to face the Liberty for a league match at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 9. The Rayders defeated the Liberty when the two teams met earlier this season.

Rayders top Red Devils, Elks in conference matches

Charlevoix won all four doubles matches and claimed three more singles matches en route to topping East Jordan, 7-1, Monday in a Lake Michigan Conference match on their home courts.

"This was the third rescheduled date," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

"I'm glad we all were persistent to make this match happen."

Singles results: 1-Kirsten Malpass (EJ) defeated Madi Carey, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2; 2-Lexie Barnes (C) def. Katie Spence, 6-4, 6-3; 3-Kelsea Stevens (C) def. Paige Podskalny, 6-4, 7-5.

"Madi played well, stayed focused and was stategic in her game plan," Randall said. "Malpass is a tough player and it was a good match up for Carey. Lexie had to work her game, she is a smart player on the court mixing it up and trying out different ideas and growing her game.

"Kelsea's match was the hardest part of her last five days," Randall said. "She was named prom queen this past Saturday. Monday was her birthday and she had a tough match which resulted in a win."

Doubles results: 1-Cassidy Peebles-Karley Pearsall (C) def. Jill Atwood-Adrianna Dixon, 6-0, 6-0; 2-Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff (C) def. Bronte Munson-Taylor Raymond, 6-1, 6-1; 3-Carly Scholey-Cassie McCraney (C) def. Julie Atwood-Katie Huckle, 6-1, 6-0; 4-Hannah Ennis-Ellie Ackerman (C) def. Raven Joseph-Angie Watkins, 6-3, 6-4.

On Thursday, May 2, the Charlevoix Rayders swept all four singles matches and won two more doubles matches en route to topping Elk Rapids, 6-2, in a Lake Michigan Conference match.

"Getting on the court multiple days has been great for the girls," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

Singles results: 1-Madi Carey (C) defeated Laura Quinlan, 6-3, 6-2; 2-Lexie Barnes (C) def. Emma Elsenheimer, 6-3, 6-1; 3-Kelsea Stevens (C) def. Sara Tafelsky, 6-1, 6-3; 4-Taylor Markgraf (C) def. Katie Attinson, 6-0, 6-4.

Doubles results: 1-Cassidy Peebles-Karley Pearsall (C) def. Aubrey Webb-Elena Hubbell, 6-1, 6-2; 2-Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff (C) def. Danielle Donahue-Olivia Adams, 6-0, 6-1; 3-Emma Kinery-Bridget Granger (ER) def. Carly Scholey-Cassie McCraney, 2-6, 6-4, 10-8; 4-Anastasia Tafelsky-Stacey Arnold (ER) def. Hannah Ennis-Ellie Ackerman, 6-0, 6-2.

On Wednesday the Rayders picked up a 5-3 win over Petoskey (JV) Wednesday at the Petoskey High School tennis courts.

Singles results: 1-Madi Carey (C) def. Anne Tsaloff, 6-2, 6-2; 2-Lexi Barnes (C) def. Megan Makela, 6-2, 6-0; 3-Amber Stahmer (P) def. Kelsea Stevens, 6-2, 6-4; 4-May Louise Mooridian (P) def. Taylor Markgraf, 6-2, 6-4.

Doubles results: 1-Cassidy Peebles-Karley Pearsall (C) def. Alena Chapdelaine-Sydney Smith, 6-0, 6-2; 2-Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff (C) def. Ayriss Swenor-Krista Spencer, 6-0, 6-0; 3-Sydney Foster-Leah Boucher (P) def. Cassie McCraney-Ellie Ackerman, 6-3, 2-6 (10-4); 4-Rachel Thompson-Hannah Ennis (C) def. Charlevoix shot a 344, while Kalkaska was second at 348. Harbor Springs was fourth with a a 374, while East Jordan finished seventh with a 453.

Also for Charlevoix, Tanner Catt shot 88, followed by Chandler Novotony, 94; Corbin Turkelson and Ryan Joy, 99.

"I was happy with the outcome," Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said. "We were nine shots behind Kalkaska going into the day and now we're five back going into Wednesday's tournament.

"Noah Jeakle has really been playing steady," Grunch added. "He's now shot 80, 79, and 81 and he's coming into his own. Brad Rizzo had a great day too, he double bogeyed his last two holes and was close to breaking that 80 barrier."

Rayders win as Vikings return to course

BOYNE FALLS — Golf can be a difficult game, but it's nothing compared to how tough life can be.

Perhaps no group of people knows that more than the Grayling High School boys golf team and its grieving community, as they continue to morn the loss of golf coach Jason Potter and teammate Louis Menard, following a recent traffic crash. Potter, and Menard, 18, lost their lives while five other members of the team were left hospitalized. Cassandra Stapleton, 31, of Kalkaska, driving the other vehicle, also was killed.

On Wednesday, with Potter, Menard and absent members of the team in their thoughts, the Grayling golf team returned to the course at the Boyne Invitational at Boyne Mountain.

"You don't ever move on from something like this, you move forward. We're moving forward by playing," said Chet Wheeler, who along with mother Beth Wheeler have stepped in to coach the Grayling team the rest of the season. "They want to continue the season and if they're strong enough and courageous enough stepping on the golf course, we're strong enough to support them in that process."

All eight members of the Lake Michigan Conference competed in the match, with Charlevoix taking top honors with a 338 total, edging out Kalkaska for first by one stroke.

Host Boyne City finished third with a 345, Traverse City St. Francis fourth with 350, followed by Harbor Springs, 364; Elk Rapids, 380; Grayling, 444; and East Jordan, 485.

But the scores weren't the important part of the day for Grayling or for any of the teams for that matter.

"There is so much adversity in golf. You've got to play your curve balls and penalty shots so it is kind of like life," Boyne City coach Casey Powers said. "Its just healing to be outdoors, a beautiful day, good friends, good competitors, just picking up and trying to move forward once again."

Wheeler was just proud his group of kids was able to focus on the game of golf once again, not caring what any of his players shot.

"Our game plan for them today was for them to go out and just play," Wheeler said. "We didn't care about the score, we didn't care about how good or bad they shot, we were just proud of them for coming out."

"They're courageous guys," Chet Wheeler said. "These guys have huge hearts and care a lot about each other. It's not about caring about one more than the other, it's about we are a team. It's nice to see them smiling from time to time. Obviously Coach Potter and Louis Menard are heavy on their hearts."

"It takes time, cause we're not through it yet," Wheeler said. "They still need more strength. This is a long process. They were resilient and that's what we're proud of."

Traverse City's Parker Guss was the medalist with a 76. Charlevoix's Brad Rizzo and Corbin Torkelson both shot 82. Also scoring for Charlevoix was Noah Jeakle, 86; Chandler Novotny, 88; and Ryan Joy, 116.

had three hits including a double. Moon had two doubles and drove in three runs, while Tag McCreadie had two hits including a double and Tommy Zipp, Will Telgenhof, JJ Bottomley and Austin Putman all collected two hits.

Jared Cole and Luke Klinger both added doubles, while Klinger drove in three runs. Hunter Cox added a single.

Moon was the winning pitcher as he struck out four, walked one and allowed four runs on just two hits. Putman worked an inning in relief and walked two and allowed one hit.

In the second game, Mancelona scored two runs in the first inning and added three runs in the fifth to take a 5-3 lead. The Rayders then tied the game at 5-all in the top of the sixth as Noah Certa doubled to score two runs after a Telgenhof double Bottomley took the pitching loss in relief of Cox. Bottomley struck out two and allowed one run on three hits. Cox went 4 2/3 innings and struck out four, walked one and allowed five runs — three earned — on nine hits.

Offensively for the Rayders, Certa, Zipp and Telgenhof all doubled, while Certa and Zipp finished with two hits. Adding singles were Klinger and KeNen Borths.

Elementary class raises funds for humane society

During the 2012-1013 school year, the resource room students and their teachers, Bridget Elowsky, Rachel Noble and Rachel Manther, hosted a monthly popcorn sale at Charlevoix Elementary School. Through the sale, the group raised $500 to donate to the Charlevoix Humane Society. Mai Whitley, who has a brother Kai in the resource room, wanted to raise money to help others in some way. She approached Elowsky and asked if she was in need of any classroom necessities. It was decided that she, and her friend Olivia Vollmer, could raise money to pay for a bus to transport all of the students to the Humane Society on Wednesday, May 1. The trip allowed the students to see the homeless animals their donations would help. The monies that remained were divided with a portion going to the resource room to replenish supplies for next year's sales and a portion to the shelter. Pictured at left, the resource room student gather for a photo during their recent visit to the shelter.

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

We the People

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

NOTICE OF
MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The Mortgage described below is in default. Mortgage made by Susan M. Barr-Stemen, as Trustee of Susan M Barr Trust dated July 11, 1995, as Mortgagor, to Business Lenders, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, as Mortgagee, dated July 13, 2006 and recorded July 19, 2006 in Liber 756, Page 767, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was assigned by Business Lenders, LLC to TSKEE Enterprises, LLC, a Florida limited liability company as Assignee, by virtue of an Assignment of Mortgage dated February [illegible] 2013 and recorded March 5, 2013 [illegible] Liber 1022, Page 498, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Assignment of Mortgage"). The legal description contained in the Assignment of Mortgage was corrected by an Affidavit of Scrivener's Error dated March 27, 2013 and recorded April 4, 2013 in Liber 1029, Page 533, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan. The balance owing on the Mortgage is $797,476.33 at the time of this Notice. The Mortgage contains a power of sale and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt secured by the Mortgage, or any part of the Mortgage. Take notice that on June 7, 2013 at 11:00 a.m., local time, or any adjourned date thereafter, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at public vendue at the place of holding the Circuit Court within Charlevoix County. The Assignee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt secured by the Mortgage as stated above (which includes all costs and expenses paid by the Assignee to collect the debt and to protect its interest in the property, all as provided in the Mortgage), plus interest on the amount due at the rate of 2.25% above the Prime Rate as published in the Wall Street Journal, (currently 5.50% per annum at the time of this Notice) and any amount subsequently paid by the Assignee to protect its interest in the property. The property to be sold at foreclosure is all of the real estate located in the Townships of Melrose and Chandler, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described more particularly as follows: PARCEL 1: That part of Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, Chandler Township, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, Melrose Township, more fully described as: Beginning at a point in the centerline of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13, 18, 19 and 24; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 361.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said centerline on the arc of a 400 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence North 448.80 feet; thence North 34 degrees 35 minutes East 256.66 feet; thence North 23 degrees 54 minutes East 284.48 feet; thence North 12 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 336.12 feet; thence East 248.56 feet; thence South 06 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds West 428.54 feet; thence South 88 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds East 393.42 feet; thence South 03 degrees 35 minutes 15 seconds East 227.80 feet; thence South 02 degrees 46 minutes 45 seconds West 170.12 feet; thence South 14 degrees 43 minutes 30 seconds East 328.43 feet; thence South 37 degrees 17 minutes 45 seconds East 161.25 feet; thence South 39 degrees 11 minutes East 182.11 feet; thence South 20 degrees 49 minutes East 201.80 feet; thence South 34 degrees 42 minutes East 300.70 feet; thence South 11 degrees 47 minutes West 96.96 feet; thence South 42 degrees 23 minutes 30 seconds East 114.95 feet; thence South 17 degrees 55 minutes 10 seconds East 181.42 feet; thence South 18 degrees 52 minutes 40 seconds West 374.11 feet; thence South 00 degrees 03 minutes East 1197.77 feet; thence South 89 degrees 10 minutes 30 seconds West 629.60 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 1106.55 feet to the Point of Beginning; EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, for the Point of Beginning; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence South 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds East along the centerline of Spring Valley Road to the Point of Beginning; being a part of the Northeast 1/4 of Section 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West; AND FURTHER EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: That part of Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, described as: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13 and 24; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the center line of Spring Valley Road 736.44 feet, thence Northwesterly along said center line on the center line on the arc of a 400.00 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284.00 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence South to the Point of Beginning. Petunia planting preview 2013

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

With less than a week before its annual Operation Petunia planting day, volunteers and board members with the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful organization are busy making final preparations for its 31st year of planting petunias along the five miles of U.S. 31 stretching from one end of Charlevoix to the other.

As the program enters its fourth decade, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board president Aaron Wilkin said some things are staying the same, and some things may be changing some.

What hasn't and won't be changing about the program is that it will continue to center around lining the U.S. 31 with petunias and it will continue to rely heavily on the support of the community — both financial and physical — perhaps now more than ever.

In fact, that's one of the things that has made Operation Petunia so special, Wilkin said. Planting day, in particular, he said, has long been a source of community pride as hundreds of people turn out to plant more than 60,000 flower plants, typically in less than two hours.

This year, however, organizers are tweaking the planting day program slightly in that they are asking planting volunteers to wait to start planting until 5 p.m. At that time organizers are asking volunteers to find a block captain for marching — or rather planting — orders. (Block captains can be identified by the fluorescent lime yellow-green shirts that they will be wearing, as usual.) Wilkin said in recent years as crews began distributing flats of petunias along U.S. 31, eager planters have jumped in early and started planting. Organizers are hoping that by seeking instructions on where and how to plant the flowers, the process will be more efficient and yield a better display in the long run.

To that end, Wilkin said this year the block captains will also be getting a little extra training before planting day arrives. And who better to serve as the captains of the block captains than Steve and Sandy Bennett. Wilkin said the Bennetts, who up until recently owned the MacDougall House Bed and Breakfast on U.S. 31 just a few block north of the bridge, were well-known among the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful crew as having some of the best looking petunias in the area of their bed and breakfast.

"They've always had the best looking block in town and we're going to see if we can replicate their success," Wilkin said.

Wilkin noted that the 5 p.m. start time goes back to the early days of the program and the time was chosen to allow

You can help

Here are some ways that you can help with this year's petunia display:

- — Donate to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful
- — Help out on planting day and with the expected weeding days
- — If you are walking past a petunia bed and see a big weed, pull it out
- — If you live or have a business along the petunia route, be careful to keep fertilizer, pesticides and herbicides out of the petunia beds

Election rematches on tap for city council in November

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Just one week after voters in Charlevoix overwhelming chose to replace three of the city's city council members in a contentious recall election, the stage has been set for a rematch in two of the three wards come November's general election.

When the deadline to file nominating petitions for candidates to have their names appear on the Tuesday, Nov. 5, general election ballot passed at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, here's who had filed in the city's three wards:

— In the 1st Ward, Jeffrey Porter and Dennis Kusina

— In the 2nd Ward, Leon Perron

— In the 3rd Ward, Shirley Gibson and Jill Picha

Picha and Kusina filed their petitions before the recall election took place. The remainder of the candidates filed after the election.

In the 1st Ward and the 3rd Ward, voters will see a nearly identical race to the one contested in the Tuesday, May 7, recall election. The only differences will be in November the roles of "challenger" and "incumbent" will be reversed (and – so far, the 3rd Ward is only a two-way race). In the recall election then-challenger Porter defeated then-incumbent Kusina 193-135 and then-challenger Gibson won with 119 votes to Picha's 76 and fellow-challenger Dennis Halverson's, 22 votes.

The race that, so far, is completely different from the recall election is in the 2nd Ward where neither candidate from last week's race filed. In the recall election then-challenger Gabe Campbell defeated then-incumbent Bryan Vollmer 116-54. However neither filed to run in November.

This won't be Perron's first try for a 2nd Ward seat on the council. Last November Perron ran unsuccessfully against incumbent Greg Stevens.

Although the filing deadline for a candidate's name to appear on the November ballot has passed there's still a chance there could be some changes in the races.

First, any of the candidates who have filed have until 4 p.m. on Friday, May 17, to withdraw their names from contention. As of press time Thursday morning, none of the five candidates had withdrawn.

Secondly, a candidate could still choose to throw his or her hat into the ring as a write-in candidate. The deadline for filing to run as a write-in candidate is 4 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 25, at Charlevoix City Hall.

Another wrinkle

The Charlevoix City Council is made up of six members — two from each of the city's three wards. The members serve two-year terms and the terms are staggered by one year, so that each November one of the two seats in each ward is up for re-election. The mayor and city clerk are also elected to serve two-year terms, which also alternate each year. Last November Campbell ran unsuccessfully against current mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. This year the clerk's seat is up for re-election. After the results of the recall election were in on May 7, current Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs announced she would not be seeking re-election. However, city resident Larry Sullivan has since filed a nominating petition to run for the clerk's office. No one else filed for that post.

Sullivan, who last year retired from a long-time position as the Charlevoix County planning director, successfully ran for the District 6 post on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Ochs said she's unsure if holding both offices at the same time would be allowed by law.

Fireplace on agenda for Monday meeting

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After last week's clean sweep of three challengers ousting three incumbents in a Charlevoix City Council recall election, the future of the contentious fireplace project that led to the recall election remains in limbo.

In last week's election, challengers Shirley Gibson, Gabe Campbell and Jeffrey Porter, defeated (respectively) incumbents Jill Picha, Bryan Vollmer and Dennis Kusina by wide margins. Gibson, Campbell and Porter will now serve out the remaining six months of the terms for the council seats previously occupied by Picha, Vollmer and Kusina.

The issue that prompted the recall effort, of course, was the city council's Aug. 9, 2012, approval of a gas-fueled outdoor community fireplace project to be constructed in Plaza B of the city's East Park. The bulk of the cost of the fireplace was to be paid for by an anonymous donor who brought the idea to the city council through city resident John Winn. The project had been discussed at two regular council meetings prior to the special Aug. 9 meeting at which it was approved. Little or no objections were raised at those meetings and the council approved the project by a 5-0 vote. (Council member Shane Cole abstained from the vote citing a possible conflict of interest.)

The original fireplace design called for the structure to be 8 feet wide at its base, topped by a chimney that would taper to about 4 feet wide. The total structure height was originally to be about 20 feet.

When construction started on the project days after its approval, members of the community began to cry foul, complaining that the fireplace did not fit in with the park, that would block views of the park and Round Lake, that it would cost too much to operate and that the council did not seek enough input from the community and its subordinate boards before proceeding with the project.

After hearing a chorus of these complaints at several packed-house council meetings, the council put the project on hold to allow time for options to be explored that might be more agreeable to more of the community.

Around the end of October opponents of the project began the process to prompt a recall of the Picha, Vollmer and Kusina. (The other three council members and mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. could not be recalled because they were re-elected in November and state law prohibits recalling elected officials in the first or last six months of their terms.)

Since then, Carlson appointed a steering committee to work with two consultants to develop a re-design of the fire-

Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen applications due May 24

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Charlevoix Venetian Festival is accepting applications for the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen Scholarship Pageant.

Each year the young women that enter the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen competition bring intelligence, integrity and a love of community with them. The coronation is a popular community event which takes place in East Park on Friday night of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

Applications must be turned in to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office by 5 p.m. on Friday, May 24. (This date has been extended by one week from the original deadline.) Applications are available at the chamber office or online at www.charlevoix.org.

Corrections

In a story under the headline, "Policy prompts scramble for road projects" on page A3 of the Friday, May 10 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, the reference to changes in requirements for local units of government as changes in policy was incorrect. Instead, the requirements are a result of MDOT following federal aid rules, according to Bob Felt, spokesman for the MDOT office of communications. The local units are encouraged to use the funds and if they don't, they are pooled into categories so other local areas can access them.

One subsection in a story about the Charlevoix City Council recall election appearing in the Friday, May 10 edition of the Charlevoix Courier, appearing on page A9, incorrectly reported that the mayor's seat will be up for re-election in November. The same subsection also listed the wrong ward in which Dennis Kusina is a resident. He is a resident of, and will be running for election in the 1st Ward.

County amends, approves new recycling contract

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County is a little closer this week to beginning a 10-year recycling contract with American Waste, under which recyclable materials will be hauled from county drop-off locations to a processing facility in Traverse City rather than Harbor Springs as they are now.

A good deal of controversy arose after the county considered and ultimately decided to sever its five-year recycling processing contract with Emmet County. The decision to do so was economically-driven, according to county commissioners, and was the result of a five-month-long process involving three bid requests.

Almost two months after the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners accepted a bid from American Waste for hauling and processing services, it was presented with a proposed contract at its meeting Wednesday that had been drawn up by county and American Waste staff and attorneys.

The contract was rejected as-is. In a vote on whether to approve the contract as written, commissioners Larry Sullivan, George Lasater and Chris Christensen voted against it and commissioners Joel Evans, Richard Gillespie and Ron Reinhardt voted to approve it. In the case of a tie, a motion fails.

The thrust of the commissioners' disagreement had to do with the termination portion of the contract.

The agreement, as written, allows the county to terminate its contract with American Waste for any reason, but to do so, it must give the company six months written notice and pay a termination fee equivalent to three months of hauling services.

The county may break the contract with 60 days written notice and no termination fee if American Waste fails to perform the services and obligations outlined in the contract or if the county recycling millage fails.

"I would like one change in the language of the contract," said Sullivan after being presented with it for approval. "We terminated our contract with Emmet County and I fought that termination. I was assured that the same provisions would be included in this contract for a 60 day termination. That language is not in this contract. I would like the rules we played by before to be the rules we play by in the future."

In his conversations with American Waste's attorney, both agreed that because a 10 year contract spans such a long period of time, a termination without cause must be included, said county civil counsel Bryan Graham.

But, the American Waste representative was concerned with the investment the company would have to make in accommodating recyclable materials from Charlevoix County and planning for growth of the program in the future, if a no-cause 60 day termination clause were included.

"It was inserted as a compromise," said Graham of the fee. "Paying a three month termination fee gives boards the ability to terminate the contract, but if they exercise that early termination, they're going to do that for a sound

Hayes appointed as county public administrator

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

On Thursday, May 9, Charlevoix attorney Roy "Joe" Hayes III was appointed to the position of Charlevoix County public administrator. Hayes took the oath of office and was sworn in by Michael Moody public administrator for the state of Michigan. The selection for the position was made by Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette.

Responsibilities of the position include, among other things, administering estates in Charlevoix County on behalf of the state of Michigan for those who have died, but have no known heirs.

The term of the appointment is indefinite

"I am honored to receive this appointment," said Hayes.

"I look forward to working with (the state public administrator) and Attorney General Bill Schuette in the service of Charlevoix County and the state of Michigan."

Sheriff warns of two phone scams

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider is warning area residents about two telephone scam that has been reported multiple times to his office in the past few weeks.

According to a sheriff's office news release, the one of the scams works like this:

The caller identifies themselves as a representative of the Social Security Administration and says he or she will be visiting the citizen at their home. The caller proceeds to ask questions of the citizen regarding his or her social security number and other account numbers.

"We believe the only reason the (caller) advises they will make a home visit to the citizen is to make the call sound ligitimate. After these calls we have not experienced any visits being attempted. The Social Security Administration advised they do not telephone individuals," the news release reads.

In the second scam, according to the sheriff, the caller identifies himself or herself as being from Medic Alert and states that someone in call recipient's household must have fallen recently and requested this emergency alert phone system be installed at the house. The caller also says that the system has been paid for, but they need to verify some information and ask you to push 1 to set up the installation. The phone number calling is 734-794-3078, a non-working phone number.

"We are asking citizens to hang up and refrain from pushing 1 or giving them any information," the sheriff said in the release.

Ironton Ferry overhaul nearly done, questions linger on project delays

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — A delay in getting engineering drawings finished for changes to the Ironton Ferry is why the vessel is still not operational a month later than normal, and likely will not be for at least another 10 days.

That was the report brought to the Eveline Township Board of Trustees Tuesday night by Frank Hamilton, chair of the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority, the entity in charge of the ferry.

While out of the water for its five-year inspection by the Coast Guard, the ferry got a major overhaul with the installation of a new hydraulic engine, new wheelhouse and new electrical wiring.

The township invited all three members of the transportation authority as well as all six Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to its meeting Tuesday searching for answers about why the ferry is still not running as Memorial Day approaches.

Three members of the county board attended. Joel Evans, Larry Sullivan and Chris Christensen, and one member of the Transportation Authority was there, Hamilton. Richard Gillespie, who spearheaded the project and is a voting member both entities, did not attend the meeting.

The township officials expressed some frustration that calls to Gillespie with questions about the ferry had not been returned.

The board of trustees voted to make an official request to the county board of commissioners to make the transportation authority a five person board with at least one representative from Eveline Township. It is currently a three person board with one voting member from the board of commissioners, one from the road commission, and one at large member appointed by the board of commissioners.

"If we were to have someone on the board, then they could convey to us what's going on," said township supervisor John Vrondran. Eveline Township sits at both ends of the trip the ferry takes across a narrow arm of Lake Charlevoix, in Ironton just outside East Jordan.

As work on the ferry draws to a close, Hamilton reported in detail what has already been done and what still needs to be done in order for the historical boat to be operational and answered questions from the trustees and the public.

The old engine had been in place since 1972, he said, and the Coast Guard, which regulates the safety of vessels such as the Ironton Ferry, indicated that an upgrade to the wiring would be needed soon. So, three years ago, the authority began exploring changes to the vessel to bring it up to date.

The issues with the previous engine were many, explained Hamilton. The oil had to be changed every two weeks and because the engine was inefficient, it went through a lot of fuel.

Delivery difficulties lead to discoveries

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I love the smell of flowers. So when I was asked if I would like to help out this past Mothers Day to be a delivery person I jumped at the chance. I was looking forward to being enveloped by the sweet fragrances of lily and roses. This will be a retreat into peacefulness and beauty without a glimmer of sound asking "Are we there yet?" or "He touched me! " A delicate cargo organized in neat rows and placed in perfect order for this neat freak and quiet to boot — a job sent from heaven.

I thought this will be an adventure ... and an adventure it was. Multi-tasking took on a new meaning.

Watching for traffic on a busy Saturday buzzing with soccer tournaments, the usual shoppers and did I mention falling snow. Make that a blizzard, and enough to make many small snowmen.

I quickly learned that same name streets have the same addresses listed twice when there is a north, south, east or west written next to it. Unfortunately most customers who call to order flowers do not mention this little detail. Also there are sections where a street begins and then ends for a park or school and then continues on the other side. Those clients talked me in like a pilot speaking to ground control. I naively assumed everyone had an address posted somewhere — not.

Seriously, I was shocked at the number of people who have no signs at all. Some people don't want to be found. My thought on this is that they better not be the same individuals who are the first to complain when their pizza is cold or the ambulance is late. Enough of my venting now on to the fun stuff.

The attractive young man entered the flower shop ordering a lovely and expensive arrangement to be delivered to a Nursing Home. "Awwww," I thought, "What a sweet son." I entered the nursing home and one of the aides looked up at me with the cutest smile and in her lilting voice said, "May I help you?" "Why, yes. I am looking for Joan." She replied, "I'm Joan." To which I said, "No, you can't be. You aren't his mom." She caught herself in a laugh and said, "I'm his wife." "Well, he definitely has good taste in flowers and women," I thought to myself. "And he probably is a kind son as well."

I wanted all recipients to receive the goods by Mothers Day and undamaged by snow. So, I began to seek out neighbors who might want to baby-sit them until the individual arrived home. I've started some interesting relationships in neighborhoods north of here. There was one delivery where I left a beautiful bouquet for the neighbor to care for until she arrived home from shopping. This gentleman was eager to do so as the absent woman only lived a few doors down. I only hope his wife understands the flowers are not for her.

I returned back to the floral shop with a fevered pitch of excitement in my voice from the newness of the adventure. Then I began to feel my calves and back realizing what hard work it is to deliver something on time to the right place and to the right person.

Yes, next time someone delivers flowers I'm going to tip them enough to get a cup of coffee as they continue on their journey and wish them well. We're rolling out the welcome mat with a well-marked address and a cleared walkway saying thank you for all you do for a job well done. This includes postal delivery, garbage pickup, home movers, pizza delivery, UPS, EMT's, firemen, police, delivery trucks and repairmen. If I've forgotten someone please know that I appreciate your job and have a better understanding of what it means to deliver the goods.

Sheriff warns of prescription drug abuse

Editor:

I'd like to discuss some misconceptions related to prescription drug abuse. I'm not sure everyone understands what it means, why it's dangerous or how dangerous this growing problem really is.

To understand what prescription drug abuse means, you need to know there's a reason for medications containing certain substances to be controlled by a physician's prescription. If you have prescription drugs to treat a medical condition and are following your doctor's instructions then you are using those prescription drugs legally and properly. Your doctor and pharmacist are able to monitor potentially harmful side-effects and drug interactions. They can regulate your doses and monitor your condition. But without that careful regulation and monitoring, those same drugs can hurt or kill someone.

Abuse occurs when these controlled substances are consumed by people with no prescription, solely for their intoxicating, mind-altering side effects, and often in an unsafe dose. There's a false belief, especially among teenagers, that prescription drugs are a "safe" way to get high. But after seeing more than 550 Northern Michigan deaths in the past dozen years due to drug overdoses and poisoning, I can tell you there is nothing safe about it.

If you have prescription drugs to treat a legitimate medical condition, keep them in a safe place - especially if there are kids or teenagers who might have access. Drugs left in a purse, a drawer or even a medicine cabinet are easily found and can be taken without your knowledge. Some prescription drugs have a "street value" and plenty of kids and teens already know how to sell whatever they can find.

Nationwide, 2,500 teenagers per day are using a prescription drug to get high for the first time. Most of those who abuse prescription painkillers started doing so before age 15. Prescription drugs are equivalent to marijuana in terms of the number of 12 to 17 year olds who abuse them.

You can prevent the abuse of prescription drugs. First, any unwanted, expired or unused medications should be taken to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the City of East Jordan Police Department, the City of Charlevoix Police Department, or to the City Hall building in Boyne City. Each of these locations has a free prescription and over-the-counter drug drop-off box, or POD. The POD can be accessed weekdays between 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Do NOT simply flush drugs down the toilet.

Second, I urge you to talk with your kids about the dangers of prescription drug abuse. Even if you don't have prescription medications on hand, your kids can get them from friends and they may not realize the risk of severe illness or death.

If you still have questions about how prescription drugs are being abused, why it's so dangerous or what can be done about it, visit www.drugfreenorthernmichigan.com for more information. Just by being aware and informed you're on your way to preventing prescription drug abuse in Northern Michigan.

Thanks for low water forum coverage

Editor:

Many thanks to Morgan Sherburne for the interesting and informative article on the Low Water Forum held at the Boyne City High School Auditorium on Monday, May 6th. Where has our water gone, and what can we do about it, was the theme of the meeting.

The Lake Charlevoix Association was pleased to have hosted this symposium and will continue to monitor our low water situation and will certainly support efforts to raise the water level in our lakes.

Anyone interested in viewing a tape of the Forum may do so by going to the Lake Charlevoix Association website (www.lakecharlevoix.org).

LOOKING BACK…

On March 21 and 22 of 1929, a theatrical group of more than men was assembled to put on one of the most hysterical plays ever seen in Charlevoix — "The Womanless Wedding." About half of these budding thespians braved the ridicule of their fellow citizens to don outlandish drag and grace the footlights, in such roles as the Duchess of Windsor, Mary Pickford, a Jazz Age flapper, the Groom's Haughty Mother, the Bride's Baby Sister, Theda Bara, the Vampire silent screen siren, and Mrs. Henry Ford. In anticipation of the production, the Charlevoix Courier said "the entire population will gasp for breath at the spectacle. Elaborate preparations are being made for this wedding and no detail of a real wedding is being overlooked. Some never before seen at a wedding will be introduced. The Kindergarten band will play before the play. Reserve seats are now selling at Central Drug Store." Shown is the cast on the stage of the old school gym on Mason Street, now the Charlevoix Public Library stacks. Invited guest Charlie Chaplin as the Little Tramp can be readily spotted. It was said that audience members who had been rolling in the aisles in March were still laughing in December. "The Womanless Wedding" was encored, sponsored by the Knights of Pythias lodge, in 1941 with equally hilarious results.

BUSINESS

DDA mulls future staffing needs as Carey departs

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Carey

After learning recently that its first (and only) executive director is leaving for another position, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority is weighing its options for its future staffing needs.

Keith Carey, who has held the position of the authority's executive director since the position was created in the spring of 2007, announced to the authority's board and city officials recently that he will be leaving the position effective Friday, May 24, to take a position with an area financial institution.

Carey's departure leaves the board to consider how, or if, it will replace Carey.

Figuring front and center in the discussion will be balancing the authority's administrative, and programming needs against its anemic budget.

In recent years, declining property values in the authority's district have chipped away at its annual income, which is derived by "capturing" taxes collected on increases in taxable value within the district above a set point. The bulk of the income the authority takes in is used to pay down its debt service on bonds for the East Park and marina projects.

Carey, who was brought on as a contract employee to assist the city with its Cool Cities/Downtown Blueprint 2007 project, was hired to fill the newly-created executive director position, created to help the authority implement the Downtown Blueprint 2007 program.

Carey said he feels good about the accomplishments the authority and the city have made in the downtown and in its efforts to implement the blueprint plan.

"If you look at what this (the executive director) position was in 2007 and what it is now, vastly different," Carey said. "There are still some consistencies, but from a to-do list standpoint — those items recommended by (the blueprint plan) — most of them have been accomplished ... One of the things I'm most proud of is that we executed that document almost to a T. There's no question that downtown now is in a better situation than in 2007."

But, that doesn't mean there is nothing left for a staff person to do, Carey said.

At a special meeting Tuesday, the authority's board met to discuss which of Carey's job functions it would like to see continue and how those functions should be accomplished. Carey said among the position's primary functions are overseeing the authority's programing, such as the summer concert series, Monday Movies by the Marina, advertising, marketing and business recruitment and retention activities. (When passing its budget for this year, primarily for financial reasons, the authority decided to do away with the Flurry Fest in December and the two-year experiment Up North Fourth.)

Carey said at Tuesday's meeting, the board expressed interest in continuing to have a staff person to handle some of these functions, even if it's not in a full-time capacity, as Carey's position was.

Carey said one option the board discussed with city treasurer Rick Brandi and human resource director Jennifer Nash Tuesday is the possibility of combining some of the downtown development authority director's functions with other city economic development functions to create a position that might be funded in part through the authority and in part through the city's other funds.

Carey said such an idea would need to be investigated further and the city council would have to be agreeable.

The authority's board took no action on the matter Tuesday.

Monday Movies by the Marina returns

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority recently announced the return of the popular Monday Movies by the Marina film series in East Park.

This year the series will be sponsored by Charlevoix Cinema III.

"The support of new Charlevoix Cinema III owners Luther and Mary Kurtz will allow us to continue offering this slate of family-friendly films in a truly unique setting," authority executive director Keith Carey said. "This film series has been tremendously popular with families from its inception and is a nice reminder of why Charlevoix is such a terrific place to live and visit."

The films are projected on a large screen erected on the pavilion stage with sound provided by the pavilion's state-of-the-art audio system. Moviegoers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets and arrive early so youngsters can enjoy movie-themed activities and prizes prior to each show. Charlevoix Cinema III will also offer complimentary bags of popcorn next to the performance pavilion before and during each Monday Movies by the Marina showing.

The special-edition Venetian Vision showing will make its fifth appearance as part of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival activities. Venetian Vision will be shown at 8:45 p.m. on Monday, July 22, and the movie will again be selected by the community through online polling by the Charlevoix Courier and Downtown Charlevoix's Facebook page beginning in mid-July. The choices for the Ventian Vision movie will be announced closer to the event.

The complete 2013 outdoor movie schedule is as follows:

— 9:15 p.m. Monday, June 17, "Babe," (Rated G)

— 9:15 p.m. Monday, July 1, "The Lorax," (Rated G)

— 8:45 p.m. Tuesday, July 22, Venetian Vision movie to be determined by public voting

— 8:45 p.m. Monday, Aug. 19, "National Treasure," (Rated PG)

Free boating safety courses offered

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office will be offering free boater's safety classes on Saturday, June 1, and again Saturday, June 15.

All classes are free of charge. It is recommended that students, age 12 and up, eat prior to class or bring a small snack to class. Students receiving a satisfactory test grade will receive their Michigan Boating Safety Certificate at the conclusion of the course. Completion of this class is mandatory for individuals born after Dec. 31, 1978, to operate a personal watercraft; juveniles between the ages of 12 and 15 to operate a boat; and for anyone born on or after July 1, 1996, to operate a boat.

Note that individuals must be at least 14 to operate a personal watercraft, but must be within 100 feet of a parent, guardian or designee at least 21 years of age. Individuals born after Dec. 31, 1978, must have their boater's safety certificate in their possession when operating a personal watercraft. Individuals born on or after July 1, 1996, must also have their boater's safety certificate in their possession when operating a boat.

The June 1 course will be 9 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Charlevoix Yacht Club, while the June 15 class will be 9 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Melrose Township Hall.

Individuals can also take the boater's safety class on-line at the Michigan DNR website, although there is a fee for the on-line class. Upon successful completion of the on-line class individuals can print out their Michigan Boating Safety Certificate.

For further questions call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division at (231) 547-4461, ext. 320.

Students experience Lake Charlevoix

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

On Wednesday, a group of Charlevoix Middle School students took aim at a plastic model of a watershed — the area of land that drains into a river or lake — and sprayed it down with water.

They had just coated parts of the model with different powders representing different things that might drain into the watershed. Powdered hot chocolate represented sediment that might erode into rivers. Kool-Aid was sprinkled over yards, representing pesticides or herbicides.

When the students made it rain over the model with spray bottles, the powder dissolved and flowed into the plastic water basins.

"You can see the gooey water we're getting here," said Diane Strzelinski, a Boyne City-area resident, who, along with her husband, Ed, was demonstrating the watershed model.

The Strzelinskis were volunteering for the day aboard the Beaver Islander with the Lake Charlevoix Association. The association, along with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, sponsors a tour of Lake Charlevoix for each school in the county. Students visit stations that teach about different aspects of Lake Charlevoix, including a station about what lives in the benthic community — the insects living in the mud at the bottom of the lake — and a station about water safety, taught by the Coast Guard.

The tour has been taking place for 20 years. About 300 students take the tour each year, said volunteer Michael Buttigieg, which means about 6,000 students have cycled through the stations since the program's beginning.

"This is the way they need to learn about it, this hands-on kind of learning, instead of just reading about it out of books," said Buttigieg. "And this is the age they need to learn about it."

The Lake Charlevoix Association hopes by teaching students about Lake Charlevoix's water systems in this hands-on way, they will better learn to care for the lake and its surroundings.

"We think that it's a really important program to instill that love and care for Lake Charlevoix in kids in middle school so that they'll carry that with them for the rest of their lives," said Dan Mishler, president of the Lake Charlevoix Association.

That is math teacher Steve Hopkins's hope.

"They've been doing this for more than 20 years," he said. "If everybody in this county goes through this education, everybody might have a better respect for the area and want to take care of it. ... Without what you see here, we wouldn't be here."

Beaver Island's Holy Cross Church to get historical marker

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Holy Cross Church of Beaver Island was one of four sites recently approved by the Michigan Historical Commission to receive historical markers for four sites.

The markers were approved last week during a meeting where officials celebrated the commission's 100th anniversary.

One of the markers in Grand Rapids to recognize accomplishments of the Meijer retail chain.

The Grand Rapids marker will highlight the work of Hendrik and Fred Meijer, who pioneered the combination of discount department stores and supermarkets into a single "Thrifty Acres" store. Grand Rapids-based Meijer now operates in several Midwest states.

Other markers include the Duane Doty School in Wayne County, which opened in 1909 to serve Detroit's then-growing population; the Indian Lake Cemetery in Cass County, which has been in use since the 1840s.

They're among more than 1,700 Michigan historical markers.

County community foundation breaks ground on new office

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation will soon have a new home.

The organization recently became the owner of property in East Jordan and began renovations just a few weeks ago. The project has been in the works for more than a year, and the construction will continue over the coming months, with a proposed move-in date in late summer, foundation officials said in a news release.

Having outgrown its current office configuration, the foundation is pleased to have a permanent location and new offices, foundation president Chip Hansens aid.

"This past year we celebrated our 20th anniversary with the theme 'Deeply Rooted, Growing Stronger,' " Hansen said. "It seems fitting that we are putting down roots of ownership in Charlevoix County, deepening our commitment to the region and to bettering the lives of everyone who lives here."

The gift of the land and building (formerly the Quilt Cottage) came from Fred and Barbara Malpass, and the new construction was made possible by gifts from The Herbert H. and Grace A. Dow Foundation, the Frey Foundation, and the Malpass Foundation.

"We are so fortunate to have community members who believe in our mission and who are looking toward the future with us. Their foresight and generosity are creating the conditions for the community foundation to continue taking positive steps forward," foundation board chairwoman Valerie Snyder said.

Every space in the newly renovated facility has been designed to support the work of the foundation's staff. The facility will include private spaces for staff to conduct day-to-day business, as well as multifunctional spaces that can be utilized by staff in meetings with community members and the foundation's youth advisory council. The final layout includes four offices (with room to grow), one small conference room for meetings of six to eight people, and a larger meeting space to accommodate advisory committees and to meet the needs of local nonprofit agencies.

"We are growing in every way," Hansen said. "Our grant-making capacity, our assets, and our community engagement are all growing. Now we will have a permanent place to bring people together to support that growth for the long-term."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area. The foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses, and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments. Every year, a portion of the investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development, and various civic projects. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents and nonprofit organizations.

Since it was founded in 1992, the foundation's net assets have grown to more than $26 million, and grants and scholarships totaling more than $13 million have been distributed for the common good.

The foundation welcomes inquiries and grant requests. The next deadline for submitting a grant request is Oct. 1, 2013. For more information about grantmaking opportunities or about the community foundation, call 231/536-2440 or visit the foundation's website at www.c3f.org

Buxmann named 'Veteran of the Month'

The "Veteran of the Month" for May 2013 is George Buxmann Sr.

He was born March 22, 1924 in Fort Morgan, Colo., northeast of Denver, and was the ninth of 11 children. He later attended high school, in Dinuba, California, southeast of Fresno, and after completing the 10th grade, in 1940, Buxmann left school. Returning to Fort Morgan he worked to help support his family, following the Great Depression. In February of 1943 he went to work for Robert Baner, a local farmer, operating farming irrigation equipment until October 1943.

On Dec. 1, 1943 Buxmann was inducted into the Military Inactive Reserve Corps entering into active service on Dec. 9, 1943 in Windsor, Colo. Following basic training he was assigned to the U.S. Naval Training Center, Farragut, Idaho for additional training receiving qualifications and certificates in operations, repair and maintenance of Recordak and Model R enlarger automatic machines and operation and repair of all V-Mail machines. Buxmann was stationed in The Pacific Theater of Operations on Kwajalein Island, in the Marshall Islands chain, serving as a specialist photographer v-mail technician with Service Pacific Administration, V-Mail Central Pacific, U.S. Group Pacific Two.

Buxmann

Buxmann met Violet Irene Dodds, who was serving in the Navy, and on April 22, 1944 they were married in Fresno, Calif. On Jan. 17, 1946, at The U.S. Naval Personnel Separation Center, Shoemaker, Calif., Buxmann was awarded an Honorable Discharge having attained the rating of specialist photographer technician second class and received the following decorations and awards: The American Theater Medal, The Asiatic-Pacific Theater Medal and The Victory Medal.

Returning to civilian life Buxmann went to work for The Eastman Kodak Company, in Rochester, N.Y., as an equipment manager and traveled extensively for the company doing equipment repairs. After retiring in 1984 he moved to East Jordan in 1986 where he served in the East Jordan Police Department Auxiliary for seven years and later as a reserve officer for the Charlevoix County Sheriffs' Department for several more years. On Jan. 21, 1992 his wife passed away and later on Nov. 15, 2004, in Charlevoix, Buxmann married Midge (Bertha Louise Mills) Daniels, whom he had worked with at the sheriffs' department. Buxmann enjoyed talking on his ham radio equipment, visiting with his radio friends, repairing almost anything, listening to Midges' music with her band The Backwoods Maestros, but most of all he loved God, his family, his country and his home.

On May 21, 2012 George Buxmann Sr. answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Midge, his children, their families and friend George T. Lasater.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

County board hears criticism over decision on attending conference

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

The Michigan Recycling Coalition annual conference took place May 7-9 in Bay City, but nobody from the Charlevoix County recycling committee attended the event.

The committee had planned on sending two representatives, and had budgeted $600 for the purpose, but the idea was effectively quashed by a county board of commissioners decision at the end of April.

Recycling committee department head Frank Shaler questioned whether members of a committee can attend multi-day educational conferences using taxpayer money when attendance to the conference came up earlier this year. He informed the recycling committee that there may be a policy against that and the clerk would look into it.

It was later discovered that no such policy exists, but the committee should go before the board of commissioners for approval in order to be able to attend the conference, Shaler said.

At its meeting April 24, the board discussed developing a policy for whether non-staff employees of the county can attend such conferences. It also tabled the approval of the recycling committee's request, which put it past the registration deadline and meant no representative was able to attend the conference this year.

At the most recent county board meeting Wednesday, the topic came up again and several members of the public and of the recycling committee voiced dissatisfaction with the decision.

The recycling committee has attended that same conference for many years without any interference from the board of commissioners, said founding committee member Shirley Roloff.

"We've done it for years and brought back information we needed and that the county could use. Let's don't take everything we did to start the recycling program away from us."

> "We are not against people going to seminars...But, the question is how do we pay for it?"
> — Joel Evana, board chair

She attended the conference for a few years, said current committee member Michelle Rick-Biddick.

"I feel that it's a very important part of our recycling committee to be aware of what's going on in the rest of the state," Rick-Biddick said. "We always brought back a number of ideas and innovative thoughts ..."

Shaler spoke up in defense of the board decision and said that the county does have representation at the conference because the county's contracted hauler, American Waste, had an employee in attendance. Plus, he added, there is a recycling conference in Traverse City at the end of May that would be "cheaper."

"We are not against people going to seminars," said chair of the board Joel Evans. "But, the question is how do we pay for it? Do we approve every request that comes in?"

Commissioner Richard Gillespie said he would not be in favor of the committee attending a conference downstate, but that the one in Traverse City would be fine with him.

A policy should be developed, asserted commissioner Larry Sullivan, so that decisions can be made based on it.

"Are we just going to blow by that?" he asked.

"I think that if Larry wants to put forth the effort to work on (a policy), with Kevin, then present it at the internal government committee to come before the full board, I'm fine with that," said commissioner Chris Christensen.

He believes the board should be more concerned that the recycling committee's expenses exceeded revenue this year, he said, but agreed there should be a policy in place and that non-employees should be able to go to conferences, in some instances.

"There are so many policy and legal changes," said former county commissioner Shirlene Tripp during public comment. "We all need that education in order to make good, smart decisions. Everybody in this county is helping pay for that recycling ... I think we're cutting off our noses to spite our face."

Since the county began considering a split with its previous recycling processing contractor, Emmet County, then launched a five-month-long bid process, ultimately voting to end the county's five-year contract with its neighboring county before completion of a contract, backing a recommendation by the recycling committee, he has heard dissatisfaction from voters, said Evans.

"We've been accused of no honesty, no integrity and people tell us that they're not satisfied," he said. "This recycling thing has been quite an issue and we've had a lot of things coming against us based on decisions we've made. When people say, you're wrong, these are bad decisions, we should think about those things and maybe they're right and maybe we've made a wrong decision from time to time."

Evans directed Sullivan and human resources coordinator Kevin Shepard to work on developing a policy for non-staff attendance at conferences.

Dodgeball event raises money for school group

The Charlevoix Elementary Parent Teacher Organization hosted the first-ever Mom Son Rayder Dodge Ball Tournament for moms and sons of kindergarten through fifth graders on Saturday, May 11.

Every year the organization hosts the Daddy Daughter Dance and for several years, the organization looked for a complimentary event that would give moms and their sons a chance to do something special to do together as well. To that end the organization decided to host a mother-son dodge ball tournament on Mother's Day weekend.

The event took place at the Charlevoix High School gym and more than 100 people attended. Personal Graphics, Inc. donated spirit towels and water bottles for the participants. Dan Buday provided a sound system, and Mark Kage, father of fourth grader Matt Kage MC'd the event. The Charlevoix City Police Department and local firefighters were the "Offical Officals" and were on hand to call outs. Mom-son teams were encouraged to dress up and have fun with the event.

The proceeds for the event benefited the organization. The event was coordinated by Jen Vollmer, Heather Kage, Brenda Wright, Brenda Freds, and Erin Nickel.

Fundraiser planned for Boyne City-Charlevoix trail

A celebration to raise funds for phase two of a proposed recreational trail that, in its entirety, would stretch from Boyne City to Charlevoix will happen from noon-8 p.m. Wednesday, June 5, at The Villager Pub in Charlevoix.

A spaghetti dinner special and 24 draft micro-brewed beers will be available, as well as regular menu items. Proceeds from the special of the day and special beer selections will be donated to the Top of Michigan Trails Council trail fund. The fund has been set up to contribute $10,000 of a local match needed for approximately $800,000 in state and federal grants that will be used to build the second segment of the trail.

The segment, as planned, will run 3.3 miles along U.S. 31 and Boyne City–Charlevoix Road, beginning at Waller Road and extending to Quarter Line Road.

There will be a silent auction during the event. Items to be auctioned include travel packages, dining, entertainment, handcrafts and home or office art pieces.

"Please come and bring your wallet, we need the donations," said trail committee chair Michelle Rick-Biddick. "Our goal is (to raise) $10,000."

Members of the trail committee and county parks director Ross Maxwell will be available at the event to answer questions about the trail.

Those who can't make it to the June 5 fundraiser can send a check to the Top of Michigan Trails Council, memo BC-Charlevoix Trail; 445 East Mitchell St., Petoskey, 49770.

All funding has already been secured for the first phase of the trail, which will start in Boyne City and run three miles east. Construction on that segment is expected to begin early next year.

A total of five phases are planned in order to complete the entire trail and connect the two cities.

Charlevoix Garden Club's annual plant sale on which takes place at the corner of East Dixon and Mercer avenues is always popular with area gardeners.

Garden club plant sale set for May 25

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host its annual Memorial Weekend Plant Sale on Saturday, May 25.

Club members divide hundreds of perennials in order to offer them for sale at this once-a-year fundraiser. Organizers report that all the plants come from hardy stock having survived the area's four climate for years.

The proceeds from this sale enhance the civic gardens that are planted and maintained by this club of 100 plus members.

The plant sale will take place at the corner of East Dixon and Mercer avenues.

Sales begin at 8:30 a.m. sharp and will end around noon or whenever the last plant has been sold.

Garden gifts will also be offered at the sale.

The club requests payment in the form of cash or checks only.

Chandler Township focus of next history program

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's second History Speaker Series program of 2013 will be "History of Chandler Township," at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 21, in the Community Room in the lower level of the Boyne District Library, 201 East Main St. in Boyne City.

The guest speaker will be Micki Howard.

During the country's bicentennial, Micki Howard was co-chair of the Chandler Township Bicentennial Committee and researched the history of Chandler Township. From this work a slide-tape history was created as well as a quilt depicting the land ownership history of the area from the earliest settlers to 1976. Both were shown at the Chandler Bicentennial Celebration in 1976 and will be displayed at her program on May 21. In addition, Howard will relate stories about the logging town of Springvale, Cobbs and Mitchell, a large logging company which owned more than 70 percent of the land in the township at one time, and the "heart of the township," the township hall. Once a one room standard school, it is more than the present township hall, but also where residents celebrate weddings, baby showers, anniversaries, graduations, and memorial services. The township board works very hard to maintain the tin ceilings and the original look of the inside.

Light refreshments will be served. The event is free and open to the public. For more information, call (231) 582-5326.

Gaylord Country Club is just one of our Golf Club Card partners:

Founded in 1924, this semi-private club offers arguably the best green complexes found in northern Michigan. Unlike today's modern golf courses, which can take more time to play, Gaylord Country Club is a classic parkland design reminiscent of the early 20th century courses featuring close proximity from greens to tees, and a variety of designed holes allowing for a more enjoyable round in less time. We're one of the few private clubs in northern Michigan allowing public play anytime and invite you to become a member of our club for a day and experience the game of golf the way it was meant to be.

people to participate after typical work hours. He also noted that some sections of flower beds in the area of M-66 will be planted earlier in the day in the interest of safety. He said arrangements for volunteers from businesses such as Walgreens and Harbor Industries have already been made to plant those sections.

In another effort to further streamline planting, organizers will be taking advantage of offers from the Beaver Island Transportation Authority and the Beaver Island Boat Company to use the authority's bus to shuttle planting volunteers from place to place along the petunia path.

Wilkin noted that typically some sections of the route draw more volunteers for planting than others, resulting in some sections being done quickly, while other sections linger unplanted. This year, the bus will be available to transport volunteers (who are willing to keep working) from areas that are finished to areas that still need work.

Another element that won't be changing is the community appreciation picnic that will take place at the Odmark Pavilion in East Park when the planting is finished. This year during the picnic, crews from U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix will again be on hand with a display where people can stop by and get information about boater safety. Something new this year, the Charlevoix farmers market will be having its first outdoor market of the year on planting day and the market will have special hours on planting day — from 3-7 p.m. — to coincide with planting day festivities.

Beyond planting day

Wilkin said this year Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is expecting to need more help beyond planting day. During the past several years the organization has used a unique program to help dramatically cut what is its biggest cost next to purchasing the flowers — weeding. For the past three years the organization has been using inmates from the Charlevoix County Jail to provide the labor for the daunting task of trying to keeping the flower beds weed-free. The program, which has been popular among inmates who qualify for the program, costs Keep Charlevoix Beautiful just the cost of the corrections officer to oversee the work crew and the sheriff's office other expenses to monitor the inmates.

However, Wilkin said, this year it's looking like two things will hamper this element of the program. First, although the numbers vary from week to week, jail population numbers have been down and there are fewer inmates available for the work detail. Secondly, new laws governing monitoring devices for the prisoners on work details may make the program cost-prohibitive. That means that the organization will be asking for the community's help. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful officials are tentatively planning two "community weeds" from 3-7 p.m. on June 25 and Aug. 6. More details about those weeding events will be released as those dates approach, but Wilkin said organizers are hopeful they'll get a similar turnout to planting day to make the work go more quickly.

Donations still lagging

Another concern for the petunia program this year is that donations are down some from their usual pace. Wilkin said as of Wednesday, contributions were still off about 17.8 percent from where they were at this time last year. Anyone wishing to contribute to the effort, may do so by sending a check to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Making a basket case

In recent years, Wilkin explained, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has struggled with many of the logistics of the yearly petunia display. Several different issues have cropped up, from weeding, to finding the right variety of petunia that won't grow too big, but will stand up to the harsh conditions along a busy state highway, to finding the right combination of fertilizer and herbicides. Other problems have included losing sections of flowers to flooding in heavy rains or spillover from nearby homeowners' fertilizer. But the organization's board thinks an idea co-vice president Bo Boss hit upon recently, may solve many of these woes. But it involves something that can be difficult to introduce — especially when it involves something as steeped in tradition as Charlevoix's petunias: Change.

The board is considering the idea — possibly for next year — of abandoning using the narrow trench plowed behind the curb that has been home to the petunias for three decades, in favor of hanging baskets, similar to the 88 that already hang in the downtown, spaced about every 50 feet along the same five-mile route. Wilkin said under the plan the additional 300 baskets would hang from poles that would be placed between the sidewalk and the curb. He said the poles would be decorative and designed so they can be removed at the end of the summer to keep them from being damaged in the harsh winter elements. Wilkin said the current water truck could easily be modified to accommodate watering the baskets.

"The good thing about (the plan), if it works and looks good, it eliminates potentially every problem we have: weeds, flooding, fertilizers, all of it.

FILE PHOTO

Past participants in Operation Petunia.

Wilkin said preliminary estimates are that the cost of the baskets would be about the same as the individual flowers. He said there would be some initial additional cost outlay for the poles, but that cost would likely be recouped in a few seasons from the savings in upkeep of the display. Wilkin said with the baskets spaced just 50 feet apart, the board expects to get a similar effect to what the display has been since its inception.

To give the community an idea of what the basket-based display might look like six prototype baskets (three on each side of the road) will be placed near the top of the south Bridge Street hill this year.

Wilkin said the board hopes that the community will be receptive to the idea. He said the plan already has the endorsement of one person whose opinion should carry some weight: Dale Boss, the man who conceived of the petunia display in 1982 and who continues to water the petunias to this day.

The only drawback to the basket plan that organizers have hit upon so far is that it will eliminate the community camaraderie that has always been part of planting day, because the baskets would be delivered pre-planted (from seed). He said there will likely still be a few flower beds in the city that still would be planted, but that the organization will be brainstorming for a community event to take the place of planting day, should the basket plan move forward.

FIREPLACE

place. The result of that process has been a dramatically smaller design, that is now only a few feet tall with no chimney with a bowl-like design. Both the city planning commission and the downtown development authority voted to endorse the new design concept earlier this year. In April, the council voted to move forward to the final design phase of the re-designed fireplace.

But after last week's recall election, in which three opponents of the project won, the project's future remains is in limbo.

Under its own rules, for the council to rescind the original motion to approve building a fireplace in East Park, the council would have to take two actions, and both would need to pass by a 2/3 majority. First, the council would have to vote to suspend its rules against reconsidering past actions after the subsequent meeting has passed, and then it would have to vote to rescind the fireplace approval motion.

Of the remaining three council members, both Greg Stevens and Shane Cole have continued to express their support for the project. Lyle Gennett, who voted for the project initially has wavered in his support since the controversy erupted.

Although the agenda for the next city council meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 20, was not yet complete at press time Thursday, city executive assistant Linda Weller, who prepares the agendas prior to council meetings said three council members have requested that an agenda item with the wording "discussion to reconsider community fireplace" be placed on Monday's agenda.

Messages left at the homes of Porter, Gibson and Campbell late Wednesday seeking comment on what they hope to see happen regarding the fireplace at Monday's meeting were not returned before press time around 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

CONTRACT

reason because there's going to be a financial penalty for the early termination. So it's not done on a whim."

But, he added, it is completely up to the board what language should be in the contract.

"The six months, as far as I'm concerned, would be OK," commented Reinhardt.

"I'm with Larry to a degree on this," said Christensen. "I'm willing to compromise and I see they're willing to compromise. There were comments made that we don't enter into these contracts without a 60 day out. That that's standard policy. That was the discussion at that time (when the contract with Emmet County was ended). If we narrow the six months to three, I'd be more willing to understand that."

Because they had a 60 day termination clause in a five year contract, he believes a 120 day clause in a 10 year contract would be appropriate, said Christensen.

He made a motion to accept the contract but with 120 days, or four months, rather than six months of notice required before ending the contract without cause.

The motion passed 5-1, with Sullivan voting against it.

He disagrees with the termination fee and does not think it should be included in the contract, Sullivan said, on why he voted against the motion.

During public comment portion of the meeting, the chair of the county's recycling committee, Nancy Ferguson, asked that approval of the contract be delayed until May 22 so that her committee could review and provide input on the contract at its next meeting May 15.

"In the recycling committee bylaws, which were approved by the board, it states that... the recycling committee is asked to review contracts prior to review by civil counsel. We haven't been given the chance to do that," said Ferguson. Recycling department head Frank Shaler was asked to bring a copy of the contract to the committee's last meeting, said Ferguson, but did not. Ferguson's request was rejected.

The contract as amended will now be returned to American Waste officials to approve or reject.

FERRY

"Late last summer, the board made a decision that a hydraulic engine would replace the previous engine because hydraulic engines are relatively efficient and can easily be serviced by road commission employees. Once that was decided, in August, they contacted Seacraft Design, an engineering and naval architectural company out of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., to put together drawings for the changes to the vessel, Hamilton said. They signed a contract with the company last fall and design work began.

"The idea was that we would have the drawings in January. Then, it would take 10 days to two weeks for the Coast Guard to approve them and we'd be on our way," said Hamilton.

That's not how it worked out.

The transportation authority did not get the drawings until April. The members worked to get everything done that could be without the drawings, Hamilton said, but the regulatory arm of the Coast Guard out of Sault Ste. Marie advised them to not do any construction until the drawings were approved, or risk spending money on work that might not follow code and not be allowed.

"If we didn't have permission from the Coast Guard and it wasn't approved, we would have had to undo the work," he explained. "We've had the engine for months. And finally, the prints got approved and now we're at a point where it's full steam ahead. We're hoping to have it in before Memorial Day."

The work, in all, is expected to cost around $200,000. But, fares will not be raised, Hamilton promised at the meeting. The changes, he said, will actually make the boat less expensive to operate. Plus, the authority has been saving money for a number of years for this project and did not have to borrow to make it happen, he said.

The new ferry will be more fuel efficient and will not require the frequent oil changes it once did.

The engine is now mounted on the deck rather than below deck, which means it can be serviced quickly and efficiently rather than requiring the boat be shut down for a few hours to be serviced.

Another improvement is that the placement of the new wheelhouse to one side of the vessel rather than in the center means it will be able to better accommodate larger vehicles, such as cars with trailers or ambulances.

Last Friday, the ferry was moved from the Boyne City boat launch, at the city's request. It was put into the water and is sitting at the One Water Street docks.

The Coast Guard has not issued final approval for the ferry to operate because there is still work to be done. There's currently a hole where the old pilot house was that has to be covered up, said Hamilton. But, permission to perform all the remaining tasks has been issued.

"As soon as it's done, the Coast Guard will come in (to inspect it) and give final approval," he said.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix's Shane Sutherland puts the tag on a Harbor Springs baserunner attepting to steal second base in the first game of the Rayders' double-header against Harbor Springs on Tuesday.

Rayders sweep Rams, ranked 10th in state

Charlevoix 7-7,
Harbor Springs 0-2

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity baseball team slipped one notch from number nine to number 10 in this week's Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association Division III rankings, but it wasn't because they lost games. In fact, the Rayders posted two wins over conference rival Harbor Springs on Tuesday, winning 7-0 in the opener and 7-2 in the nightcap.

Austin Putman had a pair of hits, while Noah Certa, Tommy Zipp and Nate Moon also had hits as the Rayders blanked Harbor Springs in the opener.

Certa then added two more hits in the nightcap as the Rayders improved to 16-2 overall, 10-0 league.

"We didn't have a big inning all night, but we scored in seven out of 10 innings that we batted in," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Harbor Springs did a nice job keeping our bats down a bit, but we took advantage of almost every opportunity they gave us."

Also in the opener, Zipp drove in a pair of runs, while Certa, Will Telgenhof and Moon all had an RBI.

Zipp was the winning pitcher as he struck out seven, walked one and gave up just two hits over six innings.

"We ran the bases very aggressively which led to a few runs and we had some very good pitching with Tommy throwing a shutout and Shane nearly getting one himself," Telgenhof added. In the second game for Charlevoix, Hunter Cox had a two-out, two-run single in the bottom of the fifth to give the Rayders some breathing room.

JJ Bottomley had a pair of hits in the second game, while Luke Klinger, Putman, Zipp and Shane Sutherland all had a hit apiece.

Sutherland was the winning pitcher as he struck out nine, didn't issue a walk and scattered seven hits and two runs over six innings.

"Will Telgenhof had a great day throwing behind the plate too," Telgenhof said.

"He threw out two runners, both in key situations when Harbor was trying to get back in it."

Walda gave up just three earned runs in a complete game performance in game one for Harbor. Walda struck out three in the game, with little bat support behind him. Jake Hickman, Aaron Burdick and Zach Gorman all singled for the Rams in the game. In game two for the Rams, Hickman took the loss on the mound through three innings.

Nate Vansloten pitched two innings in relief of Hickman.

Mitch Wallin led the Rams with two singles, while Hickman, Adam Sydow, Vansloten and Andy Morse and Michael Cannon singled.

The Rayders games on Friday, May 10 against Kalkaska was called off because of bad weather. The games are scheduled to be made up on Friday, May 24. First pitch is set for 2 p.m. On Thursday the Rayders were slated to travel to Pellston and on Saturday they will host Grand Rapids Creston with the first pitch slated for 10 a.m.

JV BASEBALL

Rayders fall to Harbor at Rudyard

The Charlevoix Rayder JV baseball team lost 6-5 to Harbor Springs in the Rudyard JV tournament on Saturday, May 11.

Alex Kleiber led Charlevoix's offense with two singles and a stolen base.

Avery Penfold, Jordan Adkins, Adam Michaud, and Devin Largent also added singles. Jake Seger scored Charlevoix's first run of the day, but had his season end with a leg injury.

Spencer Bruce, Hunter Cox, and Nate Moon all pitched combining to give up only four hits while striking out eight.

The Rayders' second game of the day ended after only one inning because of rain and snow. Kenen Borths struck out the side in his one inning on the mound. Will Telgenhof scored on Nate Moon's single.

Rayders roll past Ramblers, nip Liberty

BOYNE CITY — Hannah Herboldsheimer delivered two goals for the Charlevoix girls' soccer team as the Rayders rolled over Boyne City 8-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference meeting on Monday in Boyne City.

Herholdsheimer's first goal came at 1:05 in the first half on the assist of Anna Way's corner kick, while her second came at 6:16 in the first half from Maura Brandi.

Elizabeth Way, Kylee Scholten, Lily Matchett, Devon Bottomley, Katie Kiteley and Bailee Stevens also scored in the game.

Stevens and Gloria Greene shared the duties in goal, with each recording a save in the game. Assists came from Olivia Storm, Leah Davis, Bottomley, Kelsey Engstrom, Scholten and Herholdsheimer.

With the win, Charlevoix improves to 12-5 overall on the season, with a 9-2 record in league play.

On Saturday, the Rayders went 1-2 as they competed in the 21st annual Petoskey Girls Soccer Invitational.

The Rayders fell 3-1 in game one against the Lady Northmen.

Junior forward Katie Kiteley scored the lone Rayder goal at 17:15 in the second half of play. Kiteley scored on a pass from sophomore stopper Leah Davis. Sophomore keeper Gloria Greene had four saves in the first half and senior keeper Bailee Stevens had five saves in the second half.

In game two Charlevoix fell to Ann Arbor Skyline 3-0. The Rayders had three shots on goal. Keeper Gloria Greene had six saves while Bailee Stevens had eight.

"The first two games applied high pressure to our defense," Rayder coach Pete Scholten sadi. "We just weren't rotating like we should and both teams were allowed to take shots inside our eighteen that we just can't allow."

In game three the Rayders defeated Traverse City Liberty 3-0.

The Rayders were quick to score in the first half. Freshman forward Kylee Scholten connected on a cross from senior forward Hannah Herboldshiemer to put Charlevoix on the board at 10:32 in the first half. Scholten returned the favor about one minute later with a cross to Herboldsheimer for goal. Senior forward Bailee Stevens had a one touch bullet off on a cross from sophomore forward Grace Whitley. Steven's goal came with less than 30 seconds left in the first half.

Because of heavy snow showers taking place at the time, the game was ended early in the middle of the second half with a final score of 3-0. The Rayders then joined their opponents in the middle of the field to make snow angles.

On Thursday, May 9, the Rayders won a hard-fought match the Traverse City Liberty 1-0.

Charlevoix senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer scored on a pass from the corner from junior forward Kaitlin Hinkley at 37:46 in the first half of play for the game's only goal.

The Rayder attack put up 18 shots on goal.

"The Liberty is a much improved team," Charlevoix coab Pete Scholten said. "They played a great game. We had plenty of opportunity but had trouble finishing."

Scholten pointed to senior defender Sydney Carlson as a standout in the game.

"Syd cleared the ball several times in key situations," he said.

Sophomore goalkeeper Gloria Greene shut out the Liberty with eight saves.

With the win the Rayders improve to 10-3 overall and 8-2 in the conference.

The Rayders were slated to host conference rival Elk Rapids on Thursday, May 16 and Glen Lake on Friday, May 17

Rayders finish second at Boyne Invite

BOYNE FALLS — The Charlevoix High School girls' tennis team won four of eight flights en route to placing second Tuesday at the Boyne Invitational at Boyne Mountain.

Grayling won the meet with 19 points, followed by the Rayders, 15; Boyne City, 12; and Petoskey JV, two.

"This was a makeup of the Boyne Invite originally scheduled last Friday," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Not all teams could make it, but it was a great day for tennis and the girls got to play three matches, which is just what they needed.

"This was a great day because the girls were able to play several matches in one day which helped them prepare for regionals on Thursday."

For the Rayders, Lexie Barnes at No. 2 singles and Cassidy Peebles and Karley Pearsall at No. 1 doubles were both undefeated and won their respective flights.

Barnes defeated Grayling's Rachel Jenson, 7-5, 6-0, in the championship match, while at No. 1 doubles Pearsall and Peebles def. Grayling's Katrina Foguth and Brittany Turner, 6-1, 6-2, in the title match.

Kelsea Stevens at No. 3 singles also won two-of-three matches and won her flight, as did Madi Carey at No. 1 singles.

At No. 1 singles, Grayling's Danielle Dami def. Carey, 6-4, 6-0; in the title match, while at No. 3 singles, Stevens def. Grayling's Carlie Sloan, 7-5, 6-1. Also at No. 3 singles, Sloan def. Boyne City's Carly Kruzel, 4-1, 4-1, and Kruzel def. Stevens, 4-2, 2-4 (11-9). Stevens, Sloan and Kruzel all earned a first-place tie.

At No. 4 singles, Grayling's Hailey Petty won all three matches and topped Boyne City's Sam Orban, 6-4, 4-2 in the title match.

Charlevoix's Mallory Murray and Emily Roloff won all three matches at No. 2 doubles including a 6-2, 6-0 win over Grayling's Gloria Nielson and Denise Peters in the title match, while at No. 3 doubles Grayling's Katie Profitt and Lilie Carr def. Boyne City's Lauren Robert and Sabrina Nemecek, 4-0, 4-2, in the final.

At No. doubles, Boyne City's Bri Burnell and Sydney Fisher def. Grayling's Sydney Deano and Rachel Miller, 5-4 (7-4), 2-4 (10-4), in the title match.

For the Petoskey JV, wins came at No. 1 singles where Mary Louise Mooridian def. Claire Wellman of Boyne City, 4-1, 5-4 (10-8), and at No. 4 singles Leah Boucher def. Charlevoix's Taylor Markgraf, 4-2, 4-5 (7-9) (10-6).

"I was so pleased to give the trophy to Grayling," Boyne City Coach Susan Lahti said. "I have coached in the Lake Michigan Conference for 13 years and I don't recall Grayling ever winning a team trophy at a tournament. They were well deserving of their win. Their team was so supportive of one another and their sportsmanship was impressive."

In other recent Charlevoix tennis action, the Rayders defeated East Jordan 7-1 and fell to the Petoskey JV 5-3 and to Traverse City St. Francis, 8-0.

On Wednesday the Rayders tied with Traverse City Central 4-4.

Winning flights for the Rayders were No. 1 Singles Madi Carey 7-6, 7-5; No. 2 singles Lexie Barnes, 6-0, 6-1; No. 3 singles Kelsea Stevens 7-6 7-2, 6-3, and doubles team Mallory Murray and Emily Roloff, 6-2, 6-1.

JUNIOR GOLF

Junior Golf scholarship deadline May 19

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf program recently mailed scholarship applications to those previous program participants who are eligible to be considered for a week-long golf camp on the campus of Ferris State University. To be eligible, youth must have attended at least half of the 2012 summer instructional sessions and be at least 12 years-old.

For the past 17 years, five-to-seven area junior golf participants have been selected annually to attend the golf camp. Program director Dean Davenport noted that the deadline for applications for the scholarships to be returned is May 19.

Anyone who believes his or her child should have received an application and did not, may request one by contacting Davenport at (231) 796-7252.

Sam Supernaw Sr. treasurer of the Junior Golf program's board, noted that the Junior Golf program is supported through its sole annual fundraiser — local professional Marty Joy's annual Hickory Hundred event during which Joy plays 100 holes of golf in one day and donor pledge their financial support.

The program is also supported by many volunteers who donate their time to serve as mentors and area golf courses, including the city of Charlevoix's Charlevoix Golf Club, the Charlevoix Country Club, Belvedere Golf Club and Antrim Dells, who open their facilities to the program free of charge

"It's one of the reasons our program has been rated in the top 13 in the nation by the National Junior Golf Association," Supernaw said.

After the scholarship applications are evaluated, winners will be announced on June 8. Also on this date Junior Golf registration and orientation sessions for 8-17-year-olds will take place in the morning at the city's Charlevoix Golf Club. Further details on program registration will be announced soon.

The Petoskey boys' golf team used a season-best score of 321 to take first place at the the eight-team Jim Glynn Invitational Tournament at Belvedere Golf Club Monday.

Traverse City West finished second at 329 folloed by host Charlevoix in third with a 339, followed by Kalkaska, 344; Elk Rapids, 371; Harbor Light Christian, 398; Charlevoix JV 406; and Grayling, 435.

Aside from Big North member Traverse City West, the mix of Lake Michigan Conference and Northern Lakes teams were a change for the Northmen.

"It's always nice to play some of the local schools," Petoskey coach Chad Loe said. "We invite some of the local schools to our invitational, but it always nice to get a look at what some of the local kids are doing."

Petoskey's Tyler Speigl shot 77 and was the medalist, while the Northmen's Cam Ludlow tied for second with an 80, along with West's Ryan Sievers and Petoskey's Silas Lee.

Charlevoix's Chandler Novotny and Steven Gaston of Traverse City both shot 81, good for third place.

Brad Rizzo of Charlevoix wrapped up an 82 on the day, while seven players tied for the No. 5 spot with an 84, including Petoskey's Jesse Peters.

Also for Petoskey, Colin Green shot 90, while Adam McCain finished with a 93 on the day.

Also for Charlevoix Corbin Turkelson scored an 87; Noah Jeakle, 89; Tanner Catt, 97; and Ryan Joy, 110.

The Charlevoix JV was led by Joe Rich with a score of 92, followed by Sam Stewart with a 102; JJ Wachler, 104; Montana Thompson, 108; and Tanner Drost, 112.

Kirk Muller finished with an 85 to lead Harbor Light, as Josh Walker followed with a 90. Josh Curtis shot 101; Ethan Bump, 122; Jake Anderson, 125; and Victor Curtis, 129.

NOTICE OF

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The Mortgage described below is in default: Mortgage made by Susan M. Barr-Stemen, as Trustee of Susan M. Barr Trust dated July 11, 1995, as Mortgagor, to Business Lenders, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, as Mortgagee, dated July 13, 2006 and recorded July 19, 2006 in Liber 756, Page 767, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was assigned by Business Lenders, LLC to TSKEE Enterprises, LLC, a Florida limited liability company, as Assignee, by virtue of an Assignment of Mortgage dated February 14, 2013 and recorded March 5, 2013 in Liber 1022, Page 498, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Assignment of Mortgage"). The legal description contained in the Assignment of Mortgage was corrected by an Affidavit of Scrivener's Error dated March 27, 2013 and recorded April 4, 2013 in Liber 1025, Page 533, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan. The balance owing on the Mortgage is $797,476.33 at the time of this Notice. The Mortgage contains a power of sale and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt secured by the Mortgage, or any part of the Mortgage. Take notice that on June 7, 2013 at 11:00 a.m., local time, or any adjourned date thereafter, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at public vendue at the place of holding the Circuit Court within Charlevoix County. The Assignee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt secured by the Mortgage as stated above (which includes all costs and expenses paid by the Assignee to collect the debt and to protect its interest in the property, all as provided in the Mortgage), plus interest on the amount due at the rate of 2.25% above the Prime Rate as published in the Wall Street Journal, (currently 5.50% per annum at the time of this Notice) and any amount subsequently paid by the Assignee to protect its interest in the property. The property to be sold at foreclosure is all of the real estate located in the Townships of Melrose and Chandler, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described more particularly as follows: PARCEL 1: That part of Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, Chandler Township, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, Melrose Township, more fully described as: Beginning at a point in the centerline of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13, 18, 19 and 24; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 361.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said centerline on the arc of a 400 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence North 448.80 feet; thence North 34 degrees 35 minutes East 256.66 feet; thence North 23 degrees 54 minutes East 284.48 feet; thence North 12 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 336.12 feet; thence East 248.56 feet; thence South 06 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds West 428.54 feet; thence South 88 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds East 393.42 feet; thence South 03 degrees 35 minutes 15 seconds East 227.80 feet; thence South 02 degrees 46 minutes 45 seconds West 170.12 feet; thence South 14 degrees 43 minutes 30 seconds East 328.43 feet; thence South 37 degrees 17 minutes 45 seconds East 161.25 feet; thence South 39 degrees 11 minutes East 182.11 feet; thence South 20 degrees 49 minutes East 201.80 feet; thence South 34 degrees 42 minutes East 300.70 feet; thence South 11 degrees 47 minutes West 96.96 feet; thence South 42 degrees 23 minutes 30 seconds East 114.95 feet; thence South 17 degrees 55 minutes 10 seconds East 181.42 feet; thence South 18 degrees 52 minutes 40 seconds West 374.11 feet; thence South 00 degrees 03 minutes East 1197.77 feet; thence South 89 degrees 10 minutes 30 seconds West 629.60 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 1106.55 feet to the Point of Beginning; EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, for the Point of Beginning; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence South 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds East along the centerline of Spring Valley Road to the Point of Beginning; being a part of the Northeast 1/4 of Section 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West; AND FURTHER EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: That part of Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, described as: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13 and 24; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the center line of Spring Valley Road 736.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said center line on the center line on the arc of a 400.00 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284.00 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence South to the Point of Beginning. Up in smoke

East Park fireplace project flames out

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier editor

After nine months of divisiveness that surrounded it, a controversial decision to construct an outdoor community fireplace in the city's East Park went up in smoke Monday.

Gibson

Porter

In the necessary three consecutive motions and by the necessary 2/3 margin, the council voted 4-2 at its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday to rescind the approval of the fireplace project given by the council on Aug. 9 and to not proceed with the project.

Campbell

Gennett

The meeting was the council's first since a May 7 recall election in which three council members who were among those who approved the project in August, were defeated by challengers who were opposed to the project. In the election, Shirley Gibson defeated Jill Picha, Jeffrey Porter defeated Dennis Kusina and Gabe Campbell defeated Bryan Vollmer.

Each of Monday's three votes that led to doing away with the fireplace were split the same way, with Gibson, Porter, Campbell and Lyle Gennett voting to do away with the project and council members Shane Cole and Greg Stevens voting against the

Charlevoix Memorial Day observances

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix community will mark Memorial Day, Monday, May 27 with several special observances, and one special memorial dedication.

As has been tradition for many years, the Charlevoix Area Veterans will host a series of events beginning at 9 a.m. with a brief memorial service at the flagpole at Brookside Cemetery.

Then, beginning at about 9:30 a.m., participants in the annual Memorial Day parade will begin assembling on East Garfield Street near the Charlevoix Middle School.

The parade will begin at that location at 10 a.m. and travel north on Bridge Street, pausing for a wreath-laying at the veterans memorial in Veterans Park. The parade will then continue to East Park, where a Memorial Day ceremony will take place in the Odmark Pavilion.

The Charlevoix Area Veterans Color Guard is actively seeking participation in the parade by any veteran or civic group. Any group interested in participating should contact Joe Seidel at (231) 675-4444 for further information. The color guard is also asking for names of the youngest and oldest veterans in the area. Those individuals are invited to participate in the parade if possible, and will be recognized during the service. Rides will be provided by the Charlevoix Street Legends Car Club for any veterans who wish to participate in the parade, but who are unable to walk the parade route.

Also participating in the parade will be a marching unit comprised of members of the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library organization. This group will carry a banner and signs listing the names of area fallen soldiers. Nancy Porter will be reading off the names of the fallen during the ceremony in East Park.

Anyone wishing to participate in this element of the parade is asked to wear dark clothing from the waist down and white clothing from the waist up. Each person will be given a flag and patriotic scarf to wear.

Also on Memorial Day, the Norwood Area Historical Society will host a service at the Village of Norwood Cemetery beginning at 8:45 a.m. Immediately following the service the Norwood Area Historical Society will be hosting an open house at the Norwood Schoolhouse/Historical Society building. The event is open to the community and all are invited.

Finally, following the ceremony in East Park (at about 11:15) a.m. a dedication ceremony will take place at Kipke Filed for a memorial honoring U.S. Army Maj. Douglas F. Sloan, a Charlevoix High School graduate who was killed while serving in Afghanistan on Oct. 31, 2006. The memorial grew out of an effort by Sloan's friends, family and the community to honor him.

Board approves coaches, cuts still possible

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education tentatively approved its slate of coaches for the coming fall sports season Monday, but in the face of a lingering $300,000 budget deficit the future of those athletic programs remains very much in limbo.

Head varsity football coach Ron Bindi was approved at a February regular meeting. At Monday's regular board meeting John Haan was approved for the assistant varsity football position; Todd Klinger was approved for the head junior varsity football position; Cris Havens, junior high football coach; Audra Randall as varsity volleyball coach; Bethany Pearson as junior varsity volleyball coach; Ken and Mary Plude for boys and girls cross country coaches, respectively; Jon Boss for boys varsity soccer coach and Erik Landteigen for boys varsity tennis coach.

Gendron

Originally, the board member Nancy Allison made the motion to recommend the coaches' hire pending budget approval, with Dick Joseph seconding the motion. But discussion over whether some of these sports teams may be cut for the 2013-2014 school year made some board members nervous.

"I'll pick on Todd Klinger. We're hiring him as a J.V. football coach, but we're not establishing a pay. We're not even really saying we'll have J.V. football," said board trustee Dick Joseph. "It's kind of a nebulous thing to do."

After some discussion, the board amended the motion to include pending contract approval. So currently, the board has unanimously approved the hire of these coaches, but whether all those coaches will be hired depends on the 2013-2014 budget the school will approve, and the contracts the coaches will have with the school.

Pending budget and contract approval, coaches' contracts are slated to begin Sept. 1.

The board of education will discuss more budget cuts at a June 3 work session meeting, depending on whether information about what cuts should be recommended can be gathered by June 3.

"We're shooting for the 3rd, but we're trying to get things in order for the meeting," said district superintendent Bob Gendron. "The biggest thing is we have to have our ducks in a row."

Gendron said the board is looking to cut nearly $300,000 more from the school's budget, though the school has already "constructed a very, very conservative budget," said Gendron.

He said the board will discuss reductions across all school programming.

Project will spruce up southern city entrance

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

A cooperative effort between Charlevoix Township, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, St. Marys Cement and several volunteers is making one of three main entrances to "Charlevoix the Beautiful" a little a little more — well, beautiful.

Charlevoix landscape architect Ken Polakowski has been spearheading the idea of sprucing up the entrances to the city since 2007.

Polakowski said the purposes of the project is "to establish an attractive, unified and stable highway corridor landscape character, improve curb appeal for businesses and provide an easier and safer way finding for highway users."

Polakowski said working with the Charlevoix County Planning Department with the assistance of now-retired planning director Larry Sullivan and Brian Kelly, from the county GIS office, the concept was developed to focus on the three-mile section of U.S. 31 from M-66 to Old U.S. 31, which touches portions of the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Marion and Norwood townships.

"After three years of public presentations to city and township officials, local service clubs, public forums and the Michigan Department of Transportation, public support for the enhancement concept was secured and the decision to focus on ... a highly visible area at the Bells Bay Road intersection in Charlevoix Township was selected.

Nancy Rajewski, a Charlevoix Township trustee, led the township's effort to implement the project.

Showing their support for the project, which primarily involves landscaping including planting trees, perennials and grasses, the township board has set aside $53,000 for the project. St. Marys Cement has also offered a $20,000 contribution and the Charlevoix Area Garden Club recently donated $10,000 to the cause.

The garden club presented a $10,000 check to Polakowski and Rajewski, for the project at its May 14 meeting.

Garden club officials noted that the money for the donation comes from the club's annual fundraising efforts such as its Memorial Day weekend plant sale, July garden walk and October bulb sale.

The club's members also hope that its contribution will inspire others in the community to contribute to the effort's future phases.

"The community has strongly supported each of these yearly events and now the community can see their generosity returning to the community" garden club president Peggy Brennan said. "This is the beginning of a major beautification of our community and we are proud to make a contribution to it."

The total cost of the project in the bid accepted by the township for the project was about $61,000. Charlevoix Township Supervisor Chuck Center said thanks to the contributions, the leftover money from what the township had set aside will now be rolled over to help fund the

Grant may help county with costs for Beaver Island facility

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

It is estimated to cost $1.2 million to build, but a proposed road commission, transit and sheriff's department garage on Beaver Island might not require a lump sum quite that large directly out of the county's coffers.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted Wednesday to support the county road commission in its application for a $720,000 federal grant for construction of the proposed building: a Transportation Investment Generating Economic Recovery or TIGER grant.

The county agreed to provide an equal amount of matching funds toward the project.

The road commission submitted its application earlier this year and learned that of nearly 1,000 applicants, it has made it to final review among only 75 others.

"If we can get away with $720,000 instead of $1.2 million, I'm all for that," said commissinner Chris Christensen. "That's a good compromise in my mind."

Also at its meeting Wednesday, the county board of commissioners voted 3-2 against appointing former county board of commissioner Shirlene Tripp to the county parks and recreation committee. Tripp was the sole applicant for the position that was left vacant by Ralph Harmon at the end of last year and that runs through the end of 2013.

As a commissioner, Tripp served as a liaison to the parks committee.

Commissioners Christensen and Larry Sullivan voted in favor of appointing Tripp to the committee, commissioners Ron Reinhardt, George Lasater and chair of the board Joel Evans voted against it and commissioner Richard Gillespie was absent.

Lasater and Evans say they made the decision based on requests from members of the parks committee and Reinhardt said he believes Tripp has a different stance on hunting than he does.

"I'm for hunting," he said. "She said she was for not having it" at a county-owned park near Boyne City.

The seat on the committee will remain empty until another candidate applies for and is successfully appointed to the position.

Youth committee awards $26,160 in grants

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation Youth Advisory Committee has distributed $26,150 in grants this spring to eight local nonprofit agencies to fund programs that benefit young people.

Started in 1992, the youth advisory committee was organized to engage local high school students in philanthropy, while engaging them in leadership roles. Sixteen students, representing Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Northwest Academy high schools, comprise the group.

"YAC" has been such an awesome experience," said committee member Brandon Arp of Charlevoix High School. "It has helped me become more of a leader and understand what philanthropy really means. It has been an honor to serve on the YAC team."

Brandon was also the secretary for the group's executive committee.

During each grant cycle, the youth committee conducts formal interviews of the organizations submitting proposals to learn more about the proposed projects.

"I am constantly amazed by the ideas these organizations come up with, and with each grant-making session it is extremely difficult to choose which ideas we want to help support," said Casey Keane of East Jordan High School, a senior committee member and the vice president of the executive committee.

The following agencies received committee support this spring:

— Camp Daggett, $2,500, to replace the pickle ball court and equipment

— Challenge Mountain, $4,500, to purchase a speed boat for water sports programs

— Char-Em United Way, $1,500, for the Dolly Parton Imagination Library Program.

— Charlevoix County 4-H, $5,500, for scholarships for low income students

— Jordan River Arts Council, $2,360, for a women's issues art exhibit

— McLaren Northern Michigan Foundation, $3,800, for the Child Bereavement Program — Planned Parenthood of West and Northern Michigan, $5,000, for the Smart Choices Technology Initiative

— Raven Hill Discovery Center, $4,800, for the Mobile Access Project

The Youth Fund, from which the committee directs grants, was made possible through an endowed fund that reached $1 million in 2001. Since its inception, the committee has been able to grant out and support more than $750,000 in projects and programs that benefit Charlevoix County youth. The current market value of the Youth Fund remains well above the $1 million mark at nearly $1,150,000.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds – all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come.

To learn more about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, including how to make a gift to the Youth Fund, visit www.c3f.org, or call (231) 536-2440.

Community pool, humane society to host 'Doggie Swim' fundraiser

Charlevoix Area Community POOL

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool and the Charlevoix Area Humane Society are teaming up to offer a fun fundraiser for your furry friends.

The pool will host the first-ever George Wahl Memorial Doggie Swim on Saturday, June 1, at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, 11905 U.S. 31 North.

The event offers owners an opportunity to let their dogs swim in the pool just prior to the pool's annual draining and cleaning.

"Dog friendly dogs" are invited to swim for 30 minute sessions starting at 5 p.m., 5:30 p.m. or 6 p.m. for dogs 50 pounds or less. For dogs more than 50 pounds the times are 6:30 p.m., 7 p.m., or 7:30 p.m.

The cost to participate is $15 per dog for a 30 minute swim.

Event organizers said each pooch will receive a tennis ball upon entry and a treat upon exit. Owners will not be permitted in the pool with their pets.

Pool officials said the event is named in honor of George Wahl who they described as "an avid swimmer and great friend to the Charlevoix Area Humane Society."

"In honor of his memory, this annual event will benefit two wonderful community resources in which George greatly believed," pool officials said in a news release.

Following the Doggie Swim, the pool will be closed for its annual drain, repairs, and cleaning. The pool will reopen Monday, June 10.

To sponsor the event or make a contribution to the pool or Charlevoix Area Humane Society in George's name, send a check to 11905 US 31 North, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

For more information, call (231) 547-0982 or visit the pool's website at www.charlevoixpool.org.

Lake monitoring volunteers needed

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is looking for volunteers to monitor lakes of all sizes throughout Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Antrim counties for the Volunteer Lake Monitoring Program.

A free training will be offered from 10 a.m.-noon Friday, May 24, at the Inland Waterway Museum in Alanson.

During the training, volunteers will review the lake monitoring program and go over methods for data collection. Afterwards, attendees will have an opportunity to practice monitoring procedures during a pontoon boat ride on Crooked Lake.

Volunteers committed to monitoring their lake once a week during the months of June, July and August are provided the necessary equipment and supplies to complete their monitoring. A boat is required to do the sampling each week and is not provided by the watershed council.

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has coordinated the Volunteer Lake Monitoring program since 1986. Over the last few decades, volunteer monitors have generated a remarkable amount of data for more than 25 lakes. This data is used regularly on work to improve lake management and protect the water quality and ecosystem integrity of Northern Michigan's lakes.

The watershed council uses volunteer data to characterize lakes, assess water quality, and discern both short-term changes and long-term trends in the lakes of Northern Michigan.

If you are interested in monitoring a lake this summer and need more information or if you would like to register for the free training session, please contact Kevin Cronk at (231) 347-1181 or by kevin@watershedcouncil.org.

Additional information about this program is also available on the watershed council website at www.watershedcouncil.org

How common is rare?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

We are likely to value something that is rare. Rare gems, rare historic artifacts or rare baseball cards. We might even value rare plants or animals.

I have just finished reading a book titled "The Kingdom of Rarities," by Eric Dinerstein. Dinerstein is the chief scientist with the World Wildlife Fund. The book reminded me of a profound biological truth which seems to defy common sense. Common sense is seldom a useful guide to truth, and in this case, common sense is profoundly wrong.

The biological truth is that most (maybe as many as 80 or 90 percent) of plant and animal organisms on earth are actually rare. It somehow does not seem possible, yet it is surely true.

I can provide a personal example. Near Luther College in Iowa, where I taught for 30 years, there is a small patch (less than 200 acres) of what is called native prairie. It has never been plowed or planted to anything. It has never been grazed by domestic animals, and it has been periodically burned for the past 50 years, to imitate what happened to it before European settlement. It looks much like what most of the state of Iowa looked before Europeans, cattle and mowers arrived.

There are roughly 250 kinds of plants known to occur on that small patch. There are at least eighty kinds of spiders, compared to four in the surrounding corn and grain fields. I observed and studied that prairie for 30 years. I could easily provide you with a list of 25 or 30 kinds of flowering plants and grasses that make up most of the vegetation there. There are a number of kinds of plants that I have only found once in 30 years, and at least a hundred different kinds that I have never seen. It would make sense to describe those as rare.

Even after 30 years of careful observation, about half of the kinds of plants at that prairie patch are somewhere between rare and extremely rare.

Dinerstein focuses on rare animals all around the world, and finds no easy answer to the question of why so many kinds of organisms are rare. He mentions at length the Kirtland's warbler, Michigan's most famous rare bird. People come from great distances for a glimpse of that rare creature.

In 1971 there were only about 400 Kirtland's warblers in the world. They summer in young jack pine forests in Northern Michigan, but spend eight months of the year in the Bahamas and adjacent Caribbean islands. Have humans destroyed the places the warblers live? Not so much. In Michigan they are confined to young second growth jack pine stands where they nest on the ground. In the Bahamas they live better in places that have been taken over for human habitat. Their basic food sources in the Bahamas are encouraged by human disturbance.

Kirtland's warblers are rare because the places they can nest and the rigors of a 2,000 mile migration make their lives difficult. Most plants and animals could be described as having chancy and difficult lives. Maybe that is why they are rare.

If most of the earth's plants and animals are already rare, mostly in the absence of human interference, that certainly must change the way we think and act about their continuing survival.

It turns out that life is not only precious, but that most of the kinds of life are rare. It is difficult to value rarity (a rare baseball card is only worth what someone will pay for it) What are all those rare plants and animals worth? It seems that they are what keeps the biological world working. The common and abundant kinds of plants and animals simply can't do the job by themselves. Think kindly about rare plants and animals. Mention them in your prayers, whether they are the Kirtland's warbler or the Javanese one-horned rhinoceros. The world will finally not be able to function without them. We need them all.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Mom thankful for school's work with son

Editor:

I want to report something we all need and don't receive enough of: Good news!

I have an adopted son who was abandoned at birth, who has cerebral palsy and who experienced a very rough beginning in life. We moved to Charlevoix, a town we'd vacationed in for years but had no idea what it would be like to make our home. I've spent all my adult years working in education and connecting students to community. I've worked with special-needs children, mentoring and community service programs. I wanted all that for my son. Even though I had years of experience working with individual education plans, and even after I'd teamed with an educational specialist, I could not get his former school district to see my son's potential and strong desire to learn and be around his peers. The classroom he was kept in was little more than a day care experience. He was very bored and his spark was simply diminishing. At the tender age of 10 he had little interaction with his peers.

I could shout from the hilltops how impressed I've been with the Charlevoix Elementary School, principal (Doug) Drenth, all my son's amazing staff. Parents: You've raised some caring, sweet, compassionate students. Finally, my son feels a part of his school and community. From the day we brought our son home he has had the most endearing kind personality. Now, this school and everyone in it has helped him build his confidence and worth. He feels seen. With his cerebral palsy, he can't stand independently yet and is non-verbal. With motivation, which he now has, he can walk/run in a walker. He's always shown his intelligence by independently learning every interactive toy or device I gave him but the struggle was to make others see it.

Not here. The staff are dedicated and show me daily that they love what they do. The school got him going on a great iPad program for communication and learning and he has literally learned in four short months what one would expect in four years. He's learning beside all his peers and so very proud. He's greeted so warmly in the morning by his classmates and at lunch his table fills up fast with friends. Working with students I've always known what wise educators know that inclusion is simply a win-win for all! We learn best from our differences.

I just want to give a huge "shout out" to everyone involved in my son's school day and thank you for giving him the ability to no longer be trapped in his head. You are the best!

Moses' mum, Toni Jakubowski

Thanks blood drive support

Editor:

Myrna Boss, volunteer chairperson, would like to express thanks for another successful year of Blood Drives to all the blood donors and the following organizations who assisted with the blood drive at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church: Bergmann Marine, Central Drug store, Family, Farm and Home, Oleson's, Subway, The Clothing Company, Walgreens, Bob Municio, Charlevoix Book Store, Glens, Petals, Terry's Villager Pub, the Community Reformed Church. The Lions Club and the Kiwanis Club and the volunteer workers were ever so helpful and the food donations are always excellent. We are looking forward to our blood drives of 2013-2014.

The next blood drive, sponsored by the Belvedere Club, will be from noon-6 p.m. on Thursday, July 11, at Charlevoix Community Reformed Church.

Sincerely,
Myrna Boss

Amos Fox (left) and Hiram Rose were both born in New York state, the former in 1827, the latter three years later. Friends since childhood, they went west to seek their fortune in mining and came to Michigan with about $5,000 each. The men split up for a while, with Rose finding himself in Northport where he established a successful wood refueling dock for lake vessels and a mercantile store. He contacted Fox and invited him to join in, which happened in 1855 when Fox bought half interest in the business. Together, this pair went on to become two of the most respected businessmen in Northern Michigan. Rose was instrumental in obtaining railroad rights in both the Traverse City and Petoskey regions, while Fox focused on the Charlevoix portion of their endeavors. Together they built the 900-foot dock into Lake Michigan at the end of the Pine River Channel that jumpstarted the economy of the town and the entire Lake Charlevoix basin. Then they brought in the tugs that worked the logging industry along Lake Charlevoix, oversaw the constant dredging of the channel, and built the first wood commercial building on Bridge Street. The almost instinctual relationship lasted until 1881 when, without ever having written one word of formal agreement or questioned each others' actions, the partnership was dissolved and its assets divided, in the space of an hour in total harmony. As the Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper put it, "We doubt if a parallel can be found in the history of the age."

Smart Commute set for June 3-6

A group of community volunteers will host the second annual Smart Commute Charlevoix Challenge to take place from June 3-6.

Smart Commute Charlevoix is an initiative to support businesses to encourage their employees to find alternative methods of transportation to work for one week. Alternative methods include walking, biking, carpooling, taking public transportation, etc., the group said in a news release.

Businesses can register to participate for free and will be placed into three categories (small, medium, and large) based upon employee count.

The businesses that have the highest percentage of employee participation will receive free publicity for their business, the commuter cup trophy, and t-shirts for their participating employees.

"Why wouldn't you participate," said chairperson Bethany Pearson. "It's good for you, good for your employees, your business, and the environment-plus it's absolutely free."

New this year will also be a competition between Northern Michigan's neighboring communities. Charlevoix, Petoskey, and Traverse City will be competing for a regional trophy. Organizers pointed to the event as "a great way for businesses to not only compete with other businesses in their community but also other branches or similar organizations throughout Northwest Michigan."

To learn more about Smart Commute Charlevoix or to register your businesses in the Commute Cup Challenge visit www.charlevoix.org/smartcommute or contact Bethany Pearson at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101 or pearson@charlevoix.org; or Val Meyerson at the Charlevoix Public Library (231) 547-2651, or val@charlevoixlibrary.org

Smart Commute Charlevoix is a volunteer run organization. The mission of the group is to promote and encourage individuals and businesses to conserve resources, promote healthy exercise, and become stewards of a sustainable lifestyle in Charlevoix. Smart Commute Charlevoix is funded by the following sponsors: Harbor Industries, Irish Boat Shop, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Village Graphics, The City of Charlevoix, and Charlevoix State Bank.

The winners of the 2013 Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Vandenberg Essay Contest are (from left), Jake Conway, Sean Bradley, Kirsten Wagner, Mya Soderman, Hannah Gullings, Emmy Buday.

Kiwanis club names essay contest winners

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club recently hosted an awards at the Charlevoix Elementary School honoring one of the club's former members by giving of monetary distributions to nonprofits through the Vandenberg Essay Contest.

Students in the fifth grade were asked to write an essay about a non-profit in which they have an interest or with which they may have had some personal experience. Sixty students participated in the contest.

A committee of seven Kiwanis members reviewed the essays and selected six winners. Five of the students receive a $50 check which they, in turn, presented to the non-profit organization about which they wrote. One essay was selected as the overall best essay and that writer received a check for $100 which was then turned over to the charity.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club hosted the event with help from sponsors who provided money towards the event including Ace Hardware, Charlevoix State Bank, The Community Shopper, Round Lake Bookstore, Bay Winds Credit Union, Bergmann Center Aktion Club, First Congregation Church UCC, Carolyn Navarre, Dave and Cynthia Garland, Roger and Cynthia Postmus and Emmaline Weidman.

Here are the abbreviated versions of the winning essays:

The Manna Food Project, by Sean Bradley

"First off, I am not writing for fame or glory. I am writing to help the Manna Food Project. I want the money to go to them so they can help feed more starving people. The Manna Food project delivers hot meals to these people for free and cares about them. They help children and do events for the people like exercise classes and cooking classes to help them learn how to cook and spend money on food wisely. A lot of people these days are unemployed and homeless. If the Manna Food Project gets enough donations they could spread across America and help a lot more people.

The YMCA, by Emma Buday

The YMCA is a great place to get active and healthy. But it gets better, it's all for free! The reason I am writing about the YMCA is because I care that people all over can go there and exercise and eat healthy and possibly make new friends. I believe that every kid and adult should not play video games or watch TV and be a couch potato. If all you do is sit on the couch all day and be lazy, how will you get active? I love the events at the YMCA and they are super fun. The three on three basketball tournament is the best. Our team won our bracket!

The Bergmann Center, by Hannah Gullings

The Bergmann Center needs help. They want to provide services that enable people who have mental and physical problems to work. People need help for what's happening through their life. They need jobs so they can work for the purpose of feeling normal and to learn. When my mom and I go there it seems like they're really happy because they always say that they love my coat and they smile like they like me or my mom, it cheers me up when they work at the Bergmann Center because they have all the help they need. They also help others by the annual auction.

North Country Community Mental Health, by Mya Soderman

I have obsessive compulsive disorder and I would like to explain to you why I wrote this paper. I wrote this paper because I know how kids like me feel alone and desperate for a friend. I feel I can help other kids by pointing them in the right direction and the direction heads toward the North Country Community Mental Health. They keep anything you tell them top secret and they will try and help you in every way they can. They deserve a prize or at least a huge round of applause because they work hard to make your life better and not miserable.

Michigan Dyslexia Institute, by Kirsten Wagner

Do you know what's sad? That every day I see a person struggling with dyslexia. Over 60 percent of people that go there have left happy and a better reader. They give kind instructions. All of the teachers there are every patient. Adults and children with dyslexia need time to breathe and think, that's why I think it's bad if someone is screaming at you. Most people there understand your feelings and try to help. Now never forget this institute helps over a thousand people struggling with dyslexia. They help them learn to believe in the world, also to read and write.

Overall Best Essay – Camp Daggett, by Jake Conway

Hundreds of kids go to Camp Daggett every summer and winter. At Camp Daggett, counselors teach kids how to be safe with sports and camping. At Camp Daggett they teach kids how to respect one another and how to live with one another even though you may not like each other. For example when I go over to a friend's house, I know how to be polite. Camp Daggett teaches kids how to try new foods like stuffed turkey, turtle stew, venison and chili: foods you might not have tried before. So if you have a surprise party and you don't know any of the food you can be brave enough to try some. Plus, Camp Daggett at the end of each week gives a camper with not a very wealthy family a free scholarship!

Society names new museum co-director

The Charlevoix Historical Society has appointed Sally Weaver the new co-director for its museum to replace Steve Goslee, who recently retired after 10 years with the society. Weaver, who joined the organization in April, has extensive museum and lighthouse preservation experience, society officials said in a news-release. A former teacher, Weaver has a master's degree in historic preservation from Eastern Michigan University and a landscape certificate from MSU/Northwestern Michigan University.

Weaver

"We are delighted to have Sally working with the society now and look forward to tapping into her vast array of experience," society president Denise Fate said.

The Charlevoix Historical Society has been active since the late 1800s. Its mission is dedicated to the acquisition, preservation, and protection of objects and places of historical value, to the dissemination of information regarding these objects and places, and to the bringing together of all peoples interested in the history of the Charlevoix area. Some major milestones of the organization include restoration of the Charlevoix South Pier Lighthouse and Railroad Depot, and the digitization and safeguarding of more than 11,000 historic photos.

Current activities and projects include collaborating with Castle Farms and Keweenaw Star to provide guides for travel groups to tour the Earl Young homes and Charlevoix and the publication this summer of a book on the history of the many ships and boats which have been in Charlevoix over the decades called Charlevoix's Historic Vessels.

"During the few weeks I have been in the position, I have already learned of the vast and important history Charlevoix has and look forward to working with the society and the community through education and preservation of its unique past," Weaver said.

For more information, contact museum co-directors David Miles or Weaver via email at chxhistory@sbcglobal.net, or by phone at (231) 547-0373.

Foundation to host non-profit workshop

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Nonprofit organizations serving Charlevoix and Emmet counties are invited to attend "What's Your Story?" a workshop focused on helping nonprofits connect with their audiences from 9 a.m.-noon on Thursday, June 6 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation and Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation are again partnering to provide this capacity-building training for area nonprofit organizations. Participants will gain an understanding of why storytelling is important for nonprofit organizations; common storytelling ideas and approaches and how they apply to nonprofits; how to uncover good stories from within your organization; how to pitch your stories to the media; and questions to ask to elicit good stories from unexpected places.

The cost is $10 per attendee and the deadline for pre-registration is Monday, June 3, 2013. To register, go to www.c3f.org and click on "What's New," then "Workshops Offered." Contact Maureen at maureen@c3f.org or Laura laura@c3f.org or by phone at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation 231-536-2440 with any questions.

Hunting, hiking will likely coexist at Porter Creek

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — Hunting should still be allowed at Porter Creek natural area west of Boyne City, but limited to deer hunting, be allowed only on specific dates and registration should be required, agreed members of the Charlevoix County Parks and Recreation Committee Monday night.

The county is working to enhance the 100-acre natural area by putting in walking trails, a parking lot and other improvements. This will likely encourage many more people to use the property for hiking, bird watching and family outings, explained parks and recreation director Ross Maxwell. The improvements are what prompted the board to make a decision as to whether hunting should still be allowed there as it is now.

The committee's decision will now go to the county board of commissioners for approval.

Deer hunting only, not hunting for any other type of animal, should be allowed between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31, the committee unanimously agreed. And hunters should be required to register with the county clerk's office so that there is record of how many hunters are on the property at any given point in time and to ensure it does not become oversaturated.

The idea to register hunters was suggested by county commissioner Chris Christensen, who attended the meeting in an unofficial capacity.

"I'm not opposed to the hunting thing, but with the limited size of the property and the distance that a bullet or round would travel. I would wonder if some consideration should be taken so that anyone hunting there should register ..." Christensen said. He also expressed that not allowing hunting in September is a good idea because so many people are still out walking then.

Little Traverse Conservancy requires hunters to register when using some of its preserves, said committee member Susan Vrondran, but "It's a lot of bookkeeping."

The committee will have to figure out who will enforce the rule and who will be in charge of registration, said Maxwell. It could overwhelm current county parks and recreation staff, he explained.

She would vote for no hunting to be allowed at the park at any time to ensure safety, said former county commissioner Shirlene Tripp. Those on vacation might not be aware of hunters, she said.

"We didn't want any hunting because of the safety, but we should compromise," said Vrondran.

Also on Monday, the committee heard an update on renovations coming to Whiting Park west of Boyne City.

Performance Engineers, a Charlevoix company, is working to develop a conceptual plan to re-configure the campground and expand the number of sites with electric hook-up, reported Maxwell.

"It will make the sites more useful for modern-style camping," he said.

Other possibilities for the campground include levelling areas for flatter sites, building new bathrooms, adding a pavilion for the swim school, weddings and picnics, and adding a boat launch and fish shanty launch.

He hopes to have a design the committee can agree on and send along to the county board of commissioners for approval by the end of the summer.

Memorial garden open to all

The Charlevoix Garden Club maintains the Memorial Garden at the intersection of E. Dixon and Mercer avenues in Charlevoix. It is one of the oldest gardens in Charlevoix, having been established in 1977. The Memorial Garden was renovated in 2010, and is open to the public for contemplation or to rest during a walk.

Anyone is welcome to make a contribution to the Memorial Garden as a tribute to a friend or a loved one who has passed away. The garden now memorializes more than 200 people. To remember a loved one, contributions may be sent to the Charlevoix Area Garden Club in care of Nancy Fowler, 409 East Dixon Ave., Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

The following list includes all those who have been memorialized by a donation to the Charlevoix Area Garden Club since its beginning.

measures.

Gennett was among the five council members who voted to approve the original fireplace design on Aug. 9, but his support for the project waned as community members continued to voice opposition to the fireplace project in the weeks and months following its approval. Cole was present at the Aug. 9 special meeting at which the fireplace was approved, but abstained from the vote based on a belief that his wife's employment with DTE Energy (the company that would have supplied natural gas to the fireplace) represented a conflict of interest.

The city attorney later opined that Cole could participate in discussion and votes on the fireplace, as long as those discussions did not involve a determination on what would fuel it.

The proposal to build the outdoor community fireplace was brought to the council in July by city resident John Winn on behalf of an anonymous donor who wanted to pay for the cost of its construction.

The original design called for an 8-foot-by-8-foot fireplace to be topped by a chimney reaching about 20 feet tall. Construction began at the site in the park's Plaza B — which included removing a tree, foundation work and the beginnings of the fireplace's internal structure. But the council put on hold shortly after community objections surfaced to allow more time to see if options for the project could be found that might be more agreeable in the community. Since then the design was revised significantly to only be a few feet high and to be a oval bowl shape with no chimney.

Prior to Monday's votes to do away with the fireplace, city manager Rob Straebel told the council that so far, the city has paid $20,871 toward the project, with the expectation that the city would be reimbursed for its expenses from a fund the donor has set up with the Charlevoix County Community Foundation after construction of the fireplace is complete.

Straebel said, since the city did not complete construction of the fireplace — the purpose for which the money was set aside — he is expecting the donor won't reimburse the city's expenditures.

On Wednesday community foundation president Chip Hansen confirmed that a donor had set up a fund with the foundation for the purpose of funding the fireplace. Hansen also indicated that it is standard procedure for the foundation to not release money earmarked for a project until after that project is complete.

At Monday's meeting, Straebel did remind the council that several people who opposed the project had spoken at council meetings last fall offering to pay thousands toward the city's already-incurred costs if the project would go away.

Only three audience members spoke prior to the vote, among them was downtown business owner Kirby Dipert who said he was disappointed that the fireplace project was not going to continue.

"I think this would help bring people downtown," Dipert said. He also asked the council to "consider what's best for the community."

After the three votes were complete to do away with the fireplace, Gennett also made a plea for those who offered to help offset the costs should the fireplace go away to now honor their offers.

"Way back when this started, there was talk of donating to the city to pay (if the fireplace project were discontinued) ... A lot has happened and a lot of time has passed. I hope they (those who offered the donations) step forward," Gennett said.

Straebel, noting that the busy tourism season is fast approaching and the city's desire to have its downtown looking nice, asked the council for direction on what it wanted done with the former fireplace site while it determines the long-term future of the location.

By consensus, the council directed Straebel to have city crews knock down the structure that is currently there to ground level (leaving the sub-surface foundation in place) and then simply cover the area with wood chips until the council decides a long-term plan for the site.

To that end, the council also set a public hearing to receive input from the community on what it would like to see happen at the Plaza B site for its next regular semi-monthly meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 3.

One possibility a few council members discussed was to simply place brick pavers in the plaza's center, which has been earth and wood chips in recent years.

Near the end of Monday's meeting, during the miscellaneous business portion of the agenda, Campbell offered a comment with a conciliatory tone.

"It's been a bad nine months," Campbell said. "It's sad. Hopefully we can all work together and do what's good for Charlevoix. I'm not here to gloat or be happy. I'm sad, actually, but I do want to thank those who supported us."

On Tuesday, Straebel said city street crews have been busy preparing for petunia planting and getting caught up with other seasonal tasks that have been delayed by the late spring. At that time he estimated that the earliest crews would start demolition on the partially built fireplace structure would be Friday, May 24. Otherwise he expects the work will take place sometime shortly after Memorial Day.

next phase of the project.

Center said plans for the next phase have not yet begun, but township officials hope that the work might take place in the next couple years.

Polakowski noted that project organizers wanted to start with a small section of the proposed enhancement area to give the community an idea of how the entire corridor could look and hopefully spur support for future phases.

He also said the enhancement landscape is limited to areas within the Michigan Department of Transportation right-of-way and developed according to state requirements, including permission for planting from adjacent property owners.

Work at the site including planting of some trees and other plants began earlier this month. Other elements of the project will be put in place in the fall, township supervisor Chuck Center said.

BUDGET

"Everything is on the table, and not just athletics," said Gendron. "Pay-to-play is probably something in our forefront. We're looking at those types of things so we don't have to eliminate programming."

Gendron said pay-to-play will be considered for both junior varsity and varsity sports, and that the board is hoping to reduce — not eliminate — programs.

"The bottom line is this: how can we get that money while having the least impact on programs and opportunities for students?" said Gendron.

The board hopes to have a balanced budget by its regular June 17 meeting, and will have to approve a budget by June 30.

The board is scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. on Monday, June 3, at the administrative building, 104 E. St. Mary's Drive.

Rayder varsity makes history

The Charlevoix Radyer varsity baseball team made history Tuesday — and a lot of it — when it clinched at least a portion of its first-ever Lake Michigan Conference championship and the program's first league championship of any sort in more than 30 years.

The Charlevoix Rayders defeated Traverse City St. Francis, 11-4, in the opening game to clinch a share of the Lake Michigan Conference title and improve to 21-2 overall, 11-0 league.

The second game was suspended because of rain in the bottom of the fifth inning with the Rayders leading 6-4 and the Gladiators had bases loaded with two outs. That game was originally slated to resume Tuesday, June 4, at St. Francis, but late Wednesday, Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof received word that the Gladiators would be forfeiting the suspended second game, giving the Rayders the title outright. Prior to the forfeit, the Rayders would have had to win one of their two games against Kalkaska on Friday or St. Francis would have had to lose one of its two games against Grayling. With the forfeit, the Rayders 2013 have won the first outright league title the program's history. Telgenhof noted that program's two previous league titles, in the Huron Shores League in 1980 and 1982, were shared titles with another school.

After dropping from No. 9 to No. 10 in Division III in the state baseball coaches' poll last week, the team returned to the No. 9 spot when the poll was released Wednesday.

"It is our first league championship since 1982," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We have been in the LMC since 1992 and never won the league before."

"I was very excited for the boys tonight," Telgenhof said. "They've been talking about making history and tonight they did it."

A 10-run second inning fueled the Rayders as Austin Putman hit a three-run home run, while Nate Moon added a two-run homer in the same inning. Also for the Rayders, Noah Certa had two hits, while Shane Sutherland had two hits including a double and Tommy Zipp had a first inning triple. Will Telgenhof also had a hit.

Zipp was the winning pitcher as he struck out nine, walked one and allowed three runs none of which were earned — on six hits over six innings.

"We played our worst inning of the season in the first inning of the night," Telgenhof said. "We made three errors which led to three unearned runs, but they never doubted themselves. They stayed together and had that amazing second inning."

In game two, Sutherland had two hits including a double, while Will Telgenhof had two hits. Tag McCreadie, JJ Bottomley, Luke Klinger, Zipp, Moon and Certa all singled.

Sutherland pitched 4 2/3 innings and struck out four, walked two and allowed four runs on two hits.

"We were all disappointed that we couldn't close out game two before the rains came," Telgenhof said. "It got to a point where it was pouring and Shane couldn't even grip the ball out there."

The Rayders also made history with a non-league sweep over Grand Rapids Creston Saturday, May 18. With the two wins, the 2013 Rayders, join the Charlevoix teams of 1980, 1981, 1982 and 2007 with 20-win seasons.

Charlevoix won the first game 10-4 and the nightcap 9-3.

Charlevoix second baseman Olivia Certa fields a grounder in game one of the Rayders' double-header against Kalkaska Monday.

TRAVERSE CITY — The Charlevoix softball team was looking for a sweep over Lake Michigan Conference member Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday to pick up the outright conference championship.

Behind the pitching of Katie Hybl and Yogi Hang, that's precisely what the Rayders did in becoming Lake Michigan Conference champions.

Hybl pitched the first game in earning the win, 5-3, allowing six hits and three walks while striking out three.

Gabby Gray had two singles in the the game, while Yogi Hang went a perfect 3-for-3 at the plate with a double. Skylar Herriman had a double and a single, while Hybl, Kelsey Pischner, Olivia Certa and Jacy Herriman had doubles.

"We played some good softball," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said. "The girls played well tonight. The second game both teams played well. It was an exciting for them."

In that second game, Hang took the 4-3 win, pitching five innings with two strikeouts. She allowed four hits and three walks. Hybl came in to close the game, allowing one hit and one walk. Jennifer Archey and Rachel Shull each brought in two hits, while Hybl doubled and Hang and Gray both singled.

The Rayders move to 19-9 overall on the year and improve to 12-2 as league champions.

In other recent Charlevoix Rayder softball action

On Monday, the Rayders split a conference double-header with Kalkaska.

In the first game, the Rayders lost we lost 12-5. Hybl took the loss from the pitcher's circle giving up six walks and seven hits white striking out six. Jennifer Archey, Gabby Gray each singled. Skyler Herriman hit a home run and a single and Kelsey Pischner a double and a single.

The Rayders won the second game 4-2. Hang was the winning pitcher giving up seven hits and three walks while striking out one over five innings. Hybl got the save striking out two while not allowing a walk or hit in one inning of work. Archey, Gray, Hybl, Herriman, Hang, Pischner, Shull, and Peterson all had singles in the game.

On Thursday, May 16 the Rayders split a non-leauge double header with Pellston, dropping the first game 9-8 and winning the nightcap 14-8.

Skylar Herriman had four hits, while Katie Hybl added three hits including a double and Jennifer Archey had a triple and double in game two.

Also for the Rayders, the nightcap, Olivia Certa, Gabbie Gray, Ryleigh Knoop had a hit apiece, while Jacy Herriman added two hits including a double.

Yogi Hang was the winning pitcher as she struck out five, walked two and gave up four hits. Hybl worked in relief and struck out four and scattered two hits.

Pellston won the opening game on a walk-off single in the bottom of the sixth inning.

In game one for the Rayders, Kelsey Pischner hit a two-run home run, while Archey doubled and singled and Hybl added two hits. Herriman doubled, while Gray, Rachel Shull and Nicole Peterson all had a hit apiece.

Hang took the pitching loss in relief of Hybl. Hang struck out four, walked three and gave up three hits. Hybl struck out six, walked five and allowed two hits.

Rayder golfers win conference title

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

ATWOOD — The Charlevoix High School boys' golf team clinched the Lake Michigan Conference boys' golf championship Friday after winning the league's final meet Friday at Antrim Dells.

The match also doubled as the Grayling Gold Recovery Tournament, as 13 teams took part in the match to help benefit the Viking boys' golf team which suffered a tragic auto accident earlier this season.

Led by medalist Brad Rizzo who shot 75, the Rayders finished first with a 332. Travers City St. Francis was second, 335; followed by Elk Rapids, 353; Kalkaska, 357; Harbor Springs, 358; Boyne City, 361; Grayling, 429; and East Jordan, 507.

In the overall conference standings, Charlevoix placed first, followed by St. Francis, Kalkaska, Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids, Boyne City, Grayling and East Jordan.

Also for Charlevoix, Noah Jeakle shot 85, followed by Cobrin Turkelson, 86; Chandler Turkelson, 86; Tanner Catt, 87; and Logan Hess, 95.

Rizzo and St. Francis' Parker Gus both shared the league individual championship with a 396, but Gus won a playoff to each the league overall medalist.

For Harbor Springs, Bennet Langton finished with a team best 84 and was eighth overall and in the invitational, followed by James Adams, 89; Stewart Bower, 91; Adam Cavitt, 94; and Keith Fitzpatrick, 98.

For Boyne City, Bradley Fonchia shot a team-best 83, followed by Eric Moran, 91; Aaron Reynolds, 92; Jacob Knutter, 95; Steven Halstead, 98; and Ben Halstead, 99.

For East Jordan, Britten Lewis shot a team-best 116, followed by Daniel Nise, 123; Bobby Sherman, 133; Garrett Imel, 135; Collin Bajko, 137; and Andrew Drenth, 138.

Charlevoix's Rizzo and Jeakle and Boyne's Fouchia all finished as first-team All Conference, while earning honorable mention was Harbor's Adams and Langton along with Charlevoix's Corbin Turkelson, Novotny and Catt.

Rayder boys, girls take second at regionals

Host of Rayders headed to state meet

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — Charlevoix High School track and field coaches Ken Plude and Mary Plude had a pretty solid idea of how their respective teams could perform Saturday, May 18.

Could then turned into would for the Rayders.

Both Charlevoix teams finished runner-up at the 13-team Division III regional meet at Boswell Stadium in East Jordan on a near-perfect day for running.

Benzie Central swept the regional titles as the Huskie girls finished first with 171 points. Charlevoix was second with 83 points, while Kingsley was third, 81, followed by Boyne City, 77.

On the boys side, Benzie Central finished first with 140 points, while Charlevoix was second, 122; followed by Lake City, 102.

The Charlevoix boys were paced by strong performances in all four relays, as all four Rayder relay teams qualified for the Division III state finals which is scheduled for June 1 at Comstock Park.

The top two finishers in each event and certain individual qualifiers all will advance to the Division III state finals at Comstock Park.

"It was a good day, a very good day," Ken Plude said of his boys team. "Every kid I thought who could get to the state meet did, and we did a lot of cool things."

The Rayders boys started out strong with the 3200-meter relay team of Jackson Buday, Nick Snabes, Tristen Rudolph and Nick Plude, which won in 8 minutes, 14.95 seconds.

Then, the foursome of Jarod Reibel, Charlie Hamilton, Sawyer Russell and Plude pulled out an impressive second place finish in the 800 relay in 1:34.79 after Plude's anchor leg saw the Rayders move up several positions for the state qualifying position.

"They really pulled that one out," Plude said. "That team has been a work in progress the last two weeks and I just went with instinct on that one."

Reibel, Hamilton, Devon Drain and C.J. Rice teamed to win the 400 relay in 46.13, while in the 1600 relay, the Rayder foursome of Buday, Ben Boss, Chris Young and Plude won in 3:35.41, as again Plude used a strong kick and passed Lake City's Dan Cuevas — who won the 400 in 51.56 — in the final 15 meters for the win.

Lake City finished in 3:35.51.

"Nick (Plude) made a smart decision to stay behind him (Cuevas) and make him think about him the whole way," Ken Plude said. "That takes a lot of energy to do."

Also for the Rayders boys, Nick Plude won the 800 in 1:59.68; while Chris Young was second in the 300 hurdles, 42.06, after suffering a fall in the 110-hurdles at the final hurdle.

"Chris' one and only goal was to get to the state meet," Plude said. "He's never been to it in cross and he missed out on it by a tenth of second or so last year. There was a lot of pressure on him and that was great for him to get back up and his character came through."

The Charlevoix girls were paced by the overall solid performances from six athletes including Amber Way, Caroline Boss, Madeline Boss, Cora Taylor, Ivy Wells and Kourtney Putman.

"I knew I had six kids that were strong athletically and they could cover about three or four events," Mary Plude said. "This was probably one of the most relaxed regionals I've ever been at. They all knew they could do it, there were not complaints and I wasn't worried.

"I knew they were going to run well and they did it for themselves and they ran for each other."

Way won both the 3200, 10:52.14; and the 1600, 5:10.71 and was a member of the winning 3200 relay team along with Taylor, Madeline Boss and Caroline Boss, which finished first in 9:52.65.

Way's winning time in the 3200 was a Charlevoix school record, as she beat her own old record of 11:07.

"She (Way) wanted to break 11 to get ready for the state meet," Plude said.

Caroline Boss won both the 400, 1:00.57; and the 800, 2:25.56; and was a member of the second place finishing 1600 relay team along with Putman, Taylor and Madeline Boss.

Wells placed first in the pole vault at 7-6.1; while Madeline Boss was second in the high jump at 4-8.

"What's amazing is of all six of them, none of them are seniors," Plude said. "They've all studied their sports and have worked in the offseason. They have an attitude of being an athlete and they kind of exudes a specific type of confidence and it exudes to other kids in school and to the team."

NOTES

Rayders open districts May 28

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity baseball and softball teams will compete for a Division III district title on their home fields next week.

Since the teams in the district are the same for both baseball and softball, by Michigan High School Athletic Association rule, the pairings are the same for both tournaments.

The Rayder baseball and softball teams will open first round district tournament play at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, May 28 against Elk Rapids. The other teams in the district, Harbor Springs, East Jordan, and Boyne City, drew a first-round bye. For baseball, the winner of the Charlevoix-Elk Rapids game will play Harbor Springs in a second-round game at 10 a.m. on Saturday, June 1 followed by East Jordan and Boyne City squaring off in the other second round game at noon. For softball, the second round game times will be reversed. The winners of the two second-round games will play for the district championship at 2 p.m.

Fitting, physicals scheduled

Sports physicals for Charlevoix Public Schools student athletes for the 2013-2014 school year will take place from 6-8 p.m. on Wednesday, May 29 at the high school for students who are currently in grades 5-11.

Students may pick up a physical form from the middle or high school office for parents to fill out and bring with them on May 29 with the $10. Physicals forms must be signed in advance by a parent for the doctor to see student.

Also, from 5-6 p.m. on the same day, the football program will be conducting fittings for players' football helmets in the high school gym.

Boys place first, girls third at conference

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Charlevoix boys' track team had a goal, and a number, in mind heading into the Lake Michigan Conference Championships in Harbor Springs on Wednesday.

That number was 150 total team points, a lofty goal with the competition on hand.

Their final: 169 points, good for a first place finish in conference and an accomplished goal.

"It's been a good team all year," Charlevoix coach Ken Plude said. "I think we've scored in everything so it shows their versatility, just like their attitude. We had that goal and we accomplished it."

Following Charlevoix at the top for the boys, Harbor Springs took second with 135, followed by Traverse City St. Francis, 102; East Jordan, 75; Grayling, 55; Boyne City, 41; Elk Rapids, 33.5; and Kalkaska, 32.

For the girls, St. Francis took a first place finish with a 184 total, followed by Boyne City, 130; Charlevoix, 104; Harbor Springs, 102; Kalkaska, 50; Elk Rapids, 32; Grayling, 27.50; and East Jordan, 11.

In the boys' field events, Charlevoix's Sawyer Russell took the pole vault with a height of 11 feet, 7 inches.

East Jordan's Josh Wojan brought in three first place finishes on the day, the first coming in the 1600 meter run with a time of 4:36.61, followed by the 800, 2:04.85 and the 3200, 10:21.63. Nick Plude of Charlevoix took first in the 400 meter dash with a time of 50.58, while Rayder Chris Young brought in a nail biting win in the 300 high hurdles in 41.85.

"That 50.5 kind of surprised me. I didn't think he was ready for that," coach Plude said of son Nick's time in the 400. "Chris had a pretty good 300 time. The big thing is that they preformed to their expectations as a team."

In relay's, the Charlevoix team of Jackson Buday, Nick Snabes, Tristen Rudolph and Nick Plude took first in the 3200 relay, while the Rayder team of Jared Reibel, Devon Drain, Charlie Hamilton and C.J. Rice took first in the 400 relay.

For the girls, Madeline Boss of Charlevoix took first in the high jump at 4 feet, 10 inches.

Boyne's Kylie Hicks took three first place finishes on the day, with a 15.39 in the 100 meter hurdles, 12.84 in the 100 meter dash and 48.61 in the 300 low hurdles.

"She's been very consistent," Place said of Hicks. "In fact, we were teasing her, we can probably just write her time down before she runs the high hurdles because we know that's what she's going to run."

Caroline Boss for Charlevoix took first in the 800 meter run, just edging teammate Amber Way with a time of 2:27.27. Way would find a first place finish in the 1600, however, clocking in at 5:29.55.

Rayders in the hunt for share of conference title

String of wins sets up showdown with Rams

A string of recent wins have left the Charlevoix Rayder girls soccer team in a position to play for a share of the Lake Michigan Conference title in a regular season-end showdown with conference foe Harbor Springs at Kipke Field Thursday, May 23.

If the Rayders win they will share the league title with the Rams. If Harbor wins, it will win the title outright.

On Monday, Hannah Herboldsheimer, Kylee Scholten and Katie Kiteley each scored a pair of goals as the Charlevoix Rayders rolled to an 8-0 Lake Michigan Conference win over East Jordan at Boswell Stadium.

With the win, the Rayder improve to 15-5 overall, 11-2 league.

The Rayders collected 22 shots on goal in the win Monday, as Kiteley opened the scoring close to nine minutes in when she score on a pass from Elizabeth Way. Way then added a goal herself less than three minutes later un-assisted before freshman Kylee Scholten made it 3-0 at the 26 minute, 44 second mark on a feed from sophomore Grace Whitley.

Herholdsheimer scored her first goal at the 31:49 mark, Caroline Elowsky had the assist.

The Rayders led, 4-0, at halftime.

In the second half, Herboldsheimer scored her second goal of the game at the 7:32 mark from a pass from Anna Way. Kiteley then scored her second goal of the contest at the 10:47 mark off a feed from Elizabeth Way.

Freshman forward Sophie Herholdsheimer then made it 7-0 as she scored at the 18:13 mark on a pass from Lily Matchett. Scholten then scored the final goal of the match on a direct kick from five yards outside the 18. Senior goalkeeper Bailee Stevens and sophomore Gloria Greene shared the shutout in goal. Greene finished with one save as the Rayder defense limited the Red Devils to just one shot on goal.

On Friday, May 17, senior forward Hannah Herboldsheimer scored a pair of goals to lead the Rayders in a 3-1 non-conference win over Maple City Glen Lake on their home field.

Junior Kaitlin Hinkley scored the other goal for the Rayders, who finished with 19 shots on goal in the win.

"We were able to keep the intensity high throughout the game," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We had another outstanding performance from out defense led by Sydney Carlson, Carolena Elowsky, Leah Davis, Shelby Robinson and Katie Paramo.

Glen Lake is a quality soccer team and they (defense) really limited the Lakers' opportunities."

Herboldsheimer scored at the 26 minute, 9 second mark in the first half off a pass from Elizabeth Way and the scored again early in the second half from a pas from Davis. Hinkley then scored the third goal for Charlevoix off a pass from Elizabeth Way.

Senior goalkeeper Bailee Stevens and sophomore Gloria Greene shared the win. Stevens had five saves and Greene added three saves.

On Thursday, May 16, Rayder freshman midfielder Kylee Scholten worked a give-and-go situation with another freshman — Kelsey Engstrom — before Scholten fired a shot into the far post from just outside the 18 with just under 15 minutes to play in the first half for the lone goal in the Rayders' 1-0 win over conference rival Elk Rapids.

The Rayders finished with 14 shots on goal, while sophomore goalkeeper Gloria Greene had 10 saves for the shutout.

"I was very pleased with how fast we were to the ball tonight," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We kept the pressure very high and the girls did a great job winning the ball both on the ground and in the air."

Scholten lauded the defensive efforts of Sydney Carlson, Leah Davis, Carolena Elowsky and Shelby Robinson.

"We did a great job keeping the ball away from our goal," Scholten said.

Charlevoix's Mason Louiselle delivers a pitch to home plate during the Rayder JV squad's double header against Rudyard on Friday, May 17.

Rayder JV falls to Jo-berg, Kalkaska, Rudyard

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity baseball team had a rough week this past week, dropping double-headers to Johannesburg-Lewiston, Kalkaska and Rudyard.

On Tuesday, the Rayders fell to Johannesburg-Lewiston 16-1 and 10-6.

Alex Kleiher reached base four times in the doubleheader for the Rayders including a double, while Devin Largent doubled and scored while reaching base five times. Adam Michaud and Andrew Michaud both had strong relief pitching outings, coach Brandon Webb said

On Monday the Rayders dropped a double header to Kalkaska, 4-0 and 9-5. In the first game Adam Michaud struck out seven and gave up five hits. Justin Adkins, Devin Largent, Adam Michaud, and Mason Louiselle all had base hits in the game.

In game two, Charlevoix got its five runs on six hits led by Jordan Adkins's RBI double. Spencer Bruce and Devin Largent both pitched well in the loss, Webb noted.

On Friday, the Rayders two games at home to Rudyard, 10-1 and 12-6. Spencer Kilpatrick walked and scored in the first game. In game two, Mason Louiselle doubled and Jordan Adkins tripled. Spencer Bruce struck out eight in the loss.

TENNIS

Rayders notch regional wins before bowing out

TRAVERSE CITY — Charlevoix conference rivals the Harbor Springs Rams won all eight of their first round matches en route to placing third with 21 points at the Division IV regional at Traverse City Central High School Thursday, May 16.

With the 21 points, the Rams qualified for the Division IV state finals, which is scheduled for May 31-June 1 at Kalamazoo College.

Traverse City St. Francis won the regional title with 27 points as the Gladiators won five flights, while Ludington — the defending regional champion — was second with 24 points.

For Charlevoix, Lexie Barnes at No. 2 singles advanced to the semifinals with a 6-2, 6-0 win over Grayling, then fell to St. Francis, 1-6, 6-0, 6-2.

At No. 3 singles, Charlevoix's Kelsea Stevens def. East Jordan, 6-4, 6-0; and fell to Ludington, 6-0, 6-2. Madi Carey at No. 1 singles def. East Jordan, 6-4, 7-6, then fell to St Francis.

In doubles play for the Rayders, Mallory Murray-Emily Roloff at No. 2 def. Grayling, 6-0, 6-0; then fell to Ludington, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3. At No. 1 doubles, Cassidy Peebles and Karley Pearsall fell in a second-round match to St. Francis, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2.

BASEBALL

win season in school history." Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said.

"We stole 18 bases in the doubleheader and we started both of our freshmen on the mound and they both pitched well."

Hunter Cox was the winning pitcher in the opening game as he struck out 10, walked eight and allowed three hits and four runs over six innings. Tag McCreadie struck out two and walked one in an inning of relief.

Offensively for the Rayders, who finished with 13 hits, Tommy Zipp and Shane Sutherland had three hits apiece while Sutherland doubled, while Nate Moon had two hits including a double and Luke Klinger had two hits. Noah Certa and Logan Eckhardt also singled.

"Hunter Cox struggled with his control in the opener, but he was pretty much unhittable and struck out 10," Telgenhof said. "In game two, Austin Putnan picked up his first varsity win."

Putman worked six innings and struck out six, walked four and allowed two runs on five hits, while Eckhardt worked an inning in relief and struck out two.

Offensively for the Rayders, Certa had three hits, while Klinger, Moon and Putman each added one hit. Moon and Putman each drove in a pair of runs.

And if earning at least a portion of a league title and eclipsing the 20-win mark weren't enough over the past week, one of those wins came in the form of a no-hitter

Nate Moon was dealing Thursday, May 16 tossing a no-hitter as the Rayder hurler struck out five and didn't issue a walk or hit over six innings in leading Charlevoix to a non-league sweep over Pellston. The Rayders won game one 5-0 and took game two 8-1

"Nate was so sharp in game one," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said.

"We was really on cruise control. He only went to a three ball count on three hatters the whole game. We played some very good defense all day long, including turning three double plays.

Shane Sutherland played exceptional defense at short for us, he was in on all three double plays."

Offensively, Charlevoix scored four runs in the first inning and added another in the third.

Luke Klinger had two hits, while Tommy Zipp doubled and drove in a run while Shane Sutherland added a RBI as did JJ Bottomley on a single. Logan Eckhardt also singled.

In the second game, Bottomley was the winning pitcher as he struck out six, walked one and allowed one run on four hits over six innings.

"J.J. Bottomley pitched a very solid game for us," Telgenhof said. "He kept them off-balance the whole time and only gave up one unearned run. Pellston played very solid defensively, but we got some timely hitting and really ran the bases aggressively, stealing 13 bases on the night."

Zipp had a home run, tripled and drove in three runs, while Klinger doubled and drove in a run. Moon had two hits including a double and drove in two runs, while Noah Certa and Austin Putman singled.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The Mortgage described below is in default: Mortgage made by Susan M. Barr-Stemen, as Trustee of Susan M. Barr Trust dated July 11, 1995, as Mortgagor, to Business Lenders, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, as Mortgagee, dated July 13, 2006 and recorded July 19, 2006 in Liber 756, Page 767, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was assigned by Business Lenders, LLC to TSKEE Enterprises, LLC, a Florida limited liability company, as Assignee, by virtue of an Assignment of Mortgage dated February 14, 2013 and recorded March 5, 2013 in Liber 1022, Page 498, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Assignment of Mortgage"). The legal description contained in the Assignment of Mortgage was corrected by an Affidavit of Scrivener's Error dated March 27, 2013 and recorded April 4, 2013 in Liber 1025, Page 533, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan. The balance owing on the Mortgage is $797,476.33 at the time of this Notice. The Mortgage contains a power of sale and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt secured by the Mortgage, or any part of the Mortgage. Take notice that on June 7, 2013 at 11:00 a.m., local time, or any adjourned date thereafter, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at public vendue at the place of holding the Circuit Court within Charlevoix County. The Assignee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt secured by the Mortgage as stated above (which includes all costs and expenses paid by the Assignee to collect the debt and to protect its interest in the property, all as provided in the Mortgage), plus interest on the amount due at the rate of 2.25% above the Prime Rate as published in the Wall Street Journal, (currently 5.50% per annum at the time of this Notice) and any amount subsequently paid by the Assignee to protect its interest in the property. The property to be sold at foreclosure is all of the real estate located in the Townships of Melrose and Chandler, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described more particularly as follows: PARCEL 1: That part of Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, Chandler Township, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, Melrose Township, more fully described as: Beginning at a point in the centerline of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13, 18, 19 and 24; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 361.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said centerline on the arc of a 400 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence North ~~448.80 feet;~~ thence North 34 degrees 35 minutes East 256.66 feet; thence North 23 degrees 54 minutes East 284.48 feet; thence North 12 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 336.12 feet; thence East 248.56 feet; thence South 06 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds West 428.54 feet; thence South 88 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds East 393.42 feet; thence South 03 degrees 35 minutes 15 seconds East 227.80 feet; thence South 02 degrees 46 minutes 45 seconds West 170.12 feet; thence South 14 degrees 43 minutes 30 seconds East 328.43 feet; thence South 37 degrees 17 minutes 45 seconds East 161.25 feet; thence South 39 degrees 11 minutes East 182.11 feet; thence South 20 degrees 49 minutes East 201.80 feet; thence South 34 degrees 42 minutes East 300.70 feet; thence South 11 degrees 47 minutes West 96.96 feet; thence South 42 degrees 23 minutes 30 seconds East 114.95 feet, thence South 17 degrees 55 minutes 10 seconds East 181.42 feet, thence South 18 degrees 52 minutes 40 seconds West 374.11 feet; thence South 00 degrees 03 minutes East 1197.77 feet; thence South 89 degrees 10 minutes 30 seconds West 629.60 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 1106.55 feet to the Point of Beginning: EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, for the Point of Beginning; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence South 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds East along the centerline of Spring Valley Road to the Point of Beginning; being a part of the Northeast 1/4 of Section 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, AND FURTHER EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: That part of Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, described as: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13 and 24; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the center line of Spring Valley Road 736.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said center line on the center line on the arc of a 400.00 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284.00 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence South to the Point of Beginning. Full plate awaits council

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix City Council, in its second meeting since three new members took office earlier this month, will have a very full agenda to address when it meets at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 3.

On the top of the list will be two public hearings.

The first hearing is to take community input on what should happen to East Park's Plaza B now that newly-constituted council has scrapped the controversial community fireplace project. On Tuesday, city work crews used a jack hammer to demolish the above-ground portion of the fireplace foundation that had been constructed late last summer. (The previous council, put the project on hold in early September and the partially built substructure has been hidden by a green plywood box ever since. On Tuesday crews left the below-ground portion of the foundation in place and covered it with mulch.

The council set Monday's public hearing at its last meeting to help it decide the future of the area. Some ideas mentioned at the last meeting include simply leaving the center portion mulch covered and possibly replanting a tree there, installing brick pavers, or possibly considering some other kind of feature, such as a fountain or statue that could be placed there.

The other public hearing set for Monday will include a presentation from a consultant on the city's options for needed renovations and upgrades at its wastewater treatment plant. The needed upgrades could cost anywhere from $5.7 million to $11 million depending on which option the city chooses.

The improvement are needed largely because of regulation changes from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality with which the city will need to comply within the next two years. Because of the new regulations, the city will have to limit the amount of ammonia it releases beginning Oct. 1, 2014. Even more restrictive limits will be in place by December 2015. Part of the problem the city's system faces is that the plant uses water from Lake Michigan to treat wastewater. During the winter, the water is too cold for the biological mechanisms that break down ammonia to work. Also, because the

Dealing with all the deer

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The word is out among the local deer community: Charlevoix Township is the place to hang out.

That was the conclusion offered by Michigan Department of Natural Resources experts at a Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees meeting earlier this month.

The board brought in the experts, Ashley Autenrieth from the department's wildlife division, and conservation officer Ondrea Erratt for its May 13 meeting to discuss what to do about the township's burgeoning deer population and a decades old ordinance that bans hunting on the north side of the township.

Township officials have been hearing complaints from residents about damage deer are doing to their landscaping and gardens.

Back in the late 1980s the township board passed an ordinance that banned hunting on the north side of the township. Township supervisor Chuck Center said people in the township have been abiding by the ban, but township officials recently learned that when the ordinance banning hunting was passed, township officials did not follow the proper procedure, therefore the ordinance is not enforceable.

"What you've done is created a deer sanctuary," Autenrieth told the board. "You're actually pulling deer in from several miles around."

Several residents at the meeting noted that the deer are so used to humans that they often don't run away when they try to shoo them away from their yards.

Autenrieth said doing away with

It's gone

City of Charlevoix workers use a jack hammer Tuesday to demolish the foundation for what would have been a community fireplace in Plaza B of Charlevoix's East Park. The foundation had been hidden inside a green plywood box since construction on the fireplace ceased last September amid controversy surrounding the project. Earlier this month the Charlevoix City Council voted to do away with the fireplace project and directed city staff to demolish the foundation. By the end of the day, workers had removed the above-ground portion of the foundation and then covered the concrete pad underneath with woodchips.

Longtime Beaver Island school superintendent retiring this year

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

BEAVER ISLAND — Kathleen "Kitty" McNamara, the longtime principal and superintendent of Beaver Island Community School is retiring at the end of this school year.

"To say that McNamara will be missed is an understatement. From former board members to parents to staff to students, all say she is the Rock of Gibraltar of the school and has given not only her talent and time but her life to bring the best educational experience to the island's school children," Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Communication Services Dianne Litzenburger wrote in a news release about McNamara's retirement

At the same time as they bid farewell to McNamara, island community members will welcome Riley Justis, who will be taking over the school's helm starting July 1. Justis grew up in Petoskey and is a Petoskey High School graduate. After obtaining his undergraduate bachelor's degree in education from Central Michigan University, he taught in a rural fly-in K-12 school in Port Graham, Alaska, and was the curriculum specialist/teaching advisor for a K-12 public school district serving nearly 10,000 students on the Kenai Peninsula in Alaska. For the past year he has been the curriculum and technology administrator at Hope Academy Schools for the Future in Detroit. Justis and his wife, Jenny, and their toddler daughter, Sophie, are now making Beaver Island their home.

McNamara first joined Beaver Island Community School in 1979 as a teacher, and then left for a while before being hired back in the 1985-1986 school year as the top administrator. She and her husband, Mike, have two grown children: Brenna and Maeve.

Among her accomplishments, McNamara worked legislatively for passage of "isolated schools" funding in 2004 and for "small schools" funding in 2000. She helped facilitate a major strategic planning initiative for the district which resulted in 21st Century Learning on Beaver Island. She has guided passage of numerous successful millage campaigns, most recently a $3.95 million bond proposal for the renovated and new school addition. She also organized and generated enthusiasm for Northern Lights Athletic League in five of Michigan's most isolated school districts.

"Kitty has made our community a better and stronger place and pointed us to a great future," said Kevin McDonough, a former board member and captain with the Beaver Island Boat Co., where McNamara's husband also works as a boat captain.

McNamara

McDonough noted that McNamara's door is always open for students, parents, staff and other community members. "She attends as many school and community events as possible," he said. "She also gives considerable guidance to students to attain their future goals. Words cannot explain how she leads by example."

A recent, routine school event brought to mind the epitome of McNamara's devotion to her students and community for parent and current board member Barb Schwartzfisher.

"Just (recently), the fifth and sixth grade class from Beaver Island were leaving for Camp Hayo-Went-Ha (in Central Lake)…moms and dads and kids and friends were all milling around stowing luggage at the ferry dock and making sure the kids were all in the right place," Schwartzfisher said. "I turned around and there was Kitty making sure all was well. One student said to her, 'Ms. McNamara, are you coming on the boat with us?' Her reply was 'no, just making sure you all got off safely.'"

The next instant, she was gone, Schwartzfisher explained, probably back at school leading the fitness walk in the gym before the start of the day. "There isn't anything she wouldn't do, and she always knew what needed to be done – she just felt it in her soul," she added.

Litzenburger wrote that among the many projects cited by community residents is McNamara's work on the remodeling and building expansion of the pre-K through 12th grade school which was completed in 2009. The school was refurbished with new classrooms, technology and teacher workrooms and office areas for the approximately 60-member student body. Her work in securing additional funding for the island as an "isolated" school was also noted among her accomplishments.

McNamara said her most rewarding experience comes from "being a part of a strong community, getting to know students and families and knowing that the connections are lifelong."

McNamara's immediate plans are for a trip to Ireland with her youngest daughter Maeve, who just graduated from Northern Michigan University, and her sister Peg and her children. She will then return to enjoy summer on Beaver Island with her family, including grandson Ronan. Her long-term plans are up in the air.

"I am open to looking at the next step," she said. "I will be looking for opportunities to use my skills and knowledge in new ways."

McNamara has been working with Riley Justis, who will take her place as Superintendent/Principal. "We've been communicating via Skype and in person since he accepted the position in January of this year," she said. "Riley and I will work together for the first week of June, and then he will take over the leadership role. I am excited about his strengths in the areas of curriculum and technology which are essential in moving the district fully into the information age," she added.

A retirement reception for McNamara will take place at noon on Sunday, June 2, at Beaver Island Community School. A will luncheon follow the ceremony.

Man injured in bicycle accident

BEAVER ISLAND — A 21-year-old Milford man suffered a head injury in a car/bicycle accident on Friday, May 24.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office on Beaver Island was dispatched to East Side Drive north of McCauleys Road in Peaine Township at 5:50 p.m.

According to a sheriff's office news release, 54-year-old Steve Crandall, of Beaver Island, was driving north on East Side Drive in a dump truck pulling a large commercial trailer. Crandall reported he noticed a man on a bicycle traveling at a high rate of speed about to exit the parking lot.

The driver of the bicycle, 21-year-old Gary Michaud, was unable to stop his bicycle before entering the roadway. Michaud struck the rear end of the commercial trailer sustaining a head injury.

He was transported to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital after transport to Charlevoix Airport by Beaver Island EMS. The patient was transported by Charlevoix EMS to McLaren.

Deputies said Michaud had been consuming alcohol. Crandall was wearing a seat belt and had not been drinking, deputies said.

County misjudged need for staffing in planning department

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Despite four letters and a statement from city and township leaders pleading with them not to do it, Charlevoix County commissioners left no funding in their 2013 budget last September for both a planning director and assistant.

Now, eight months later, the county planning and GIS departments must come up with an un-budgeted amount of approximately $40,000 to employ a shared assistant, administrative technician Lora Manning, or amend their budgets and increase the amount they'd planned to spend this year, according to county clerk Cheryl Potter Browe.

The board of commissioners at the time voted unanimously to approve the budget absent a line item for someone to help the planning director with her duties. The change was made after long-time director Larry Sullivan — now a member of the board of commissioners himself — retired and his assistant, Kiersten Stark was promoted.

Also in October and November, the planning and GIS departments were merged. The offices were physically moved into the same area of the county building and both one-person departments were encouraged by county commissioners to integrate.

As of April 1, the now merged planning/GIS department is a three person team with Stark, Manning and GIS coordinator Brian Kelly completing all tasks expected of the two departments.

But, in mid-April, it was discovered that even with the three of them, all work that was traditionally done by the planning department cannot be completed with a director and a shared assistant.

FILE PHOTO

Charlevoix County planning director Kiersten Stark and GIS coordinator Brian Kelly combined departments last fall and now share an administrative technician.

Planning commission secretary Larry Levengood resigned his position last month after learning neither Stark nor Manning would be able to take and compile minutes for the commission and in a letter, Stark requested the planning commission secretary do it. When she was the planning assistant, Stark took minutes of the meetings. But, she says, the process is time consuming and neither she nor Manning can fit the task into their already busy schedules.

The minutes of a planning commission meeting are ordinarily very detailed and 10-12 pages long, said Stark.

At its May meeting, the commission decided to scale back the minutes to include less detail, and voted to appoint commission member Bob Tidmore as the new secretary to take the minutes.

Stark agreed to maintain audio recordings of the meetings so that a fuller record of them is available.

Manning, who works 40 hours a week and makes $29,000 a year plus benefits, has a wide array of tasks both in the planning and GIS departments. She answers phone calls, helps maintain the county website, is helping design a mobile website for county, assists with putting together agendas and packets for the planning commission and helps both departments with grant applications, among other tasks.

After planning commission, city and township officials expressed concern last September over the move to create a single-person department for planning, chair of the county board of commissioners Joel Evans fired back that a two-person planning/GIS department was the "right decision."

"We appreciate your opinions," said Evans to members of the public who spoke out against the change. "But we did give this some thought. We feel, as a board, we made the right decision."

Commissioners Richard Gillespie and Chris Christensen also voiced support at the meeting in September for reducing the planning department to one employee.

"I think Brian and Kiersten are qualified and able to do the job we're asking them to do," said Christensen.

Grandparenting: A new Olympic sport

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Our daughter and son-in-law reserve one morning a week in which to shop for groceries. I'd like to think this was a date for them, but in reality it's a "to-do" list that's accomplished in record time and accuracy as their plate is full of numerous "to-do's." In turn, I enjoy grandma time entertaining four grandsons 5 years of age and under. A feat I'm quite proud of, but I have found that I do look forward to a much-needed coffee break or cocktail after returning home.

Miniature Legos, really? Who knew they existed. This large blue box contained hundreds of pieces the size of a pea. Although when they were dumped on the floor by twin 5-year-old grandsons, I was compelled to pick them up. I instead joined in with my own creativity. The 3-year-old grandson on the sidelines was much more enamored with finishing up the jar of Nutella.

"Oh why not," I said. "I love chocolate, too."

It did look tempting, and why use a spoon when God created fingers? When I looked up and noticed his chocolaty hands and face, I mentioned he might want to clean up.

Gone in a flash he returned with wet hair and his face still covered in chocolate. He mentioned he decided to wash his hair. Well of course, what 3-year-old wouldn't get a little side tracked? I can relate. The 1-year-old was not into creating superheros or planes but periodically was checking out the pea sized Legos to see how many he could hold in mouth instead of his hand. I quickly reviewed the Heimlich maneuver in my head.

The two 5-year-olds created what looked like drones, and since they were wearing the shirts I bought them from the naval base in Pensacola, I decided that might just be what they were making. While they played fighter jets, and the 1-year-old emptied his mouth and diapers of Legos, I now begin to realize the 3-year-old has been absent much too long. A quick trip down the stairs, missing every other one, I arrive in time to see water running out of the sink and onto the floor. The walls and mirrors looked like it had rained in the bathroom. Actually, it was more like a rain forest. My heart still racing from the sprint downstairs all I could manage to say was, "What are you doing?" He smiled and quietly said, "I decided to wash the walls."

"Of course," I sighed.

Had he been my son I might have gone into a tirade, but he lucked out being a grandson and instead I said, "You missed a spot."

We proceeded to mop the floor together and then, like any 3-year-old would do, he changed out of wet clothes and pranced through the rest of the morning in his underwear. After all, they were superman underwear and he looked so darn cute.

The weather was nice so we moved out into the backyard. Mention soccer or baseball and the boys quickly form teams and are ready for action. The choice was soccer and we even included the one-hundred-pound lab on one team. I made up for that by carrying the one year old around as I made a kick or two so he wouldn't get trampled. This is my kind of aerobic work out. Keeping up with four little boys you can't help but lose at least a few pounds.

A few hours had passed and our attention was diverted by mom and dad's return. As I watched the enormous amount of groceries coming in, I thought to myself, This trip will be more than once a week once the boys are in their teens."

I was happy to report that no children had to be rushed to the hospital on my watch. When I see their parents return I usually feel like the relief team is up and I'm on the bench to wait when I am called into action again. It's quite invigorating and I now think being a grandma qualifies for an Olympic sport. No doubt about it, I see gold in my future.

Correction

Because of a production error, the numbers for vote total and percentage of the overall vote were mistakenly reversed for one of the four possible responses in the weekly poll reported in the May 24 edition. The error occurred in the first listed response for those who liked Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's idea of possibly switching to baskets for its annual petunia display instead of curbside flowerbeds. The votes and percentages for remaining three responses were correct.

The corrected vote tallies and percentages appear below:

— I like it: 16 votes (41%)
— I don't like it: 6 votes (15%)
— I'll have to see the prototype to decide: 8 votes (21%)
— Either way is fine: 9 votes (23%)

Gridiron Club grateful for helmet campaign support

Editor,

It is with great pleasure that we share with you news of the caring and generous people in the Charlevoix community as well as among Charlevoix High School alumni across the country.

A little more than a month ago our committee decided to undertake a fund raiser to supply the Charlevoix Rayder high school football teams with safer football helmets for the 2013 season and beyond.

The proposed fund drive was to achieve a goal of purchasing 55 new helmets.

On May 1, letters were sent out to parents, businesses, community members and some Charlevoix alumni with a May 15 deadline to raise the money. The following week the Charlevoix Courier ran an article with the information. We would like to announce that in the matter of less than two and a half weeks our community came together and the initial goal was achieved.

One comment received on the return form with a donation was from a previous Rayder football player. This appeared to be the heart of the majority of the people who were contacted and offered the opportunity to donate to this project.

"When I played as a freshman, I was issued a leather helmet without a face mask! Time and technology have thankfully changed. Good luck to Coach Bindi and the 2013 Rayders."

On Wednesday, May 29, the high school football players were at the high school to have their heads measured so the helmet they wear when they take the field this fall will fit their head precisely. The helmet has received a 5 star (highest) safety rating in recent testing. We cannot describe the gratitude that the committee has for the extraordinary outpouring of love and giving from parents, Charlevoix businesses, community members and alumni.

Since the campaign began, it has become apparent that we are in need of additional helmets because more young men have indicated that they will be participating in football this fall. And we also realize that this effort will need to continue in providing additional helmets and spare parts for this season and subsequent seasons. So, if you were missed in the initial campaign and wish to make a donation, please send it to Rayder Gridiron Club, P.O. Box 754, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Sincerely,
The Rayder Gridiron Club/Helmet Committee: Dr. Gil Noirot, Dr. Craig Boss, Patrick Faust, Kathy Noirot, Mary Ann Cox

Food pantry board offers thanks

Editor:

The staff and board of the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry would like to publicly thank the many generous contributors, and especially the United States Postal employees, who during their recent special food drive, collected and delivered more than 1,000 food items for the clients of the pantry.

Thanks to this special annual vent, and to the continuing thoughtfulness and generosity of the residents of the Charlevoix area, our food pantry has been able to supply food and personal care items to those in need, without interruption, since it opened in 1987.

Sincerely,
The board of the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry

Loeb Farms, two miles south of Charlevoix on M-66, had been a sculptor's metalworking studio known as Castle Van Haver since the 1960s. Judge Art Reibel bought it and in 1976 turned the complex into Castle Farms, an entertainment venue capable of seating up to 10,000 spectators. Over the next 17 years 120 of the top acts of the era arrived in Charlevoix. The continually stunned town had never dealt with anything like it as fans poured in from around the midwest and Canada, creating monumental traffic jams and mountains of trash, some fans arriving at the hospital emergency room from vehicular accidents, several of them very serious, alcohol blackouts and drug overdoses. Who rocked the Castle? Such names as Bob Dylan, Willie Nelson, Tina Turner, Bon Jovi, Ringo Starr, Men at Work, Aerosmith, Chicago, Kiss, and John Denver. Charlevoix was on the concert circuit map, and wished it wasn't. After the last performance in 1993, the 75-year-old buildings of Loeb/Castle Farms deteriorated toward perilous ruin until they were rescued in 2001 by Linda and Richard Mueller of Mississippi and the Belvedere Club. Thus began the resplendent restoration work that has transformed the Castle into one of the showplaces of Northern Michigan.

Fashion show to benefit Joppa House

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Joppa House Transitional Home for Women will host a fundraising fashion show and luncheon at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, June 7, at the Charlevoix Country Club.

Fashions from The Clothing Company, J Phillips, Elements, LeFrench Bulldog Boutique, and Half Way To The Top will be featured. Door prizes will also be offered.

Tickets are $30 per person, which includes lunch, dessert and soft drinks. Credit cards are a accepted. Seating is limited to 75. Tickets will be sold at the participating stores or at Third Day Fellowship and Outreach..

The guest speaker for the event will be the Rev. Ginger Stevens from Third Day Fellowship and Outreach and Joppa House Ministries of Charlevoix.

Proceeds from the show will go toward to finish Joppa House Women's Transitional Home located at 801 State St. in Charlevoix.

Joppa House is a transitional home for women and children who find themselves homeless or facing homelessness.

"Transitional housing is intended to empower, mentor, and train women in the life skills necessary to permanently resolve the situation of finding themselves facing homelessness," Stevens said.

Joppa House, formerly the Catholic convent house, sits at its current location at the corner of State and Garfiled after being moved in May of 2012 from about a block away. The house has been undergoing a total renovation, including new electrical wiring, plumbing, heating, insulation, windows and interior decorating.

Stevens said the organization still needs money to finish the house including for siding, roofing, paint, flooring and finishing the bathrooms.

Stevens said the fundraiser will help the organization meet its goal of raising $75,000.00 to finish the project and get the home ready for residency.

"Every day we are not open is a day we cannot help a woman in need," Stevens said.

Donations can be made on our website www.3dfellowship.org, at Third Day Fellowship & Outreach and at the Fashion Show.

For more information on Joppa House or the fashion show, call (231) 547-8040.

Votes could land free paint for downtown businesses

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Benjamin Moore® Paints

Some down Charlevoix business or building owners might get a shot at some free building spruce-ups if enough people vote for Charlevoix in an ongoing paint manufacturer's promotion.

Benjamin Moore, the paint manufacturer and retailer, has launched the "Main Street Matters" campaign across the United States and Canada, with the city of Charlevoix being one of the approximately 100 cities nominated.

Through an online vote, 20 cities will be selected to have their main streets repainted by the company and their local retail location. Under this program local contractors are used and paint is provided to improve building facades at no cost to the city or the building owners. Benjamin Moore will not only provide the paint and supplies needed for facades, porches, railings, shutters and other exterior building trims, but its color experts will consult on the best choices to enhance the architectural style, regional influences and historic references in each community.

Charlevoix city planning director Mike Spencer said representatives from Benjamin Moore contacted him recently to see if the city would be interested in participating in the program. Spencer said he supplied the company with information about the community, especially its downtown, and how the community would benefit from the company's program.

The voting has already begun, and will last through June 30. To vote, visit www.paintwhatmatters.com, select the state of Michigan, then Charlevoix and finally "Vote Now." Everyone is allowed one vote per day. Results will be announced online in July.

For more information, visit www.paintwhatmatters.com or contact Spencer at (231) 547-3265.

MAY

OBITUARIES

Marilyn Jean Miller, 86

Marilyn Jean Miller, 86, of Charlevoix, died Friday, May 24, 2013, at Georgia House in Charlevoix. She was born April 22, 1927, in Charlevoix, to William and Ruth (Whitney) Hair.

On Oct. 7, 1944, she married David H. Miller in Petoskey, and they made their home in the Charlevoix/Petoskey area.

Marilyn is survived by her husband, David of Charlevoix; daughter, Sandra (Terry) Murray of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Raina (Dale) Streeter, Randy (Amy) Chambers; great-grandchildren, Oliver and Henry Streeter, Katherine and Max Chambers; brother, Bill (Clarice) Hair of Byron Center; sister, Lynn (Cal) Lamoreaux of Charlevoix; many nieces and nephews. Marilyn was preceded in death by her daughter, Ruth Ann Chambers, in 1975; and sisters, Marge McGhan and Marvel Mason.

No services are planned. Interment will take place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 West Garfield, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720, or to Meals on Wheels.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling arrangements.

Janet Krulik Runyan, 77

Janet Krulik Runyan, 77, entered into eternal life with her Lord and Savior on May 29, 2013, at Hiland Cottage in Petoskey.

"Jan" was born in Charlevoix, Nov. 3, 1935, to Jim and Betty Krulik, both of whom are deceased. She has no siblings. Her husband, David, of Pickford survives her.

Jan spent all of her school years in Charlevoix, graduating in 1953. She was a teacher and educator for more than 30 years, receiving her doctorate from Michigan State University in Curriculum and Secondary Education. She retired from teaching in 1962.

For more than 30 years Jan and her husband, Dave, lived in the Upper Peninsula, in Pickford, where they enjoyed their horses, the water and the beauty of the area.

A memorial service will take place at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix at 3 p.m., Sunday, June 2, 2013, for those who can gather to share joy, love, and memories.

The Rev. Neil Wilson of the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix will officiate.

In lieu of flowers or contributions she would like you to do a random act of kindness for a stranger and help an animal.

Program to feature unique news from Charlevoix's past

Charlevoix Fire Chief Charlie Marshall, pictured here showing some children some firefighting equipment, was shot by his wife. Learn more about this an many more stories from Charlevoix's past at the Charlevoix Historical Society's event on June 4.

The Charlevoix Historical Society and the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will present a joint program on unique items found in the Charlevoix Courier for the years 1909 through 1963. The illustrated program will be hosted by Kay Heise, an active member of both organizations, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 4 at the Depot, Depot Beach. Around 10 of Kay's acquaintances will read the selections.

The society and the friends have each conducted research investigations of Charlevoix's newspapers both on microfilm and in preserved copies of the papers. Almost every search seems to uncover items from the town's history that are startling, entertaining, unexpectedly informative, and in many instances extremely funny.

In one example, the Jan. 6, 1909 edition of the Charlevoix Courier carried the headline, "Unto us a child is born, eight feet long and two feet wide."

Among the stories that will be shared include: Why the fire chief's wife shot him; where the pickle factory was located; how the newfangled automobile was ruining the morals of the local young women but not the men; who formed the sidewalk superintendent Bridge Watcher's Society during the construction of Charlevoix's current channel bridge; plus when and where locals volunteered to watch for enemy aircraft during World War II.

Light refreshments will be served. There will be no admission charge, but donations in support of the society are appreciated. For more information call the society at (231) 547-0373 or Kay Heise at (231) 547-0899.

Farmers markets participate in Double Up Food Bucks program

DOUBLE UP

The Charlevoix and Boyne City farmers markets have both received grants that will allow them to participate in Double Up Food Bucks this season.

The Double Up Food Bucks program is funded through the Fair Food Network and aims to help low-income families get more Michigan grown fresh fruits and vegetables in their diet and to support local farmers, while stimulating the economy.

Any person with a Michigan Bridge Card is encouraged to come to the market and use their money on locally grown products. For every dollar spent with the Bridge Card, the Double Up Food Bucks program will automatically double the money, up to $20 per market day, to spend on fresh fruits and vegetables.

As always, customers can spend Bridge Card currency on almost anything edible at the market, including items like meats, cheeses, fresh breads and canned goods.

The program will begin on July 1 and run until Oct. 31.

To get a voucher in Charlevoix, find the chamber of commerce booth every Thursday from 9 a.m.- 1 p.m. in downtown Charlevoix's East Park and in Boyne City, find the market booth every Wednesday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to noon at Veterans Park.

In addition to Double Up Food Bucks, both markets will be accepting Bridge Cards, Project Fresh, Market Fresh and Senior Project Fresh. The Charlevoix market is also taking Visa and MasterCard.

For more information about the Double Up Food Bucks program and to see a complete listing of markets participating visit www.doubleupfoodbucks.org. For local information about the Charlevoix market call (231) 547-2101 or for Boyne City call (231) 330-2704.

Trout tournament set for June 7-9

The annual Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament is set to cast off starting at 5 a.m. on Friday, June 7 and wrapping up at noon on Sunday, June 9.

This year anglers in the tournament will compete in five divisions including brown trout, lake trout, steelhead, salmon and walleye. Prizes range from $1,000-$35 in the steelhead, lake trout and salmon divisions and from $750-$35 in the brown trout and walleye divisions.

Registration will take place from noon-8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, June 5-6 in East. Registration is $35 per adult and $10 for children ages 6-14. Children age 5 and under are free, but must still register. Each Paid registered entrant will receive a t-shirt and one chance in the Grand Prize drawing.

As in past years, children will again have the opportunity to fish in the trout pond in East Park from 10 a.m.-4 p.m on Saturday, June 8 as part of the tournament activities.

The tournament awards ceremony will take place at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 9 at the Odmark Pavilon in East Park.

For more information on the tournament, including a complete list of rules and prizes, visit www.fishcharlevoix.com.
